

"THINKING DAY" TO BE OBSERVED

Girl Scouts Here Will Join World-Wide Movement On Powell Anniversary

An international Girl Scout circles today, February 22nd, the day that Girl Guides and Girl Scouts around the world make plans for closer kinship with their sisters, guides and scouts in other countries.

According to Mrs. G. D. Greer, Girl Scout commissioner of Wilmington, the idea started at the first World Conference of Girl Guides and Girl Scouts held at the Girl Scout Camp Edith Macy, Pleasantville, N. Y., in 1926, when the world was at peace.

In the course of the meetings, someone suggested, in commemoration of this feeling, that a day be set aside each year on which Girl Guides and Girl Scouts thought of their sister Guides and Scouts in other lands, sending as it were a wave of friendly thought around the world.

"Thinking Day," Mrs. Greer stated, has remained the practice of Scouts and Guides everywhere in spite of wars. Today the Girl

Family From Canada Seeking Home, Advised To Go Farther South

Go South, young man? No, this is it, you're in the South. Wilmington welcomes you despite the fact you were told "you'll have to go further south to find residence."

The Canadian, his wife and one child with their household equipment, including an electric refrigerator tied to the top of their car, were seeking an apartment or house in Wilmington.

Charlie Snow, deputy sheriff, with about 50,000 other Wilmingtonians hopes the man found a house.

Scouts in the United States, and in other countries which escaped the physical ravages of war, are giving tangible expression to their thoughts in the way of gifts of necessities to their less fortunate world neighbors.

Blankets Bought Ten thousand blankets have been purchased and allocated according to need; yarn and knitting needles are going to Polish Girl Guides still in displaced persons camps in Europe; 3,153 yards of woolen uniform material has been allocated to Denmark, France and Holland, according to membership; 200 pairs of stockings to Holland; 100 pairs of brown socks and 100 brown berets to Luxembourg; office supplies and publications to Czechoslovakia; soap and office supplies to Italy, where the movement is being reorganized after having been banned for seventeen years; and gifts in money to the Guides in Greece, Britain and China, for clothing, equipment, food.

thing he can turn out. And consumers will purchase what they need, and not scramble for everything in sight, because they will know that on account of the increased production the purchasing power of the dollar will be lowered as production increases.

Business and industry are guaranteed markets for all they can produce in the next several years-if prices do not get out of control.

No one would propose that these controls be continued indefinitely, but it is very necessary that they be continued until production has reached the point that it will automatically take care of these inflationary tendencies.

One example, out of many I could refer to, is one of Wilmington's oldest and most reputable clothing merchants last week were charging $4.25 for a known brand white shirt which this same firm 3 years ago was selling for $1.65.

What has happened since VJ-day clearly shows that we would be courting disaster if these controls are discontinued before the inflation threat has been, definitely conquered.

I hope you can and will help in the early extension of the price-control program.
