Apparently undaunted by army restrictions that keep them from many of their favorite casting spots — and thus far not bothered much by gasoline rationing—just as many fishermen as usual dot the piers and inlets along the southeastern North Carolina coast.

Of course, the coast guard has given very definite orders that no pleasure angling be allowed on "the outside," beyond the bars. Several areas including Shell island and Mason's Inlet are restricted as army firing ranges. And the entire shoreline is shrouded after dark by the dim-out order.

But the numerous piers and inlets and sloughs still open are crowded on weekends, certainly not void of fishermen at other times. Some are even fishing in the dark.

Bait and equipment retailers and operators of commerical piers report business as usual. Priorities haven't drastically cut their wares as yet and as one of them told this corner last night: "Naturally we expect gas rationing to hurt our business. But it certainly hasn't sofar . . . Its just about the same as last year right now."

And the fish, unmindful of the fact that a war is going on, still are biting. The early season fellows are reporting good — though not above average — luck.

Especially good along the beaches are the mullet and small bluefish catches . . . Trout time is still about a month

Frank Clemmons' Amoco Cannoneers, who broke into the Cape Fear league wins column yesterday, have a twoday road trip slated for this week-end. The local semi-pros will take on the Naval Training station at Norfolk on Saturday and an unannounced team the following day.

Jesse Helms, now of the Wilmington Navy Recruiting office, was on the Raleigh News and Observer sports desk before enlisting . . . Sports Editor Neale Patrick of the Raleigh Times was a Wrightsville Beach visitor over the week-end, stopped by the Star-News office with nice sunburn prospects.

After counting up spare trophies, the Cape Fear Country club's tournament committee decided to have a delayed 'spring" meet. If rain puts greens in condition this week, qualifying rounds will probably be held Saturday.

With their first several games on the records as fast, close ones, the new Seaboard Baseball league stands a good chance of developing into one of the best amateur circuits in this section . . . And we've heard nothing more on that proposed benefit game for Frank Hines and Mack Griffith.

ERNIE BONHAM LOSES OPENER AS TWO SPLIT

Season's Largest Crowd Watches As Tribe, N. Y. Even Twin Bill

NEW YORK, June 7 -(P)- A throng of 71,910 paying customers, largest baseball crowd of the season, watched the Cleveland Indians push Ernie Bonham from the ranks of the undefeated pitchers today as they divided a doubleheader with the New York Yankees.

Bonham, winner of eight straight games until today, was banged for dozen blows in the curtain raiser, which the Tribe won, 5-4, but the Yanks exploded a barrage of home runs to even accounts in the nightcap, 13-1.

Lefty Al Smith, who had a hand n halting Joe DiMaggio's recordbreaking batting streak last year was the big stumbling block in Bonham's path today.

When the Bronx bombers blasted starter Joe Heving out of the box with a three-run assault in the first inning, Smith took over and held them to six hits and one run, a homer by Tommy Henrich, the rest of the way.

Shipyard Holds Cape Fear League Lead By Defeating Grocery Squad, 6 To 4

By R. J. POWELL

The Shipyard Progressives moved one notch nearer winning the Cape Fear first-half flag yesterday afternoon at Legion stadium as they won over the A. L. King team 6-4 while the puzzling Amoco Cannoneers were upsetting the Pepsi Cola boys, 3 to 2 in a close game

Righthander Edwards' fine fivehit flinging and his sixth inning double that scored Sam West figured prominently in toppling the Pepsi applecart. Edwards had the Cola crew under complete control every round with the excetion of the sixth chapter when the PC's coupled Rowan's single with Mac-Keithan's walk and catcher Nethercutt's first of two hits to tie the count at 2-all with two dead.

Amoco got eleven bingles off starter Red Miller and Jack Shoaf who worked from the third on out. Eight Oilers were left stranded.

Second baseman Tony Reynolds was the fielding star for the winners and H. Bohanan was the big man with the willow. Reynolds nandled nine chances with out a slip and started the only double play while thirdsacker Bohanan hit the ball safely three times out of four. Meade, Farmer and Strickland got two for four for Amoco and Nethercutt led the Pepsis with a similar record.

Five runs in the first round off regular third baseman Curley Shands proved enough to keep the Shipyard winning streak intact. After that bad start in which manager Snag Allen started and was forced to quit in favor of Shands the stadium tilt developed into a nice pitchers argument with the shippers' Urbon and King's Alvah Tatum taking the honors With no other hurler in sight Tatum took over in the second and allowed one shipyard run on three hits in finishing the futile effort for the cripoled Kingers. Little Alsab Needing A Ration Card --Or Maybe Just Less Work By Rider BY SID FEDER that saw war relief benefit by Basil James was doing with his April 13-an average of a trip

NEW YORK, June 7 .- (P)-If you're one of the Atlantic seaboard motorists roaming the highways and the byways these days looking for a stray gallon of gas, you probably know just how Alsab feels today. For, off his most recent job of work-finishing a well-beaten second to Shut Out in the Belmont stakes-the little Chicago Express appears to be in the same boat as the rest of us. He looks like he's running short of gas, too. The only dif-ference is, "the Sab" doesn't have a ration card.

This likelihood-that one of the toughest campaigns ever loaded on a top gee-gee is finally catching up to Alsab-was evident yesterday, when he fin-ished three lengths back in the Relmont stakes, on a program nearly a quarter of a million dollars from Belmont and Jamaica contributions and Shut Out go a long way toward clinching the championship of the three-year olds by his $44,-520 victory. In the last killing quarter of a mile of the Belmont's mileand-a-half grind, Alsab didn't gain a lick on Mrs. Payne Whitney's galloping Son of Equipoise. What's more, his famous stretch kick was gone. At 26 seconds, it was the slowest last quarter he's been asked to run since before the Kentucky Derby-and he was asked loudly and pointedly. In fact, Gene Krupa, the drum-mer-man, would probably have been slightly green with envy if he'd seen the tob Jockey whip trying to get Alsab to turn it loose. This matter of overwork for Alsab has been pointed out before, but owner Al Sabath and trainer Sarge Swenke have consistently "pooh-poohed" the idea. And when the colt came on to win the Preakness and withers mile after finishing a fast-moving second to Shut Out in the Derby, the "I told you so's" were flying around as thick as British planes over Co-

The chances are Alsab will come back to win a lot more races-he's that good. But the way he looks right now, he could stand a trip to the country to get away from it all. For, yesterday was his 11th major start in 54 days since than once every five days. Just imagine if Joe Louis were asked to defend his title every five days. Or, better still, just recall how much below his there every 30 days.

> "he wasn't as good as he was in the Withers." And it might be added, "the Sab" wasn't as good in the Withers as in the Preakness, when he had real oppositions. And, although he won the Maryland classic, he was no better in that one than he was in his rough trip in the peak the Bomber looked last year when he was going out All in all, Jockey James said quite a mouthful when he climbed wearily off Alsab's back at the finish. This was, to the post more frequently
