Frances Casteen, Mr. Schwantes Wed In Church

The wedding of Miss Frances Casteen and Arnaldo Schwantes was solemnized Wednesday evening at 8:45 o'clock at the Seventh Day Adventist church.

The couple entered the church together and were met at the altar by the pastor, O. U. Giddings.

Mrs. George W. Tiencken rendered a program of nuptial music. Mrs. Duncan Calhoun sang, "I Love You Truly" and Liebestraum was played during the ceremony. The traditional wedding marches were used.

Mrs. Schwantes is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Casteen of this city, and has attended Washington Missionary college of Takoma Park, D. C., for the past two years.

Mr. Schwantes, son of Senator and Senhora Arnaldo Schwantes of Sao Paulo, Brazil, is a graduate of Washington Missionary college.

After a brief honeymoon the couple will be at home in Washington, D. C., where the bridegroom has a position with the Berlitz School of Languages.

Blackout Aids Player In Finesse
BY WILLIAM E. MCKENNEY
America's Card Authority

During a recent championship bridge tournament, a blackout occurred at the moment when one declarer was confronted with a problem as to which way to take a finesse. The declarer remarked later that the blackout gave him more time to concentrate, and he was able to figure out the correct play. Here is the hand:

After taking his ace of diamonds, East led the spade, which was won by the declarer. The ten of diamonds was led and the jack held. East led the queen of diamonds and declarer ruffed.

South led a trump to North's

Jack, East discarding the heart deuce. North led his last diamond and the declarer ruffed it.

Then came the blackout. When the lights went on again, declarer unhesitatingly cashed the ace of clubs and finessed against West for the club queen. He made five-odd, the extra trick being vital in match point play.

During the blackout, South had been able to reason his play out as follows: West had opened the fourth-best diamond from king-x-x-x. Most players will not lead away from a king if the hand offers a reasonable alternative. Why did West fail to open the unbid club suit? It must be because he held the queen-x-x. If he held four clubs to the queen, or even three small clubs, he probably would have preferred that lead to the diamond.

NAMES PROPOSED FOR SHIPS HERE

List Of 41 Notable North Carolinians Submitted To Shipbuilding Company

The North Carolina Historical commission yesterday submitted a list of 41 notable North Carolinians for continued perpetuation through use of their names for ships now coming off the ways at the North Carolina Shipbuilding company here.

In preparing the list, Dr. C. C. Crittenden, commission's secretary, said no living persons were included and likewise several, such as Thomas Wolfe, who were prominent enough but who had died recently were excluded. Besides famous warriors and statesmen, the roster contained the names of several Indians, a negro, and the Siamese twins.

Persons who figured prominently in history, such as Andrew Jackson, James K. Polk, William Rufus King, and Thomas Hart Benton, who were more closely connected with other states than North Carolina were also excluded.

The commission's list, accompanied by 30 names submitted by Louis T. Moore and the Rev. Andrew J. Howell which were approved by that organization, have been forwarded to the N. C. Shipbuilding company and the Maritime Commission for possible use in naming ships.

The historical board suggested the following names: Sir Walter Raleigh, Baron De Graffenried, John Harvey, John Wright Stanly, James Moore, Francis Nash, Griffith Rutherford, William Jones, Johnston Blakeley, Benjamin Forsyth, John Branch, George E. Badger, James C. Dobbin, Archibald D. Murphy, Thomas Ruffin, David L. Swain, James I. Waddell, John Chavis, Thomas L. Clingman, Charles F. Fisher, W. H. C. Whitling, Stephen D. Ramseur, Elisha Mitchell, O. Henry, Siamese Twins, John Ashe, John Louis Taylor, Alfred Moore, William L. Davidson, John Charles McNeill, David Caldwell, Anna McNeill Whistler, Bryan Grimes, Arthur Dobbs, Gabriel Johnston, Cornelia Phillips Spencer, Otway Burns Junaluska, John Lawson, Christopher Gale and Manteo.

Medical Care

BY LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.
I do not believe we hear as much about adhesions in the abdomen as we used to because fashions change, but every once in a while somebody gets an idea that all their woes are due to adhesions rather than to vitamin deficiency. An adhesion occurs very frequently in the abdomen because the peritoneum which covers all the organs of the abdomen and lines the inside of the abdominal wall is very apt to form these bands of tissue.

There are two kinds of abdominal adhesions: one which is congenital or develops naturally in an individual with the development of the body, and the other which is acquired and follows injury or a surgical operation.

It is very tempting to ascribe all sorts of symptoms to adhesions and this was frequently done until a Boston physician made an elaborate study to show what the normal incidence of adhesions is. He found that seven women out of every ten and eight men out of every ten had some kind of adhesions in the abdomen.

Only a very small proportion of these people complained of a nny abdominal trouble and when they did, very few of them complained in the same way. For instance, the largest number of congenital adhesions is found in the transverse part of the large intestine. To some people this explained the cause of constipation and auto-intoxication and all the rest of the nunny-junnie. But the trouble with this explanation was that people who had the worst adhesions were the people who were freest from constipation and auto-intoxication.

Natural Adhesion
As age advances, more and more adhesions occur in the abdomen whether an operation is performed or not. These natural adhesions, which involve not only the large bowel but also the gall-bladder, the appendix and the liver, can hardly ever be said to be responsible for any symptoms in these organs. They are relatively simple and run true to form, lacking variety in type.

It was once the fashion, as I have said, to ascribe all sorts of dire sickness to these adhesions. Surgeon waded in and cut them out and sewed them over and named bands and kinks after themselves and got knighted for it and had a lovely time; it was a bloody period in surgical history.

The only time I ever saw a surgeon faint in an operating room was when a very nice fellow from Boston went with me to the clinic of a celebrated London surgeon. He said after he was revived, he just couldn't help feeling sorry for those innocent people. Surgeons abdominal pain and even acute inflammation, however, learned some restraint about these fields.

The acquired adhesions following a surgical operation are very complex and hardly any two of them are exactly the same. Sometimes they can cause a great deal of trouble in the way of a chronic abdominal pain and even acute intestinal obstruction. Modern surgery, however, has developed means to reduce the possibility of the formation of these adhesions

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

E. D.: Will x-ray show ulcers or cancer of the stomach? Will it also show the intestines and tell what may be the cause of constipation and gas in these regions?
Answer: Yes.

C. M. H.:—Is a mixture of lemon juice and soda water considered a good conditioner? What is the difference in the effect upon the system if it is taken while effervescing or after effervescing? What chemical change, if any, takes place in the solution itself after effervescing has stopped?
Answer: The term, "a good conditioner," is a little indefinite. I don't quite know what you mean. Lemon juice and soda water tend to flush the kidneys and it is often a help to digestion. There is no chemical change that occurs after effervescing has stopped. The effect of the effervescent is largely to make any drink more palatable and make it absorb somewhat more rapidly. The only thing that escapes is carbon dioxide gas.

NATIONAL MALNUTRITION
With all the field research that has been done it seems as though the food field has won the brass door-knob for being asleep. At every turn we meet the fact that malnutrition is an American plague. . . that housewives just don't know the ABC's of nutrition. Thus the war has already forced a huge new educational campaign on food manufacturers.
