

International Relations Group To Hear Dr. Voss

"Palestine, the Middle East, and Minorities" is the subject to be discussed by Dr. Carl H. Voss lecturer, when he appears before the North Carolina Sorosis membership this afternoon at 4 o'clock under the auspices of the International Relations department.

Dr. Voss has done graduate work at the University of Chicago, Union Theological Seminary (N. Y.), Yale university of the University of Pittsburgh. He has also studied in Denmark and Switzerland.

Never a believer in the "ivory tower" for clergymen, Dr. Voss has always crusaded for the defense and extension of the democratic ideal and has opposed fascism and communism both at home and abroad.

According to Mrs. Charles G. Doak, executive secretary, North Carolina Federation of Women's clubs, "Dr. Carl H. Voss is a provoker of thought, who charms with his voice and language, and convinces with his knowledge, reasoning, and sincerity. His invigorating, youthful personality challenges young and old to follow his crusading leadership in the search for beauty, truth, and justice."

A cordial invitation is extended to the public.

Johnnycake
Flounder Mornay
Buttered Broccoli
Johnnycake
Baked Grapefruit
(Recipes Serve Four)
Flounder Mornay
4 filets of flounder (1 1/4 Lbs.)
Salt and pepper
2 teaspoons butter or substitute
1-2 teaspoons flour
1-2 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
1-4 teaspoon dry mustard
1 teaspoon garlic vinegar
1-2 pint cream
1-2 cup diced cheese
Place filets in individual greased baking dishes (a large baking dish may also be used) and sprinkle with salt and pepper. Melt butter in saucepan. Remove from fire and add flour, mixing to a smooth paste. Add mustard, Worcestershire sauce and vinegar and stir thoroughly. Return to flame and add cream, stirring constantly until sauce has thickened. Add cheese and cook over low flame until cheese has melted. Pour sauce over fish. Place in 400-degree oven and bake until top is brown (approximately 15 minutes.)

Johnnycake
3-4 cup yellow corn meal
Salt to taste
Boiling water
3 tablespoons fat
Add boiling water to corn meal until you have a batter which can be made into firm cakes. Season with salt. Form into cakes about three inches in diameter, and fry in fat to a golden brown.

St. Agnes' Auxiliary Will Convene Tonight

St. Agnes' auxiliary of St. Paul's Episcopal church will meet tonight at 7:15 o'clock in the parish house at 16th and Market streets. A short business meeting will be held after which the study for the Lenten season will be continued.

A humped cake is caused by too much flour or a too hot oven at start of baking.

FLIGHT NURSE

By PAUL B. MASON
CINCINNATI, O. — They are "nomadic but nice," fly 75 to 100 hours a month, live out of a canvas B-4 bag, sleep when and where they can, see a lot of country, keep their mental and physical equilibrium sometimes under difficulty, and hide their feelings from GI patients.

Meet approximately 100 flight nurses of the ferrying division of the Air Transport Command who have handled something like 50,000 wounded returnees from all the far-flung battlefronts of the world.

Talk with them, and somehow you get the idea they care for their planeloads of patients like a mother hen cares for her brood of chicks.

They recall jokes and gags which "the boys" have played either upon them or among themselves. Some of the stories will clutch at the heartstrings.

Like that of the young soldier, both legs blown off by shrapnel who, as his plane circled his home city of Dallas, Tex., exclaimed "Well, cut off my legs and call me Shorty if I ain't home!"

Not conscious at all of his grim pun.

Flight nurses—those in the ferrying division operate solely within continental United States—are stationed at four ATCFERD bases; the second ferrying group at Wilmington, Del., the third, at Romulus, Mich. the fourth at Memphis Tenn. and the twenty-first, at Palm Springs, Calif.

All are under supervision of Lt. Col. Andres G. Oliver, air surgeon at ferrying division headquarters here.

Many of the 100 are beribboned veterans of overseas service; more than a few have known what it means to be targets in combat. Seven of 33 nurses attached to the Fourth Group are at once typical and unique among girls in this service.

Each of the seven wears the Air Medal with four Oak Leaf Clusters, earned in 14 months of hazardous flying over combat areas of the southwest Pacific.

One, Lt. Margaret A. Richey of Georgetown, Tex., head nurse of the Fourth, was the first white woman to set foot on Bougainville. Along with the other six, she was with the 801st Air Evacuation Unit, oldest such outfit and first to leave the United States after war was declared.

The other six were Lts. Beryl Laird of Homewood, Ill., who in civilian practice worked in Harvey and Cook county (Ill.) hospitals; Ethel Kovach of Owendale, Mich., currently with the 21st; Ann Ganzbul of Joliet, Ill.; Lucille Suida and Joyce Boisvert of Chicago, and Catherine Kolitsch of Appleton, Wis.

The 801st operated out of New Caledonia for the most part, evacuating men from the New Hebrides and the Solomons.

"In those days we flew without enlisted medical technicians," recalled Lt. Richey. "Going in, we'd carry troops and supplies. Coming out, we'd have patients sailors, marines, soldiers. New Zealanders, everybody. And you never saw a more grateful bunch. They couldn't thank us enough for even a sip of water."

Another Fourth Group flight nurse, Second Lt. Henrietta S. Clair of Winner, S. Dak., 28-year-old graduate of the University of Minnesota and 18 months in the Army, earned a citation for bravery in the crash of a C-45, with 21 patients aboard.

The plane crashed on takeoff. It started to burn, and among patients aboard were litter cases, unable to help themselves. Lt. St. Clair and her enlisted technician too keery man to safety, even when it appeared likely the plane would explode.

"How did I feel?" she parried. "I didn't feel anything. We just worked. But I got scared afterward when I got to thinking what might have happened."

Typical of the girls in many respects is pretty and blonde Lt. Bessie Alene Holleman of Pickens landers, everybody. And you never saw a more grateful bunch. They couldn't thank us enough for even a sip of water."

Miss, attached to the 21st Group at Palm Springs.

Lt. Holleman had just entered private practice when the demand for trained nurses for the armed forces increased.

"But I'm satisfied," she said the other day. "I wouldn't take big money for my experience." She flies an average of 15,000 miles monthly into all parts of the United States.

One day she may be at LaGuardia Field in New York, loading and caring for men just flown from Europe; or in Miami, to receive patients who have been flown, via Africa, from the Far East. Or at Hamilton Field, near San Francisco, for men returned by air from the Pacific Theater.

Air evacuation planes fly only in daylight never at night nor in bad weather. During times when patients are not in the air—as overnight or when grounded because of storm conditions, they are quartered in the nearest Army hospital.

Lt. Ann Markowitz, 2nd Ferrying Group flight nurse, supervises unloading of a patient from a hospital plane.

Black Market Patrons Set Bad Example

By RUTH MILLETT

A recent cartoon expressed the average citizen's reaction to the black market better than a thousand words could tell it. The cartoon showed both the black marketer and the buyer as fat pigs.

What can parents who cheat on rationing and who patronize black markets expect of their children, if they themselves set such bad examples? For anyone who selfishly seeks more than his share of goods made scarce by war is a cheater.

Parents should teach their children the sound principles of thrift and the obvious necessity for cooperation. Children should learn to make small personal sacrifices gracefully, especially when those sacrifices are necessary for the nation's good.

Parents should give their children reasons to be proud of them—not reasons to be ashamed. Children should be able to feel pride in the part they and their parents are playing to help win the war.

Instead, youngsters too often hear dad boast about his success in beating the gas rationing plan or mother telling her neighbors how she bought nylons on the black market.

Can black market patrons honestly believe that they are contributing to the sense of good citizenship on the part of their youngsters? The damage they are doing is irreparable—their gain is trifling when compared to the harm they are doing their own families.

GIRL SCOUTS

Trustees of Tomorrow

On my honor, I will try:
To do my duty to God
and my country,
To help other people at all times,
To obey the
GIRL SCOUT LAWS

In 1912 eight girls met in Savannah, Georgia, to organize the first Girl Scout troop in the United States. Today, they number more than a million, one of the largest organizations for girls in the world. These girls form a sisterhood with Girl Scout and Girl Guide groups in practically every civilized, democratic nation.

Their program gives them the background and advancement for things they do well. Wilmington has had the assistance of these young women of America during salvage drives, recruiting WAC medics, USO work—so many jobs to further better living and backing our war workers and fighting forces.

It's the Girl Scouts who do the little jobs that mean so much—caring for children while mothers are in war work, tending the Victory Gardens to preserve food here at home.

Honor, decency and kindness is the code to guide them throughout their lives.

Congratulations, Girl Scouts, on Your 33rd Birthday !!!
