

Foreign Brides Study U. S. Manners And Requirements Of Citizenship

Foreign brides of American soldiers are creating a new educational problem according to requests for instruction now reaching the Daughters of the American Revolution.

Many have asked for copies of the DAR Manual for Citizenship, the recognized handbook on American citizenship which for years has aided aliens in becoming naturalized Americans.

Wives of the GI's can enter the country regardless of quota restrictions because they are the wives of American citizens. In two years they are eligible to obtain final naturalization papers and appear before a Naturalization Court for citizenship.

Many of them, therefore, desire to know all about the American form of government. They want to study American citizenship. They seek information on constitutional rights of the citizen. They desire information on the executive, the legislative and the judicial branches of our government.

Naturally, many have turned to the DAR manual for citizenship. And as the ship loads of GI wives arrive from England and France and European ports, as well as Australia and New Zealand and Far East countries, the demand for the manual is expected to increase. Just recently, for example, American soldiers were given permission to marry Austrian girls. The list grows steadily.

For many years the DAR has been publishing the manual for citizenship. Millions of copies printed in 17 different languages have helped the alien to learn American ways of citizenship.

The manual is concise and to the point. All of the basic information on citizenship and the American form of government is given in plain understandable language. Naturalization courts throughout the land have realized its value. DAR members work in the naturalization courts to assist the new citizens in every way possible.

Now that a new need has arisen for the manual, the DAR will certainly meet it, Mrs. Julius Y. Talmadge, president general, declared. The national committee of the manual for citizenship has chairmen in every state and reaches into every one of the more than 2,500 chapters of the society, she said. Mrs. Howard A. Lattin of Colorado Springs, Colo., is national chairman. Vice-chairmen are Mrs. J. Warren Perkins of East Orange, N. J., Mrs. Parks Lee Hay of Macon, Ga., Mrs. Frank Hamilton Marshall of Enid, Okla., Mrs. Claude K. Rowland of St. Louis, Mo., Mrs. Edwin G. Clapp of Fargo, N. D., and Mrs. Carl O. Lampland of Flagstaff, Ariz.
