Sunday School Lesson

By WILLIAM E. GILROY, D. D.
 Peter says in his Second Epistle that "holy men of God spake as they were moved by the Holy Ghost." That is the origin of the Bible, and the Bible itself is the proof of what Peter says. It bears upon it the marks of its origin in the lives of holy men. It has lived through the ages because it is the book of life; because it has brought to successive generations of men and women the light, and help, and guidance they have needed. It is the Book that tells of God, and of Jesus Christ, and of the Christian way of living.

We speak of the Bible as "it," when we really ought to say "they" — for the Bible is not one book, but many. Our Bible consists of 66 books, 39 in the Old Testament and 27 in the New Testament. These books originally were separate writings, and the writing of them occupied at least several centuries. The earliest and the latest are thus far apart in time, and the books are of widely diverse nature. Some are history, some are prophecy, some are poetry, some are romance, some are sermons.

What all the books of the Bible have in common is that they tell the story of how men were seeking God and finding Him, and making the revelation of God known. Much of the Bible tells how men failed to seek and find God — for it is a book of great realism, dealing with human sin and tragedy, as well as with triumphant faith and achievement.

If we read the Bible aright, we shall realize that it is not all of one piece. It is a record of man's quest of God, and men did not find God all at once. Patriarchs did things that would have been unworthy of Apostles, because they knew God only partially. Even the Apostles were a long time coming to the full truth concerning God, though they had Jesus to help them and guide them. It is very important to grasp this fact of the progressive revelation in the Bible. From Genesis to Revelation is like the progress from the candle to the powerful electric light. It is a record of light, but of increasing light.

This coming week is "Bible Week." Throughout the nation men of prominence are paying their tribute to the greatest of all books; but the noblest tribute we can pay is to put its truth and teachings into our daily words and deeds.

It's Me, O Lord!
 By Chaplain Frank M. Thompson

IT'S ME, O LORD!
 Negro spiritual:
 "It ain't my father, it ain't my mother, in need of prayer, it's me, O Lord."
 It generally is.

Hall Caine, in a prologue to a book tells of a man who was menaced by a thrill. His crops were destroyed, barns burned, cattle killed. One night he lay in wait for his enemy, saw him, clutched him by the throat, threw him to the earth. As he drew his knife to put him to death, moonlight broke through the clouds and he found himself looking down into his own face.

That is only fiction but it brings home the well-known truth that a man's worst enemy is himself. That he is responsible for most of his ills.
 Sickness, in a large measure, is the result of carelessness or the violation of the laws of health. The misunderstandings, enmities which disturb and make life wretched, are due to our own willful conduct. And most of them could be remedied by a little effort, a gracious acknowledgment that we were to blame at least in part.

A cantankerous household that majors in fault finding, a display of temper, could be made to function normally, if the parties concerned would go to the mourners' bench, and confess, it's me, O Lord.
 And in answer to the one who did not get a square deal, that the cards were stacked against him, and no doubt there are many such, Napoleon observed that "None but myself ever did me any harm."
 So we are right back where we started.

"It ain't my brother, it ain't my sister, it's me, O Lord."

JAMES FUNERAL SET FOR TODAY

GEORGE P. JAMES

Funeral services for George P. James, 67, Passenger Traffic Manager of the Atlantic Coast Line railroad, who died at his home, 220 North 15th street, Wednesday, will be conducted from St. John's Episcopal church at 4 p. m. today. The Right Rev. Thomas C. Darst, Bishop of the East Carolina diocese, and the Rev. E. W. Halleck, rector, will officiate.

Active pallbearers will be F. Lacy King, John N. Alexis, Robert Strange, Walter P. Storm, Thomas R. Orrell, Pomeroy Nichols, Julian M. Fields and Richard B. Gwathmey.
 Honorary pallbearers will be George B. Elliot, F. W. Brown, R. J. Doss, W. D. McCraig C. G. Sibley, F. H. Fechtig, Robert Scott, McB. Wilson, Thomas H. Wright, J. Laurence Sprunt, C. Van Leuven and Frank E. Mosi.

"The Atlantic Coast Line has lost one of its most efficient and beloved officers; one whose acquaintance among railroad people, particularly the passenger traffic fraternity of the railroads, was nationwide, and one who probably had as many friends and admirers as any passenger traffic officer on any railroad in the country," C. McD. Davis, president of the railroad company, said yesterday in expressing his sentiments concerning the death of Mr. James.

Mr. Davis recalled that, a few years ago, the American Association of Passenger Traffic Officers paid Mr. James its highest tribute by electing him its president. The wonderful work he did for that association endeared Mr. James to the railroad people of this country, Mr. Davis added.

"As a man," he continued, "I have known no other endowed with more courage and fortitude than Mr. James, particularly noticeable in his last illness."
 During the long illness of Mr. James, Mr. Davis, when he was in the city, was a daily visitor to the bedside and the bravery with which Mr. James was facing the imminent end, with full knowledge of what was approaching, afforded him unusual opportunity for observing and admiring the courage displayed by Mr. James.

"Mr. James was a true Christian, whose life had been such as to cause no fear of meeting his Maker," Mr. Davis said. He added that "these men have lived in George James' day finer men" but that he had not had opportunity to know them if such there were.

It was with considerable feeling and with an obvious sense of very real loss that Mr. Davis stated that he would miss Mr. James in every possible way—as a friend, as well as an associate and officer of the company.
 He pointed out that he and Mr. James had been unusually close friends from beyond, their continuous friendship having started two or three years before either had reached their teens.

A member of a prominent Wilmington family, Mr. James was the son of the late John Christopher and Sarah Cowan James. He made Wilmington his home during his early life and in 1905 he was transferred by the ACL to Washington, D. C. to reorganize the Passenger Traffic office at that city.
 After 35 years service in Washington, Mr. James returned to Wilmington as the head of the Passenger Traffic department. His entire career was spent in the service of the ACL and he had completed more than 51 years in its employ.

He was a member of St. John's Episcopal church, a member of the Masonic lodge and an honorary member of the Temple-Noyes Lodge No. 32 in Washington, and also was affiliated with several social, fraternal and business organizations in this City. He was an hereditary member of the North Carolina Society of the Cincinnati and a member of the Wilmington Light Infantry reserve having been an officer and a past president of that unit.

Mr. James was a descendant of some of the oldest families in Wilmington and the Lower Cape Fear region, many of whom were prominently connected with the social, civic and religious lives of their period. In addition to his parents, his grandparents also were born here.

Mr. James was born September 23, 1878. He married the former Jeanie Peck November 14, 1906. He is survived by his widow and one brother, Robert Cowan James of Americus, Ga.
 DURHAM, N. H. April 6.—(AP)—New Hampshire school children are ready doing their part to help Uncle Sam's sailor boys. The children picked 12,020 bushels of milkweed pods last fall—enough to make 6,000 life jackets.

BABSON EXPLAINS POSTWAR INTEREST

BY ROGER BABSON
 BABSON PARK, Mass., April 6. Interest rates are like the weather. As few rates are like the weather, hysteria over isobars, gradicents and cycles; so only a few watch the statistics determining money rates. To those outside the ranks of professionals the forecasion technique is a yawn. All you want from the weather man is notice when to get ready for a heat wave or a blizzard or a hurricane! Most readers want to know only whether securities are to go up or down. Yet interest rates, by definition, reflect the price of credit. Dull and theoretical as they sound, credit conditions may shape your whole tomorrow.

I expect that the board trend of interest rates, in the postwar period, will be upward. Whatever this may mean to some unfortunate railroad bondholders, the owners of ten-year war bonds need not lose a moment's sleep. The buyers of savings bonds, "Series E, F & G" can enjoy unique protection. Their capital is safeguarded by the resources of an all-powerful nation, and a special covenant. Such war bonds do not suffer the vagaries of the market place. The government in effect has pledged that the prices of these bonds will remain practically pegged regardless of roving interest rates.

True, some landmine of inflation might shatter the dollar itself. To raise that specter, however, is like worrying about which room is safest if your house should take a direct hit from a blockbuster. Suffice to say that whatever befalls—except a social or economic revolution—your ten-year war bonds are as secure as any obligation on earth and far safer than most. In purchasing these bonds you contribute to national welfare. Let us hope that the number of holders of these bonds will approximate 138 million, or the population of the U. S. With this general statement regarding these Savings Bonds (and I am not commenting one way or the other as to the long term "Governments"), let me return to my discussion of future interest rates.

Calvin Coolidge had a Vermont gift for plain talk. Everybody who (in Coolidge language) "hires money" is concerned with the price-tag on credit. Firming rates will add their quota to the cost of doing business. Hence the impact will spread to cost of living, to funds available for wages, to investment lists. Holders of non-convertible issues may feel the change directly. All groups, however, including housewives and school pupils, will share to some degree in the economic currents stirred by changing interest rates.

Some analysts contend that the government, via the Federal Reserve System, can hold down post war interest rates. In theory, potential credit can be expanded through lowering member bank reserve requirements and the legal reserve minimum. These very tactics, however, might incite a flight of funds out of highgrade bonds into other assets. Moreover, after the war, governmental appeals to patriotism will lose some of their wartime pulling power. Sooner or later the job of supplying longterm funds for capital purposes will, I think, be removed from the Federal Reserve System.

The government can for awhile balance, on its chin, a juggler's pole of credit,—as long as no gusts arise to upset the delicate poise.

17-Year-Old Boy Held In Gas Coupon Thefts

A 17-year-old white youth was jailed yesterday in default of $2,500 bond in connection with the theft of 6,000 gallons of gasoline tickets from the Sinclair Oil terminal, Second and Kidder streets, on March 12.

City detectives predicted that other teen-age accomplices of Charles Francis Mintz, of 1209 South Second street, would be jailed within 24 hours.
 Young Mintz was arraigned in Recorder's court yesterday on charges of breaking and entering, and larceny and receiving. The hearing was postponed until April 10.

Police said they recovered thirty-six R-2 gasoline coupons from Mintz, who they said had been selling them for fifty cents each. The youth was arrested at 5:15 p. m. Thursday at Third and Marsteller streets.

The oil terminal robbery included the theft of 4,400 R gas coupons and 1,625 A, B, and C tickets.

Such disturbing forces now can be discerned on the horizon. Reconversion, for example, may develop into great business activity, with corresponding calls for credit. Simultaneously, as statisticians foresee it, our country's stocks of monetary gold will decline. So whether you probe creditdemand or credit apply, you are led to the forecast of higher interest rates.

The public always expects current conditions to persist. If the day's communique is adverse, they look for a long war and vice versa. Every rise or fall of commodity and security prices generates faith in continued advance or decline. Thus, many who may dissent from my forecast of a strengthening rate of interest will discover, I believe, that their judgment is being unduly swayed by present conditions. Remember that the habit of pendulums is to swing. The one stable thing is—change!
