

U.S. Engineers To Start River, Harbor Work Soon

TOTALS $750,000

Improvement Of Cape Fear At And Below Wilmington Is Planned

Work on three quarters of a million dollars in rivers and harbors ingrovement projects in eastern North Carolina will get under way shortly by the U. S. Army Engineers, it was announced yesterday by Col. E. E. Haring, district engineer here.

Among the extensive rivers and harbors work planned is improve ment of the Cape Fear river at and below Wilmington, Col. Haring announced.

It is proposed to dredge in the ocean bar channel for about two months, restoring the channel to project depth and width of 30 feet and 400 feet respectively. This work was formerly performed by the district-owned seagoing dredge Comstock. The latter is now engaged on war duty, and it is expected that the dredging will be done by another seagoing hopper dredge of the Engineers, accord ing to Col. Haring. Will Remove Shoals There are also a few shoals in iver channel which will be re-

London Receives Rest From Robot Bomb Raids

LONDON, Aug. 26 - (AP) --London and southern England went through the second straight day without a robot bomb attack, the longest quiet interval since the assaults began in mid-June, and there was some cautious hope that the Germans had abandoned their launching bases across the Channel as a result of terrific Allied aerial bombardments and the outflanking of Nazi lines east of the Seine river. Unofficial reports circulated but, many persons believe that even if this is true the Germans will be able to launch their flying bombs from more distant bases by merely in-creasing their fuel.
