Mrs. Snow, mother of the bride, wore a gown of peach crepe and a corsage of white orchids. Mrs. Leslie Marbury, aunt of the bride, wore a gown of lime crepe and a corsage of parma violets while Mrs. M. J. Bennett of Atlanta, Ga., grandmother of the bride, wore a black crepe frock with beaded yoke and a corsage of orchids. Major Allen's mother wore an orchid pink crepe gown with deep purple orchid.

Immediately following the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Marbury entertained at a reception at the Cape Fear Country club. The entire upper floor of the club was decorated throughout with southern smilax, palms and ferns and burning tapers. The bride's table, laid with an Irish linen outwork cloth bordered with deep bands of Venetian lace, was centered with a tall silver epergne filled with white stock, white lilies and white sweetpeas flanked on each side by five branched silver candelabra holding white tapers while at one end of the table was the three tiered bride's cake on a silver tray and at the other end was a silver basket filled with individual bridal cakes; small silver baskets filled with bridal mints were placed at intervals along the long table. The epergne was softly draped with miniature garlands of smilax.

MRS. CARL MORRISON ALLEN, JR.—who before her marriage solemnized last evening at the First Presbyterian church here was Miss Kathryn Oliver Snow, of Wilmington, daughter of Mrs. Henry Edward Snow of Atlanta. Major Allen, USA, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Carl M. Allen of College Park, Ga.

Miss Kathryn Oliver Snow Is Bride Of Major Carl Morrison Allen, Jr.

Wedding Solemnized Wednesday Evening At First Presbyterian Church, Reception At Clubhouse

The wedding of Miss Kathryn Oliver Snow and Major Carl Morrison Allen, Jr., United States Army, was solemnized last evening at the First Presbyterian church at 8 o'clock in a double ring ceremony by Dr. William Crowe, Jr., pastor of the church. While the guests were assembling and during the ceremony John F. Pfeil, church organist, presented a program of traditional nuptial music. The church was beautifully decorated with southern smilax, palms and burning candles and altar vases of calla lilies.

Miss Snow had as her maid-of-honor, Miss Thyrza Allen, of College Park, Ga., sister of the bridegroom, and her bridesmaids were Miss Dorothy Sapp and Miss Eugenia Sapp of Dalton, Ga., her cousins. They wore identical gowns fashioned with white tight fitting bodices and full double net skirts caught at the sides with a bow-knot effect of satin. In their hair they wore headgears of white tulle with slight veils caught with deep red carnations. They carried exquisite arm bouquets of deep red carnations tied with matching red satin ribbon.

Major Allen was attended by Lawrence W. Beaty, Jr., of Charlotte, as best man and his groomsmen were: George Forbes of Wilmington, John M. Gunn, Jr., of Montgomery, Ala., Clarence L. Peeler, of Atlanta, Ga., and Jules F. Haley of Greenville, S. C. Ushers were Robert C. Cantwell, 3rd, Benjamin M. Washburn, Jr., A. K. Cooper, Jr., and Emmett H. Durham, Jr., all of Wilmington.

BRIDE Miss Snow, who entered the church and was given in marriage by her uncle, S. Leslie Marbury, wore a beautiful gown of white duchess satin made on princess lines with long waistline from which the extremely full skirt fell into a long sweeping train. The yoke of the gown was of Brussels lace sent to the bride from Belgium by the bridegroom while overseas. The long fitted sleeves entered in points of the same lace. Her veil of bridal illusion fell into graceful folds from a fan-shaped coronet and extended over the long train, and her bouquet was of white lilies and white orchids showered with lilies. She wore a diamond bar pin the gift of the bridegroom.
