

SLAYER OF MAN IS APPREHENDED

Police Arrest O. P. Maxwell In Wadesboro For Death Of Man Here

Held in New Hanover county jail at the next term of Superior Court November 9 is Otto P. Maxwell, 40 year old white man, sought by police here since last Friday when he allegedly stabbed to death Johnnie Moore, shipyard worker whom he found in a parked car with his wife.

Maxwell, who fled from the scene of the murder Friday night was arrested Tuesday afternoon in Wadesboro, Wilmington police disclosed, where he was recognized by police from a description sent by the department here.

He will be held without a preliminary hearing for action on November 9 since a coroner's jury Saturday recommended that he be bound over to the grand jury.

Maxwell, Chief Charles H. Casteen said, admitted the slaying to Chief of Police C. V. Smith of Wadesboro and declared that he "had to do it."

Deputy Sheriff Sam Yopp was dispatched to Wadesboro to bring Maxwell, a former Gastonia resident, to county jail yesterday morning after Chief Casteen was informed of his arrest by telephone early Tuesday night.

DIEPPE LOSSES RUN VERY HIGH

Daily Express, which asked "who will dare say that the present House is the best obtainable?"

On the floor of the House there were complaints that the war-time political truce is "immoral" and that the Conservative Party machine was treating the House "as a sort of a home for pensioners."

Churchill's own son, Capt. Randolph Churchill, assailed his own Conservative Party for "black marketeering in constituencies and sale of seats to rich men." He supported the bill, but said that after the war "the old ladies of politics" must give way.

In his statement about Dieppe, the Prime Minister gave a new hint of the stiffness of the German coastal defenses, which the United Nations intend to storm some day.

He said the thousands of Allied troops which descended upon Dieppe were protected by a "faultless" air cover, and he demonstrated firm faith in the "Churchill tanks" which they took along.

But, he explained, they ran up against German steel and concrete of "altogether unexpected strength" in the Dieppe roadblocks, which were too solid to be demolished by the Allied six-pounder guns.

From Dieppe, Churchill turned to the protection of British and U. S. soldiers training at home for eventual assault on the continent. He gave assurance that effective measures had been taken to counter uprisings and espionage in Northern Ireland, which some members alleged had been directed from Eire.

SENATE PERMITS FDR TO GO AHEAD

other costs since January 1, 1941, with "adequate weighting" being given to farm labor.

Before the vote on passage, the Senate rejected 69 to 12, a proposal to write in a definite formula for limiting wage and salary increases. It turned down an effort by Senator Ball R-Minn) to incorporate the War Labor Board's "little steel" formula, which would place a ceiling on pay increases at a point 15 per cent above the January 1, 1941 level.

Such a provision is contained in the House bill, and this is one of the major differences between it and the Senate measure.

Both bills provided that no price ceilings could be fixed on agricultural products below parity. Parity is a price designed to give a unit of farm production the same value, in terms of purchasing power, that it had in 1909-14.

Under both measures, prices, wages and salaries could not be reduced by the President below the highest point they had reached between January 1 and September 15 of this year. The House directed that stabilization be effected at August 15 levels as far as practical and its bill carried no command to the President to act before November 1 as did the Senate version.

As a floor under farm prices, both bills authorized an increase in government loans on major crops from the present 85 per cent of parity to 90 per cent.

Late in the day the Senate rejected, 65 to 15, a sweeping amendment offered by Senator Clark (D-Mo) which would simply have directed the President to issue a general order by November 1 stabilizing all prices, wages and salaries at the highest levels which existed between January 1 and September 15, 1942.

The Missouriian contended the administration's bill was "whopper-jawed, lopsided and cross-eyed," and would probably result in "more turmoil than before."

HITLER PROMISES NO CAPITULATION

Northwest of the city the Soviet relief offensive lost little if any momentum, although the battles on the parched steppe between Don and Volga rivers were achieving peak fury, particularly in the air.

The German Air Force made 1,500 flights in a single day, dropping thousands of bombs on the attacking Russian formations.

Yet the Russians were reported to have recaptured more villages and hills.

(The German High Command claimed "new sectors of the town's northern district were stormed," and said the Russians had lost 34 tanks in "unsuccessful" relief attacks at Stalingrad.

(Turkish sources reported that two divisions of the German African Corps now were fighting at Stalingrad, along with 14 divisions brought from France.

(Both Soviet and British quarters in London on the last day of his two most cherished aims—conquest of the Russian Tiflis-Baku oil region and a new onslaught on Moscow).

Russian dispatches from the Caucasian mountain valley to Terek and the high passes on the Black Sea said the battles were becoming more severe and the snow lines on the mountains coming ever closer to the fighting.

many of his chief lieutenants, including Field Marshal Erwin Rommel, up from Africa as a surprise visitor, and thousands of his war veterans.

To bolster the home front against greater and greater RAF raids, Hitler promised them that the "hour will come when we shall strike back."

In my opinion 1942 and the winter of 1941-42 have been the severest trial for our nation. Worse situations cannot and will not come.

For this year we have drafted a very simple program.

First, hold in all circumstances what must be held; that is, let the enemy run against us wherever we do not intend to advance and let him storm as long as he wants to, hold adamantly and wait to see who tires out first.

Second, absolutely attack in all circumstances where attack is necessary.

You may rest assured that no human being will be able to out us from there (Stalingrad).

casts), Sept. 30.—(AP)—Highlights of the Sportsplast speech by Adolf Hitler today follow:

Naturally it is very simple to make up an Atlantic Charter. But this stupidity will only be valid for some years and then will be eliminated by the force of realities.

They say that the second front will come. . . I can only say, Mr. Churchill, I have never been afraid of you. You are right in saying that we are compelled to think things over. For if I had an opponent of military distinction, I might be able to calculate where he might attack. If, however, one is confronted by military idiots, one naturally cannot know where they will attack.

Today Churchill is again conducting aerial warfare. I want to express one thing, namely: also
