Police Get Pawnbrokers To File Daily Reports

Moving to halt thieves from obtaining money through loans from pawnbrokers on stolen articles, the city police depart-

The new procedure was re-vealed yesterday when Police Chief C. H. Casteen appeared before the Grand Jury to show members the form used in complying with a recommenda-

The need of special policing of Castle and Dawson streets from Sixth to Sixteenth streets, was cited by the jurors, and this recommendation was made to law enforcement officers. The phrase used was

"bad existing conditions and lawlessness in this section of the city."

It also was recommended that law enforcement officers have taxicab drivers conform more closely to the law. There were several reports which showed that many cabs were being "recklessly and carelessly driven. The grand jury call-ed this a menace to public safe-

A Wilmington war hero, S-Sgt. Davis Polvogt, twice shot down in the Pacific and thrice decorated, gave the Kiwanis club yesterday a thrill-ing account of his battle experiences.

Introduced as an airman who had flown on more missions than any other flier in the Seventh Air Force, Sergeant Polvogt told of having taken part in the Gilbert and Marshall Islands campaigns and in the conquest of Guam and Saipan Islands. Wounded slightly, he was recently flown back to his home here.

The historic turn of the fortunes of war in the Pacific was illustrated by the airman's statement that when he participated in the first army air raid on Wake Island after its capture by the Japanese, 170 Zeros came up to meet the 12 raiding bombers, but "today, when a B-24 flies over Wake, nothing comes up; either they haven't got it or they are afraid to come up.
