

HEALTH SURVEY FACING DELAY

Completion of the U. S. Public Health Service's survey of the administration and practices of the Consolidated Board of Health awaits the arrival of a sanitary engineer and one or two doctors and there is no indication that they will arrive in the near future, Dr. A. H. Elliott, city-county health officer, stated yesterday.

The work of the sanitary engineer will be to inspect restaurants and dairies, and doctors will examine the general disease control program and general administration of the board of health.

Two sanitary engineers and one public health nurse have finished their examinations, he said. Upon completion of surveys by individual representatives reports are required to be made to Dr. W. H. Sharpe, Jr., of Bethesda, Md., who is in charge of U. S. Public Health Service in District No. 2.

The extensive surveys of the department were asked by the city-county health officer after Mayor Bruce B. Cameron declared in a meeting of the board that correction of existing inefficiencies should be made immediately, whatever the cost.

Back of Mayor Cameron's strong comments was his encountering of poor sanitary conditions in certain residential sections of the city that he visited on an inspection tour of buildings for possible condemnation.

INVASION WEAPONS—14 The 4.2 Mortar

Affectionately called the "goon gun" by troops, the 4.2 mortar packs the punch of light artillery, lobbing 24-pound projectiles as far as two-and-a-half miles.

A muzzle loader, the 4.2 has a rifled barrel for greater accuracy and can get six shells into the air before the first has landed. At the base of the projectile is a cartridge, similar to a shotgun shell, which propels the high explosive or smoke shell. The range may be increased by adding powder rings, shaped like doughnuts over this cartridge.

BOYER TO SPEAK AT TABERNACLE

Rev. William C. Boyer of Philadelphia, missionary to the Belgian Congo, Africa, since 1918, will deliver an address tomorrow evening at 8 o'clock at the Wilmington Gospel tabernacle of the Christian and Missionary Alliance, Sixth and Orange streets, and tell of his work during a long period of years on the "dark continent."

City councilmen were told at the last meeting that special sessions would be called during June to discuss the budget. During June, July and August, the council will convene at scheduled meetings only twice a month.
