Senate Approves Bill For Four-Star Rank In Marines, Coast Guard

WASHINGTON, March 15. — (AP)—The Senate approved and sent to the White House today legislation establishing the rank of full general in the Marine Corps and full admiral in the Coast Guard. First recipients of the new four-star grade will be Lt. Gen. Alexander A. Vandegrift, commander of the Marine Corps, and Vice Admiral R. R. Waesche, Coast Guard commandant.

Penalty For Barring Senators From Agency Hearings Is Proposed

WASHINGTON, March 15. — (AP)—A year in jail plus a fine of $1,000 was proposed today in Congress as penalty for any Government official refusing to let a Congressman attend an agency hearing. Rep. Walter (D-Pa.) introduced the legislation and said it was aimed at preventing repetition of the recent case in which OPA clerk denied three of his colleagues admittance to an OPA industry advisory committee session. The incident left Reps. Morrison (D-La.), Jennings (R-Tenn.) and Earhman (D-Tenn.) furious and prompted a letter of apology from OPA Administrator Chester Bowles. "It won't be necessary to have any explanations in the future," Walter commented.

COUNTY IS HOST TO CONVALESCENTS

As part of a reconditioning program for hospitalized servicemen, 80 convalescent soldiers from the General hospital at Fort Bragg visited Wilmington and Wrightsville Beach Wednesday.

Accompanied by W. J. Cartier, executive secretary of the Chamber of Commerce and J. E. L. Wade, the group, under the direction of Lt. J. L. Irwin and four other officers, first viewed the city from the roof of the Murchison building, through the courtesy of the building manager.

Arriving at noon in two army buses, the sightseers were escorted through the new American Legion home by Post Commander Norwood S. Westbrook. Through the cooperation of officials of the North Carolina Shipbuilding Co., the visitors toured the whole shipyard and viewed the different processes of shipbuilding. Accompanied by guards who answered the many questions of the soldiers, photographs of the group were made and will be featured in the next issue of the hospital magazine.

They were greeted at the gate by Paul A. Wilson, secretary of the company and were escorted through the yard by C. T. Lewis. Following the tour, they were treated to light refreshments at the shipyard cafeteria.

It was discovered on a trip to Wrightsville Beach, immediately following the shipyard expedition, that 17 of the group had never seen the ocean before.

It was understood that the majority of the enlisted men had not seen overseas action, being casualties of training in this country. Most of the officers, however, it was believed, had been overseas.

Returning from the beach, the soldiers drove through the Forest Hills residential area, viewed New Hanover High school and admired the scenic drive on Market street. At 4 p. m. the visitors were entertained at the Second and Orange U. S. O. club where they enjoyed singing, dancing and refreshments.

Mr. Cartier praised the U. S. O. officials and hostesses for presenting such a splendid program on short notice and commended shipyard officials for their cooperation and the city police for arranging for parking spaces for the buses.

Before leaving for Fort Bragg at 4:30 p. m., each visitor was given an envelope containing folders and other literature on Wilmington and vicinity.

Plans are being made for another group to visit Wilmington within a month and is thought that they will visit Arton plantation and the beaches and perhaps see a ship launching.

Those who saw the ocean for the first time yesterday are:

- Pvt. C. L. Cook, St. David, Ill.;
- Pvt. Henry A. Drake, Niagara Falls Ontario, Canada;
- Sgt. Cecil Murphy, San Angelo, Texas;

FLYING AMBULANCES
The use of webbed straps from which litters, for the carrying of wounded men, can be hung, makes it possible to convert a cargo-carrying plane quickly into a flying ambulance. Straps prove less hazardous to medical personnel than metal litter framework, as well as easier to handle during loading operations. They also save weight and space.
