DEFENSE WORKERS NEEDING HOUSES

Shipyard Employes Quit Jobs Because Of Lack Of Suitable Homes

Many Wilmington shipyard workers have been forced to quit their jobs here because they could not find suitable homes for their families, Defense Housing Chairman Henry R. Emory pointed out yesterday.

"The labor problem is one of the foremost problems that the shipbuilding company has to meet in turning out Liberty freighters for the Maritime commission," he

"The company cannot produce ships on schedule without the cooperation of citizens of Wilmington and of New Hanover county Every householder and property owner here can do an immense service to the war effort by helping to provide shelter for the shipyard workers.'

Available rooms, apartments and houses should be listed with the homes registration office on the second floor of the postoffice or with a real estate agency at once, Mr. Emory said.

In addition, he urged all property owners who have living space that could be converted easily into quarters for shipyard workers to do so as quickly as pos-

Classifies 4,500 Job Ouestionnaires Here

Occupational questionnaires of more than 4,500 men of the third draft registration have been classified and coded by the United States Employment service office here, Manager Maurice H. Moore said yester-

The questionnaires were received from Selective Service boards in New Hanover, Brunswick, Columbus and Pender

"In classifying the questionnaires up to this time," Mr. Moore said, "we have found comparatively f e w persons with critical occupational skills who are not now working on those types of jobs. The socalled critical jobs are those in which the known national supply is less than the demand in defense industries."

The files also disclosed that a number of these persons are utilizing their skills in industry which is not directly concerned in work of defense nature, he

"As openings develop under direct defense contracts that workers of certain needed skills are employed in, nondefense workers will be informed of opportunities in defense industries."

The questionnaires will be kept on file in the U. S. Employment office to provide a reservoir of persons of certain occupational skills, Mr. Moore explained, in order that such persons not now working in defense industry may be informed of such work as the need develops.

The Employment Service work has been geared up to assist in every possible way all types of defense industry, not only in the job of recruit-ing workers, but in furnishing various data used by governmental agencies in planning the every expanding needs of the war program.

Opening Of 6 Bids On Furnishing Equipment

Opening of the six bids for contracts to furnish school equipment for the nine building projects, three of which are completed, was deferred by the board of education Tuesday until further instructions are received from the Richmond FWA office.

Part of the funds for the $865,000 expansion program is being furnished by the Federal Works agency.

After receiving the bids and declaring the time for receiving bids closed, the board of education recessed without further action.

A part of the reason for the delay in opening the bids and awarding the contracts is the War Production board's current freeze order on lumber, Superintendent of Schools H. M. Roland said.

Three of the nine projects in the expansion program, calling for additions to present schools and for new school plants, are completed. All nine were scheduled to be finished in time for the opening of school next fall.

The board of education has made official application to the WPB for a release on essential war materials, necessary for the completion of the projects, and has secured the endorsement of the Army, represented by Camp Davis, and of the Maritime commission, represented by the North Carolina Shipbuilding company, for the expansion program.

Included in the equipment for which the board of education asked bids were auditorium chairs, office furniture and equipment and school cafeteria equipment.
