SEVEN AIRMEN DIE IN WRECK

Army Plane Crashes In Woods On Fringe Of Suburban Boston Town

READING, Mass., July 18.—(P)—At least seven airmen were killed today when an Army plane crashed in woods on the fringe of this suburban Boston town.

Lt. Chase of the Army Air Force, in listing seven of the dead, said that he was not sure whether any others were in the plane.

The dead (addresses unavailable):
 First Lieut. James Phillips, Jr.; First Lieut. M. R. Klyce, Second Lieut. Don H. Johnson; Second Lieut. Robert Aulbury; William E. Perkins (Rank unknown); Corp. William Billocur; Tech. Serg. Archie R. Jester.

Three-Year-Old Girl Christens Destroyer

BOSTON, July 18.—(P)—Three-year-old Tasmin Lee Corner, the first child ever to sponsor a destroyer in Boston, christened the U. S. S. Conner at the Boston Navy yard today—with her mother helping hold the champagne bottle—and then walked away with a teddy bear in her arms, the gift of Navy yard employees.

The Conner was named after the little girl's great-grandfather, Commodore David Conner, USN, who served aboard the U. S. S. Hornet in 1813 during battles with the British warships Belvidere and Peacock.

Also launched at the Navy yard today was the destroyer U. S. S. Hall, christened by Mrs. Elizabeth William Greenleaf, of Stratford, Conn., and named in honor of Lieut. Elijah Hall, who sailed on the Ranger and commanded the prize crew which took the British sloop-of-war Drake to Brest, France, during the war of 1812.

WASHINGTON, July 18.—(P)—Some pictorial evidence of what the Japanese bombers hit—and missed—in their June attack on Alaska's Dutch Harbor came today from the Navy.

A dense cloud of thick black smoke rolling up from a burning oil tank showed one score for the enemy, but the same Navy photograph also revealed two radio towers, standing apparently undamaged close to the bombed fuel supply.

Her hull blown askew and warped by fire, the station ship Northwest was shown in another photograph. Fire and bombs got her, but she did not sink because she already was beached for use as storage before the Japanese bombers paid their visits on June 3 and 4.

DRUM BANS FLYING IN EASTERN AREA

 "Civil flying training, including civil pilot training schools."
 "Civil photographic, news, commuting, pleasure and other miscellaneous civil flights."
 "Army and Navy primary, basic, and advanced flying training, other than operational training."
 All other aircraft flying outside a five-mile radius from the center of the airport were ordered to submit a flight plan and upon approval adhere strictly to it.

The "vital defense area," Gen. Drum declared, "will include that portion of the eastern air defense zone east of the line drawn from Weston, Me., through Sebago, Me.; Grafton, Mass.; Pawling, N. Y.; Sussex, N. J.; Pottsville, Pa.; Middleburg, Va.; Franklin, Va.; to Corolla, N. C., and shall extend 200 miles to sea."

The order also stipulated that the airways for a "distance of 30 miles in all directions" from nine radio range stations be narrowed to a width of six miles. Stations named were Portland, Me.; Boston, Mass.; Providence, R. I.; Hartford, Conn.; Elizabeth, N. J.; Philadelphia, Pa.; Washington, D. C.; Norfolk, Va., and Charleston, S. C.

"All civil air carriers operating within 30 miles of the above radio range stations shall make certain that no passenger can see the ground until the aircraft has landed or has reached beyond the 30-mile point," the order said.

"Aircraft on point to point flight within the area, shall follow the civil airway except when the regional commander concerned determines that the route between the point of origin and the destination is so circuitous as to render such procedure impracticable."

Gen. Drum also gave the following restrictions to govern non-combat planes and combat planes not directed to intercept or attack the enemy in the case of an "alert" or "air raid alarm":
 "Aircraft on the ground shall remain on the ground."
 "Aircraft flying locally shall land immediately."
 "Aircraft flying on flight plans shall land, turn back or proceed as directed by the commanding general, fighter command."

The order also said that "authority to order blackouts and to suspend radio broadcasts and other radio emissions is hereby delegated to the commanding general, fighter command"

AMERICAN AIR FORCE SMASHES AT TOBRUK

The British, in turn, made ever greater use of Royal Navy planes against Axis land forces. These navy flyers fiercely attacked Axis concentrations Thursday night between the coastal road and the shore west of the British positions. Other naval aircraft destroyed thousands of gallons of gasoline at Axis-held Matruh.

The RAF itself concentrated chiefly in the southern sector of the front, and a British communiqué said violent explosions and fires were touched off among Axis transport vehicles and tanks yesterday. Five Axis planes were listed as shot down. The British lost seven but saved two of the pilots.

On the ground, Australians and some South Africans moved from their Tel El Eisa position southward to gain a second parallel ridge yesterday, but an Axis counter-attack forced them to withdraw from some of their gains later in the day. The British positions on the main ridge of Tel El Eisa remained intact.

In the central sector of the 40-mile line the Germans mounted an attack of their own with truck-borne infantry, but British Indians repulsed them with losses.

As far as was known here, there was little armored fighting Friday. It was disclosed, however, that in the course of a hot tank battle in the central sector Thursday 25 Axis tanks, mainly German, were knocked out. The British subsequently blew up 21 of these.

This attrition of the Axis armor makes all the more significant the blows of the American bombers against Mediterranean shipping.

Young Pew Plans To Wed Gas Station Attendant

PHILADELPHIA, July 19.—(P)—An application for a marriage license was filed today by Walter C. Pew, Jr., whose father is general manager of the Sun Oil company, which is controlled by the wealthy Pew family, and Sophie Boychuck, an attendant at one of the company's filling stations.

He gave his age as 23, although friends believed him to be 19. Miss Boychuck listed her age as 22.

Miss Boychuck, at work in the station in suburban Merion, denied knowing anything about the application, and to the question, "are you going to marry him," replied:
 "I'm sorry. I can't talk to you now, during business hours."

Black Shank Reduces Guilford Weed Crop

GREENSBORO, July 18.—(P)—Black Shank, a plant disease which has spread rapidly in Guilford county this year, is causing heavy damage in the tobacco fields, according to Farm Agent J. I. Wagoner, who today predicted that despite the 10 per cent increase in the season's tobacco allotment, the crop likely will be no greater than last year's.

Wagoner said that some growers have reported as much as a 75 per cent loss of the tobacco crop on their farms, and in some instances field have been a total loss as a result of the Black Shank spread.

HOUSE CONCLUDES TAX BILL DEBATE

Opening the attack on the proposal, Rep. Cooper (D-Tenn.) told the House that it would reduce the estimated yield of the bill by about $390,000,000.

"This motion," he said, "is not in the interest of the small corporations. It is for the benefit of the large and wealthy corporations making large profits out of the way."

Knutson said that the committee's decision to go to 45 per cent "signed the death warrant of thousands and thousands of small corporations who are injured rather than aided by the war."

The sales tax figured at length in the debate with Rep. Carlson (R-Kans.) telling the House that "we have reached that emergency" which requires such a levy.

Carlson said a sales tax was not based on ability to pay, was unorthodox and should not be levied except in emergencies.

L. E. Dayton, assistant district attorney, said Greth confessed he shot Miss Hammer because he feared the scandal of his impending divorce would ruin her life.

Gas Rationing Rules Are Tightened By OPA

WASHINGTON, July 18.—(P)—The Office of Price Administration today tightened gasoline rationing regulations effective July 22 by ruling that persons living near suburbs and elevated or suburban railroads will not get supplemental rations, even if they have formed a car-pooling club, unless they can prove that those means of public transportation are inadequate.

Previously any applicant who proved his need for more than the minimum, four-gallon basic ration, and who had formed a ride-sharing club was considered qualified for supplemental supplies of motor fuel.

WASHINGTON, July 18.—(P)—Private advices to Free French headquarters here told today how people in the principal cities of occupied and unoccupied France defied authorities with demonstrations against the Laval government and Germany on Bastille day, traditional French holiday.

The crowds gathered in three places to foil police.

LEGION TO STAGE RECORD CAMPAIGN

Will Collect Phonograph Discs For America's Fighting Men

A 37-million phonograph record quota has been set by the American Legion in its nation-wide "Records-For-Our-Fighting-Men" campaign, which will be conducted locally by Wilmington Legionnaires, it was announced here last night by Post Commander W. J. Riley.

The drive—instituted to turn old records into "platters" of the latest songs for the armed forces—will be launched Monday and is to end August.

Mr. Riley said the discs will be gathered here through service stations at a later date but that for the present he will be responsible for contributors telephoning him at 9708.

Working in cooperation with nationally-known musical artists including Kay Kyser and Kate Smith, the Legion has formed a non-profit organization to dispose of the scrap recordings and select, purchase and distribute the best in music for men in the services.

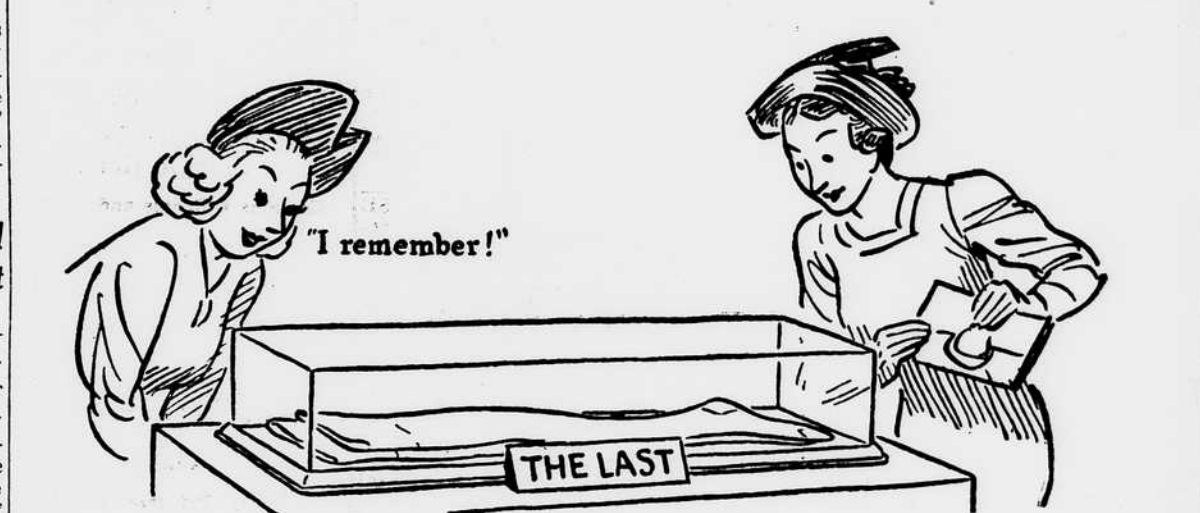

"We're not asking for money," Mr. Riley pointed out. "But old records that are not in use could be turned into a lot of pleasure of the boys in uniform."

The Last Pair of Silk Stockings

The army needs all of the silk available. The silk worms are all in Japan—poor worms. Silk stockings are getting scarcer and scarcer.

When the last pair of silk stockings is used, will legs go bare? Not at all! Hosiery makers will have ingenious substitute materials and styles. Alert dealers will find them for you, and both will tell you all about them in newspaper advertising.

With many things scarce because of the war, and many new things being created to take their place, newspaper advertising is the economical way to bring buyers and sellers together.

By guiding the readers to the best values, and saving their readers money that can help to support the war effort, newspaper advertisements are most important during the war.
