

Over The Airways

By BEN McDONALD

The Readers Write:

"Dear Ben: I've heard many a tale about fishermen's exploits, but this one is absolutely, positively as true as it is fantastic. There are, according to my informant, witnesses to prove that it happened. I know there are a lot of fishermen who read the Star-News and I think this little story will interest them. won't mention the names of the people involved, but this tale comes from a source I never have had reason to doubt. Hope you will find room to pass it along. It seems as though my friend was out fishing with members of his family and friends and they had intended to do some sharking—but I think I should add it was turn-about before the day ended.

"Things were going along peacefully out there in the deep water when a huge fin cut through the area where they were fishing. Without warning, the shark sank his teeth into the stern of my friend's small motor boat. I don't have to tell you that consternation reigned as the shark tugged and yanked all the while sinking his teeth deeper into the tail-end of the craft. My friend did not lose his head, and to defeat the purpose of the shark, he noticed the exhaust pipe was inclined in the shark's mouthful of boat. Quickly he started the motor with the intention of asphyxiating the shark. Believe it or not the idea worked. It took several minutes, but the shark was driven off and my friend has the boat, its stern a mass of splinters, to prove his story. I guess you would call that tale, 'all over the seawaves.'

"Sincerely Yours,"

"Liston King,"

Thank you, Liston. And honestly, we believe you!

In The Manner

Of Pepy's dairy: Albeit the chill in morning air, up early yesterday and off to the city. Rode up from the beach with Miss Martha Bellour next door neighbor who also accommodated Miss Martha Bellamy and Miss Mary Symmes with transportation. In the city, renewed acquaintance with Jack Holmes, the photographer merchant, who remarked upon his good health after an attack of influenza. Enjoyed a noogie of coffee with E. B. Smith, the engineering expert, who advanced several views on radio mechanical theories. A cheery salutation from Miss Alice Hunter who is spending a fortnight in our fair community. To the office where Tom Gause conversed lengthily on program views. Saw with delight the brochure issued by the local Travelers Aid and remarked on its noteworthiness. Repairing to a favorite tattersal emporium to find in a loquacious mood such gentlemen as Lawrence S. Everett, Joseph Jarrot, Eduard von Hoff Beschau, Walter Riley, and Richard Peters. A short but friendly greeting from W. W. Bell as he strolled up Princess street. Nipping along Front street, paused to window-shop which brought to mind the approach of the Easter season. By-the-by to the office to learn a local purveyor of merchandise is anticipating a new radio program. Filling the remainder of the day with columnar activities. And so to bed.

26 Grocers Belong To "Home Service"
Home Service stores, organized in the spring of 1930 with 15 local grocers cooperating and today 26 grocers belong to the lively organization which is headed by R. B. Roebuck, president.
Formed out of the original group were the Wilmington Retail Grocers association, member of the state and national associations, which today effects savings by quantity buying of merchandise, and which enables the group to solve vexing business problems by cooperation.
Secretary of the group is George Starnberger, treasurer is A. L. King, while the board of directors includes W. Albert Brown, Jesse Hobbs, L. L. Mills, Henry Herring, Love Davis, Ernest Rogers, Harry McCabe and Joe Reaves.
The association, which meets twice a month, is made up of the following officers:
J. C. Parker, president, Miss Elizabeth Bata, secretary, W. D. Mills, treasurer, and directors Martin Von Oesen, John Fox, W. D. Mills, E. L. Rogers, H. L. McCabe, A. H. Frady, J. B. Crechan, D. E. Jones, R. H. Williams and Paul T. Marshburn.

PENNEY'S IS STILL AMONG THE LEADERS
The J. C. Penney company department store, 209-211 N. Front street, today is continuing to render excellent service to discriminating buyers under the management of E. H. Southerland.
May 7, 1937, Penney's held a gala grand opening sale in new, enlarged quarters designed to render the best possible service to customers who appreciate convenient arrangement of articles.
On the first floor of Penney's, the customer finds men's clothing, men's furnishings, work clothes and shoes, women's furnishings, hosiery, lingerie, and also a well-stocked Boys' department.
Penney's balcony features millinery, coats and suits, dresses and a Girls department with housecoats, robes and sports wear. On the second floor are piece goods, curtains, drapes, blankets, spreads, sheets, towels, infants wear, foundation garments and a cotton shop.

Remember, for spot news from Wilmington and vicinity, listen to the STAR-NEWS round the Town Reporter at 1:25 and 6:25 p. m., every day. On Sundays its the STAR-NEWSREEL 1:25 p. m., for the searchlight on the news as it happens in New Hanover county.

Just A Word
About Wilmington's "Man On The Street" program which makes its initial appearance over WMFD at 1:45 p. m., tomorrow. This broadcast, the first of its kind to be presented locally, holds promise of being a knockout. It is a public features presentation of WMFD and offers cash prizes for participants. It will be broadcast, for the time being, from in front of Belk-Williams. The public is invited to participate. It's your program, drop by at broadcast time tomorrow and every Wednesday and Friday and join in the fun. In fact, you can earn some moola while enjoying the proceedings. The whole program is under the supervision of Tom Gause, WMFD production chief, and yours truly will be quiz master.
