

Health Defense Meeting Slated Tuesday Morning

Miss Alice Miller, Health Consultant, Will Be Principal Speaker Of Session

A threatened rise in the tuberculosis rate for the country and a possible increase in New Hanover county, due to war conditions, will receive the attention of members of the Health Defense League at the regular meeting to be held at 10 o'clock Tuesday morning, April 6 at Sorosis clubhouse on North Third street.

Miss Alice H. Miller, Associate Health Education Consultant with the U. S. Public Health Service stationed in Kinston, will be the principal speaker of the morning. Miss Miller was formerly with the Tuberculosis League of Chicago and Cook County, Illinois, and has had extensive experience in educational work on tuberculosis.

The month of April is annually set aside for an educational campaign for the finding and treating of cases of tuberculosis in the early stages before the disease is advanced.

Dr. A. H. Elliot, County Health Officer, stressed the importance of more education on tuberculosis. Public Opinion Polls show that many persons have inaccurate information on this disease.

Additional plans will be discussed for continuation of the food conservation work started last month. All zone, sector and block chairmen are urged to be present, and the public is invited to attend.

Federated Women's Clubs Urged To Purchase Many More War Bonds

By MRS. CHARLES G. DOAK "Outfitting the Outfit" is the name of the plan for raising the second war loan fund of 13 billions of dollars. During the past week Mrs. Karl Bishop, State chairman of the Women's Division of the War Savings Staff of the U. S. Treasury, and chairman of the stamps and bonds committee of the North Carolina Federation of Women's Clubs, mailed the complete plan to all club presidents, accompanied by a letter of special appeal from Miss Harriet Elliott, in which Miss Elliott says: "Your organization has done a splendid war savings job so far, but we have no hesitation in asking you to redouble your efforts for the second war loan drive. The slogan for the drive is, 'They Give Their Lives—We Lend Our Money.' Your membership will want to give extra bonds, it will want to give more of its surplus."

Miss Vee Vee Allen Becomes Bride Of Lieut. Charles Fulwood Bell

Wedding Held Yesterday Afternoon At Trinity Methodist Church Here

Miss Vee Vee Allen, daughter of Mrs. and Mrs. Ernest M. Allen, and Lieut. Charles Fulwood Bell, son of Mrs. and Mrs. Hugh E. Bell, Sr., were married Saturday afternoon at 5:30 o'clock at Trinity Methodist church, with Dr. Fred W. Pashall officiating.

The pre-nuptial music was arranged by Mrs. Miriam W. Humphreys and Mrs. Sam Troy, Jr. Organ solos were "To the Evening Star" from "Tanhauser" by Wagner, "Romance" by Wieniawski, Schubert's "Serenade", and "Liebestraum" by Liszt rendered during the ceremony.

The bride entered with her father by whom she was given in marriage. She was attended by her sister, Mrs. S. Warren Sanders, Jr., matron-of-honor, and the following bridesmaids: Miss Jane Cavenaugh, formerly of Tampa, Florida; Mrs. J. H. LeGwin of New York; Miss Mary Nisbet, Miss Harriet Marshburn, Miss Betty Chinnis and Mrs. Jack Yates.

The bride's dress was fashioned of white slipper satin and Chantilly lace. The basque waist formed a sweetheart line at the yoke where it was joined to the Chantilly lace with seed pearls applied, forming a bow-knot design below the yoke line. The long tight-fitting sleeves of satin, pointed over the wrists and fastened with rows of tiny satin buttons, were joined to the upper sleeves of lace with the seed pearls and followed the line of the yoke. Small satin buttons fastened the deep curved yoke at the back. The slightly long waist line was pointed back and front from which the full gathered skirt fell in bias folds to form the train. The short circular veil of illusion was made cap shape and held to the head with a wreath of orange blossoms in clustered effect. The bride carried a prayer book covered with gardenias showered with swansonia.

Mrs. Sanders wore a dress of jonquil yellow taffeta, long-torsoed, lined, with flowing overskirt of marquisette. The shirred bodice formed a sweetheart neckline and was caught with corded bows down the front. She carried a colonial bouquet of mixed yellow and bronze flowers edged with tulle and tied with bronze satin ribbons, and wore matching flowers in her hair.

The bridesmaids' dresses were green and orchid taffeta with marquisette overskirts in the same design as that of the matron-of-honor. Their flowers were colonial bouquets of mixed yellow flowers edged with tulle and tied with yellow satin streamers. Pale yellow feathered butterflies were worn as hair ornaments.

Announcer Hears Nazis Sentence Her To Death, But She Is In London

LONDON, April 3.—A beautiful, dark-eyed woman sitting in her London home heard the German radio announce today that she had been sentenced to death in absentia.

"I've been expecting it," she said brightly.

The woman is Madame Wlada Karadotyanova, daughter of a former Premier of Bulgaria. Since 1941, when she escaped from a German concentration camp, she has been in London making anti-axis broadcasts in her native language, beamed to Bulgaria.

Her name was used only once in the broadcasts. But German monitors immediately caught it and a German military tribunal, sitting in Sofia, convicted her on a charge of high treason. She heard the decision in a German news broadcast.

She said she was not worried about the death sentence—for herself. But her mother, brother and sister still are in Bulgaria.

"They may suffer," she said. "If so, it will be another account to be settled with the Germans some day."
