Many Thalian Favorites Are Cast In New Show To Be Staged Here Soon

"Doughgirls", the sparkling three-act comedy now in rehearsal by the Thalian association is filled with laughter and fun. The humorous, sophisticated lives and may ridiculous situations which take place in an overcrowded hotel suite in Washington promise to give the audience a very gay and entertaining evening. This play, under the direction of Lester Preston, will mark the Association's second major production of the season. The play was written by Joseph Fields and was most successfully produced by Max Gordon on Broadway. The Thalian cast is excellent and well suited to their roles. Some of those taking important feminine roles are Mary Cameron (Mrs. Bruce, Jr.) one of Wilmington's charming newcomers, as Viv in the part done by Arlene Whelan in New York. The role of Edna is being done by Margaret Darst Smith who is well known for her splendid work by most Thalian-goers. Nan, another glamour girl, is Marion Frank, a popular young blonde newspaper woman in Wilmington, who hails from Southport. Mrs. Emsley Laney, Kay, will appear as Natalia Chodorov, a Russian girl who takes up her abode along with the many others, and adds some very amusing incidents—Kay will be remembered for her good work as a nun in "Cradle Song" and as Katherine in "Pennywise." Katherine Meier will take the part of Sylvia, the stunning estranged wife of Julian Cadman, an ambitious young chemist. Her appearance on the scene creates quite an upset in the plans of the other girls and finally captures the head of a big business concern. Elizabeth Williams does the part of Judge Honora Blake, a minor part but very amusing. Elizabeth is a most popular member of the Thalian and always does a splendid job. Tentative dates for the production are set for February 21-22.

Slightly Off The Record

Wilmington, N. C., Jan. 7, 1946. Peggy, my dear: The most delightful innovation was started last evening by the Cape Fear Country club, when they entertained from 9 until 1 o'clock, at a dance for the members and their out-of-town guests, with a splendid orchestra furnishing the music. Prior to the dance, the dining room was open for dinner at 7:30 o'clock, and there were many gay parties, both large and small, killing two birds with one stone by honoring guests at dinner before joining the dancers in the spacious club ballroom. The members were most complimentary in their expressions of appreciation to E. L. White, chairman of the entertainment committee, for his capable planning of the evening's entertainment. There were more than a hundred dinner guests present, with a similar number coming in later, and it was the general consensus of opinion that a repetition of last night's affair, once a month until spring, would be welcomed by the membership. Have you started on your spring shopping tour yet? Many top flight designers say that the coming of
