

TED WILLIAMS, RED SOX SLUGGER, JOINS NAVY

BASEBALL PLAYER HOPES TO BECOME A PILOT SHORTLY

He Is Not Expected To Be Called Until End Of Current Season

BOSTON, May 22.—(P)—Ted Williams, slugging outfielder with the Boston Red Sox, enlisted in the Navy today in the hope of becoming a flyer, but there appeared some chance that he would not be called before the end of the baseball season.

Williams, whose deferment in the draft caused a nationwide controversy, was sworn in as a seaman second class, and passed mental and physical examinations of the naval aviation cadet selection board for training as a pilot.

Lieut. Robert P. Fuller, member of the board, said that Williams asked no postponement of his induction nor would he be granted any, but would be called up in the normal course of procedure.

Fuller estimated that this normally would require two months, but said that Williams had a good chance to finish the 1942 baseball season with the Red Sox.

"We are proud he picked up a tougher spot," Fuller said. "He's going to be a flyer, not a physical instructor or anything like that."

Williams, who led the American league in hitting with a .406 average last season, first became interested in naval aviation a few weeks ago when the lowering of educational requirements made him eligible to apply for that branch of service.

When called to active service, Williams will be assigned to the Squantum Air station with the rating of aviation cadet and after completing the preliminary training will be transferred to either Pensacola or Jacksonville, both in Florida, or Corpus Christi, Tex.

3,000,000 Youths To Be Registered By U. S. June 30

WASHINGTON, May 22.—(P)—President Roosevelt summoned about 3,000,000 of America's young men today to register on June 30 and complete the survey of manpower available for fighting.

The final batch of registrants under the Selective Service Act will be youths of 18 and 19, plus those who have become 20 years old since the first of the year.

Luttrall Is Disqualified; Pinto And McCoy Wrestle To A Draw

Rough-riding Cowboy Luttrall, old man river of the wrestling ring, gave Sallor Hill the works Friday night at Thalian hall but slipped quietly over the edge of the rules and lost the decision in the main event of a wild and woolly wrestling royal.

Luttrall stayed in hot water with the referee all night and went too far in the final fall. Al Massey was officiating, and Luttrall came out of the rough end when the mixing began. Luttrall and Massey have it in for each other from past fights and either would give a lot to maul the other.

In keeping with the action promised by Promoter Bert Causey, both bouts were fiery hot. In the opener, Stanley Pinto and Bibber McCoy fought out a 60-minute time limit to a draw. Pinto took the first fall, after 26 minutes of grueling grappling with a head lock. Pinto locked with the referee on several occasions and came out much the worse for wear, consistently. Massey had the matmen barking with more speed than has been shown in some time.

Some question was raised over the count in the second fall, and while the crowd unanimously favored McCoy, the final ruling was "no decision" for the fall. McCoy objected strenuously but was finally ejected.

Time ran out on the fighters and Massey stopped the fight, raising both contestants' hands. McCoy and Pinto then began a hot fist fight, with fans endeavoring to join in. Ringside police brought the opener to a close.

Luttrall followed his usual custom of wearing tape on his right hand, in the feature bout, and continually had Hill groggy with eye-gouging and roasting.

Hill took the first fall in 21 minutes, clinching it with his famous Octopus Hold, after nearly putting Luttrall to sleep with body punching, before hand.

Before the bell beginning the second round had sounded, the Cowboy rushed from his corner and caught Hill from behind with a terrific haymaker that knocked the Sallor into the ropes. Luttrall then proceeded to dish out severe punishment while Hill was prone, in the ropes. Massey made an attempt to intercede but Luttrall caught him on the ropes and tripped him up. Massey was on his feet in a flash, however, and slugged it out with Luttrall, the latter running for cover.

One riled fan swung a wild Sunday punch that missed the Cowboy's chin by an inch. Hill was given the decision on a disqualification.

DODGERS STOPPED BY GIANTS, 5 TO 1

Ed Head Beaten As New York Cuts Loose With Early Scoring Thrust

NEW YORK, May 22.—(P)—The New York Giants throtted the Brooklyn Dodgers 5 to 1 today with an early scoring rush that routed the previously unbeaten Ed Head after four innings.

The Rookie right hander who had won five straight games to lead all National league pitchers was shelled with a two-run homer by Manager Mel Ott in the first frame and another circuit clout by Hank Leiber in the fourth as well as being tapped for two unearned runs in the third.

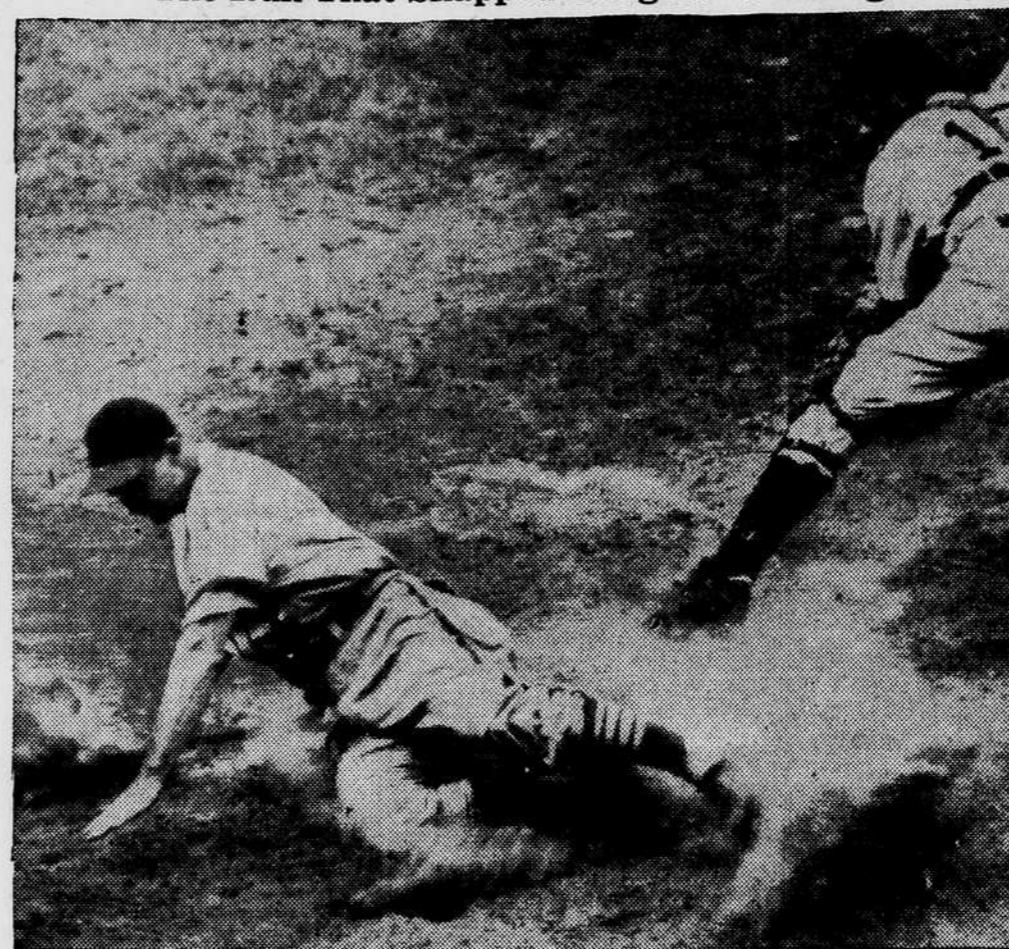

The fast getaway enabled Lefty Cliff Melton to triumph easily even though a succession of three Brooklyn relief pitchers held the Giants to one hit and no runs in the last four innings and altogether the Dodgers out-hit New York 10 to 6. Score by innings:

Brooklyn 000 100 000-1
NEW YORK 202 100 000-5
Errors—Vaughan, Reese, Witke. Runs batted in—Ott 2, Mize, Camilli, Leiber. Two base hits—Camilli, Vaughan, Jurgens. Home runs—Ott, Leiber. Sacrifices—Witke 2. Left on bases—New York 4; Brooklyn 12. Bases on balls—Ott Head 1; off Melton 3; off Casey 2; off Kimball 1. Struck out—By Melton 2; by Casey 1; by Kimball 1. Hits—Ott Head 5 in 4; Mize, off Casey 1 in 2; off French 0 in 1; off Kimball 0 in 1. Losing pitcher—Head. Umpires—Barlick, Pinelli and Ballantain. Time—2:12. Attendance (paid)—12,842.

FIGHT WITH LOUIS IS GIVEN CRIMP BY JUDGES' VOTE

Boxing Writers At Ringside; Think Pastor Was Out In Front

By SID FEDER.

NEW YORK, May 22.—(P)—The fistic upset of the year was chalked up in Madison Square garden tonight when Young Tami Mauriello was given a draw with Bob Pastor in a ten-round thriller, and the verdict put a decided crimp in the carefully laid plans for an early summer heavyweight title bout between Pastor and Joe Louis. Pastor scaled 183½; Mauriello 177¼.

After taking the best of Mauriello's Sunday shots through the first three rounds, in one of which he was staggered by a shot on the jaw, Pastor turned on the gas and gave Tami quite a boxing lesson most of the way home, until the ninth and tenth rounds. Then the two stood toe to toe and slugged it out to the final bell as a noisy, good-sized crowd stood and roared.

The Associated Press score card had Pastor well out in front at the finish, giving him every round from the third through the eighth and voting it six heats for Pastor, two for the young Fordham flier and two even.

Each of the three officials came up with a different verdict. Referee George Walsh scored it five heats for each and called it even. Judge Marty Monroe had five rounds for Pastor, four for the uptown better and one even. The third Judge, Charley Draycott, turned in a surprising card of seven rounds for Mauriello and three even.

The boxing writers at ring-side were almost unanimous in their opinions that Pastor had finished on top after getting off to his usual bad start, taking a right to the chin that made his knees buckle before going to work.

He had slowed Mauriello down by the fourth round, gashed the square-jawed youngster's right eye in the fifth and generally gave him quite a boxing lesson all the way up to the ninth.

Then Mauriello came to life again, and for a full minute in that heat, and throughout the tenth, the two stood there and banged away, toe to toe and head to head. Bob's right eye suffered a slight cut in the ninth and Tami's injured optic dripped crimson again in the final thriller.

The finish was probably the most thrilling put on in this big sports soup-bowl in years, especially coming after the seventh and eighth rounds in which Pastor appeared to be going just about as he pleased.

Just what effect the even-stepped decision will have on the plans for a big outdoor extravaganza for Joe Louis' heavyweight crown in late June or early July no one knew tonight.

Even Promoter Mike Jacobs was too flabbergasted to think up something to take care of the situation. Because Pastor was anywhere up to 1 to 7 in the betting going into this bout, and no one had given Mauriello the faintest kind of a chance. It was all supposed to be so cut and dried that only the U. S. Army's approval for a Louis-Pastor fight was needed to put the machinery in motion.

MINORS PREPARED FOR BUS PROBLEM WELL IN ADVANCE

Most Clubs Using Own Transport Vehicles Or Private Cars

By SID FEDER.

NEW YORK, May 22.—(P)—Baseball has its crystal ball working in the matter of transportation the last few months, so the minor leagues were ready for the latest ban on chartered bus travel for the most part.

An Associated Press survey came up with that general feeling today, in spite of pessimism in some quarters, the darkest of which was the statement by business manager Crowther Boyd of Jacksonville's Sally league club that the ban "would wreck minor leagues" as "90 per cent of them use buses and would be unable to meet schedules by train."

The new order was announced by the Office of Defense Transportation last night. It was that after June 1, minor league teams accustomed to traveling in chartered buses, will be denied such transportation.

It seems, however, that a good portion of the minors, and their major league parents, foresaw this possibility, and provided for it by buying their own buses or station wagons or arranging to travel in private cars. Some players, owning their own cars are taking their teammates around on a "share-expenses" plan.

In some cases, however, teams have continued to get around in chartered buses, and they are in for a tough time settling the problem. Among these are a couple of clubs each in the Appalachian and Wisconsin State leagues, some in the Three-Eye, Western Association and Southeastern circuits and Twin Falls (Idaho) and Salt Lake in the class "C" Pioneer league.

But all of those who haven't made previous arrangements are sitting tight until W. G. Bramham, the czar of minor league ball, finds out just "what's cooking." President Ross Edgemon of the Appalachian league said he had received a telegram from Bramham predicting "adjustments probably will be made in the ruling," and one league president in the mid-west, who asked that his name be withheld, said he understood Bramham is "taking up gasoline and transportation problems with government officials." Bramham, himself, could not be reached for comment.

The ban will have no effect on leagues in double-A and A-1 classifications, since most of those travel by train or over regularly scheduled bus routes anyway. But from class B down, it will be felt, even if only slightly.

"Most of our farms, however," explained Mickey McConnell, the Brooklyn Dodgers' secretary in charge of farm teams, "almost were caught, but we're all right now. Most of them own buses or private cars or station wagons. I believe most of baseball was apprised of the situation before the season. The big problem now is gas—and tires."

WITHERDRAW LAFAYETTE, La., May 22.—(P)—The Lafayette White Sox today withdrew from the Evangeline league, leaving Port Arthur, Lake Charles, Alexandria and Natchez as the four clubs making up the loop.

PHALANX DOWNED BY SENIOR FRAT

Senior Frat advanced closer to the Hanover first-half championship yesterday afternoon at Robert Strange by winning its ninth game of eleven played, this time wallopping Phalanx, 16 to 1. Sixteen blows rang off the Frat bats as they garnered four doubles, a triple and three home runs off the hurling of Kelly Jewell and Bill Bowen.

Pinner and Winn, of the Fraternity, each connected for three hits. Winn batted in five runs during the fray, and McCall accounted for four others to lead on the attack side.

Pat Padrick limited the Phalanxers to five hits, D. Jewell getting two of them. A single by Tommy Davis and a triple by K. Jewell in the fifth accounted for the single tally off Padrick.
