

Dependable, Reliable, Steady Husbands Are Made, Not Born

By RUTH MILLETT

A Hollywood beauty sues for divorce on the grounds that her husband says he wasn't "made for marriage." Look, lady. No man was ever made for marriage. Women are made for marriage, yes. It is what most of them want from the time that they are old enough to notice the boy next door.

But men aren't. Settling down to be a good husband and a good father isn't natural with them. Not at all. They have to be broken to the harness by the woman who succeeds in getting them to the altar.

That's the woman's job. Fortunately, most women realize that and don't throw up their hands helplessly the first time the man they married kicks up his heels a bit and looks longingly toward the open range.

It's true your husband came right out and claimed he wasn't made for marriage, proving himself either less tactful or more courageous than most men who have taken on wives.

CHALLENGE But don't think just because they haven't been told, other women don't know their husbands weren't made for marriage either.

They know, all right. But they don't let it discourage them. They just accept the fact as a challenge. And in 10 or 20 or 30 years they have steady, dependable husbands who aren't even conscious there is such a thing as an open range beyond the marriage which has neatly fenced them in.

So if you ever try marriage again, lady—don't be surprised if you once more find yourself living with a man who isn't made for marriage. There's no other kind.

If ETOAIN L... want-e ETA And if there were, wouldn't marriage be dull for women? Imagine marrying a man who was made for marriage. It wouldn't be any challenge at all.

FOOD GOES ABOARD

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 2.—(U.P.)—Approximately 150,000 long tons of food were shipped from the Port of New Orleans in June to feed hungry peoples of Europe, according to E. O. Women's Club Council Meet Is Concluded

Mrs. J. C. Williams and Miss Dorothy Forbes of Wilmington, Attend Session

RALEIGH, Sept. 7.—The Council of the North Carolina Federation of Women's Clubs closed its three-day meeting in Raleigh Thursday after the morning session at which "Young Conservation," the two-year project of the General Federation, was emphasized.

The speakers were Mrs. J. L. Blair Buck of Richmond, Va., first vice president of the General Federation, and Miss Alves Long of Columbia, S. C., adviser to the International Relations department of the General Federation. Following the addresses of the national officers, a symposium on youth conservation was conducted by Mrs. J. Henry Highsmith of Raleigh, chairman of the Youth Conservation committee.

Mrs. Buck explained why the General Federation chose "Youth Conservation" as a two-year project and outlined the purposes and plans of the General Federation in channeling information for programs on youth conservation "up and down" through state federations. She pictured the General Federation as a "clearing house" for such programs and information.

Miss Long spoke on "Enlisting Youth for Peace," and stressed the importance of teaching youth the value of the ballot, and to appreciate the ballot. "Youth must be taught that through the use of the ballot political power can be felt, and that political power expressed through the ballot can prevent war." She urged that youth be taught that the United Nations Charter can best be strengthened and made effective through the intelligent use of the ballot in electing congressional representatives and other officials who will work for peace.

Mrs. Karl Bishopric of Spray, president of the North Carolina Federation, presided.

Mrs. J. K. Kindley of Charlotte was appointed chairman of a new committee on Moving Picture Education; and Mrs. S. B. McPheeters of Goldsboro was named state secretary for Foreign and Territorial Clubs. Mrs. McPheeters' committee will cooperate in a nationwide Federation movement to create good-will and to promote friendship by helping to rebuild club-houses destroyed by war, and to assist in club activities in foreign countries and United States territories. The first project of the committee is to rebuild the Woman's Club house in Manila.

Mrs. Aubrey Mauney of Kings Mountain was appointed chairman of the new "Birthday Program," a project of the Federation's Welfare Department. Through the birthday program every child in a correctional institution in this State will receive a birthday gift from a North Carolina clubwoman. It was announced that total subscriptions to the Federation's Endowment Fund during the convention amounted to $2,575.

Those taking part in the symposium on "Youth Conservation" included Mrs. W. T. Bost of Raleigh, chairman Public Welfare department; Mrs. Norman James of Hickory, Junior vice chairman, Youth Conservation; Mrs. Gordon Madry of Aoshkie, American Citizenship; Mrs. Ivey Moore of North Wilkesboro, American Home Department; Mrs. George W. Gold of Whiteville, Junior representative, Youth Conservation Committee; Mrs. Geddie Strickland of Greensboro, Education; Miss Ronnie Sheffield of Raleigh, executive secretary, North Carolina Youth Commission and Edward Conover of the Raleigh Community Council.

Pages for the meeting were Miss Sara Anderson of Spray, president's page, and Mesdames Fred Fletcher, George A. Moore, Jr., Bernard Crocker, Jr., T. E. Green, Jr., Robert M. Council, Miss Elizabeth Kelly, Mrs. Roger Wall and Robert G. Fitzgerald, all of Raleigh.

Siren-Like Lines Featured In Lelong Fall Collection

End of the war has contributed a brighter outlook for Paris fashions, writes Rosette Hargrove, NEA Paris Bureau editor. Imports of raw materials have begun, and by next spring spinners will be in a position to fill orders, thus ushering in a new era for France's third-largest key industry. In this article, the first of several from the style capital, Miss Hargrove previews Lucien Lelong's fall collection.

By ROSETTE HARGROVE

PARIS, Sept. 7.—Lucien Lelong opened fall presentations with perhaps the most spectacular collection he ever produced and one typical of the best that Paris can offer. Even blouse fashion experts crowding three luxurious Avenue Maitenon salons could not refrain from spontaneous applause.

The departure from all-round peasant skirt fullness in favor of a basically slim form-fitted silhouette was the general leit motif of the collection. Subtle draped effects appeared over hips and fullness was seen massed at front or side. The bust once again is underlined and the waistline remains waspish though slightly lowered, with corresponding lengthening of hemline skirts covering the knees. Shoulders often emphasized underlined folds, continuing to the waist in jackets and in draped fishcos for both daytime and evening wear.

Set-in Sleeves

Sleeves were straight and narrow, set in at top of arm of euseit in one piece with the bodice. High daytime necklines hugging the base of the neck contrast with ultra-low décolleté for formal wear. Suits topped waist-length jackets fitted to the waist, with flared basques concentrating fullness at front. Large patch pockets trimmed informal clothes.

Afternoon suits show fingertip and longer jackets with a new front line caught up at both sides or at one side only in a draped effect. Alternately, Lelong launches finger-tip unfitted, diagonally fastened coat, topping pencil-slim skirts.

A shortage of luxury furs results in restrained trimming in the form of small tailored collars and cuffs or narrow edging. Otherwise, jackets or coats are lined with domestic pelts for extra warmth.

Cocktail and dinner dresses herald return of black for all formal occasions. Styles are reminiscent of merry widow fashions. Spectacular evening dresses alternate between bouffant skirts or those with siren-like lines, which have deep sweetheart oval or off-shoulder décolletés. Several models launched upstanding and halter-like draperies over a bare back.

The more romantic evening dresses were lavishly trimmed with exquisite embroidery, as, for example, a steel-grey faille model, trimmed with silver paillettes. A good deal of black jet paillette embroidery on all-black gowns made especially striking ensembles.

Embroidered Jacket

One short black velvet bell-shaped jacket was entirely embroidered with black cabochons and tassels, and was lined with buttercup yellow satin. It was worn over a slim gown, horizontally draped through waistline and over hips.

Lelong has introduced this finger-tip, unfitted, diagonally fastened coat, to be worn over pencil-slim skirts.

Hats accompany all models save formal gowns. These are a third of the size hitherto worn, and offer a choice of medium-sized pill boxes worn over or off forehead, overseas caps, or on-sided upturned brims with draped trimmings. Amusing Victorian bonnets are trimmed with aigrettes and birds of Paradise plumes, which are worn with long-sleeved dinner gowns.

While black dominates the collection, outstanding colors include all shades of green, brown and gray. Fabrics are mainly solid colors or two-toned checks. A few stripes were shown.

Religious Play Will Be Given At Grace Sunday

"That Home in Nazareth" by Dorothy Clarke Wilson (an allegory of the Divine Presence) will be given Sunday evening at 8 o'clock in the Sunday school auditorium of Grace Methodist church. This play will be directed by Frances Thompson and Margaret Smoot. Staging and properties by Eugene Mauney.

The members of the cast are as follows: Mary, mother, Aline Spencer; Miriam, sister, Jean Bobbitt; Joseph, brother, James Tuttle; Judas, brother, Olive Watkins; Simon, brother, Elmer Williamson.

A silver offering will be taken at the door. The play is the story of the simple home life of Jesus' family. His mother, sister and three of his brothers. Mary, portrays in her sweet way her love for her beloved son, Jesus. Miriam, the sister Spencer; Miriam, sister, Jean many ways, and the three brothers shows her love for her brother in loved Jesus, but in His absence from the home they seem to forget their love and kindness toward the people in their home town.

OPA WILL REDUCE OFFICES IN STATE

District OPA Director Theodore S. Johnson of Raleigh yesterday announced an extensive consolidation program for OPA offices in the Eastern part of state. The proposed consolidation will reduce the number of boards from 64 now in operation to approximately 24 boards. With personnel already reduced from a wartime high of 540 persons to 290, Mr. Johnson said that a goal of 85 persons to staff these boards had been set for January 1st. The Wilmington War Price and Rationing Board is slated to serve Brunswick, New Hanover and Pender counties, absorbing the functions of OPA boards that have previously served in these counties. The Whiteville office will serve Bladen and Columbus counties, and all other offices in those two counties will be closed down. Fayetteville will serve Cumberland and Hoke counties; Dunn, all of Harnett county; Lumberton will handle all the rationing for Robeson and Scotland counties. With the decline in OPA's program, Mrs. Johnson indicated that the consolidation of the offices in this area would permit more economic and efficient operation.

ICC Announces Date For ACL Hearing On ABCRR Purchase Plan

Hearing before the Interstate Commerce Commission on the Atlantic Coast Line Railroad company's application to purchase and operate the Atlanta, Birmingham and Coast Railroad company, has been set for September 20, officials of the Atlantic Coast Line announced yesterday.

The ACL filed application with the commission for the acquisition of the company's properties earlier this month in an effort to operate it as part of the Coastline network of rails.

The ACL has owned all common stock of the ABC railroad since 1927, and the application to acquire the road outright will mean further unification of the two line's operations.

JAPS CHARGE LOOTING

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 4.—(U.P.)—The Japanese Domei Agency in a broadcast recorded today by the Federal Communications Commission acknowledged "comparatively strict military discipline" among occupation forces, but charged the Americans with "six cases of brutality, 38 cases of looting, and other unlawful conduct."

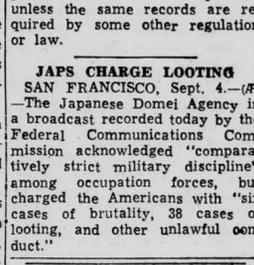

Passenger and truck tires are still rationed, he pointed out, largely on the basis of occupational driving needs and with eligibility no longer dependent on a consumer's B or C ration.

Under a ruling made when it was removed from rationing, fuel oil coupons sheets which have deposited with dealers and supplies need not be returned to consumers nor retained.

Dealers, distributors and suppliers need not retain rationing records nor submit rationing reports, Mr. Van Leuven explained, unless the same records are required by some other regulation or law.
