

Wilmington Chapter, Re-Officers Association of the States, has received its charter from the national headquarters of the organization, it was announced last night by Colonel M. Corbett, president of the local chapter.

The Wilmington group, composed of former officers of the armed forces residing in New Hanover, Brunswick, Columbus, Pender and Robeson counties, was organized recently by Colonel John Bright Hill, president of the North Carolina Department, Reserve Officers Association. Plans are now being made for a meeting of the local chapter within the next few weeks.

VETERANS MOVE TO HALT TERROR ACTS

Salaries to law enforcement officers and other employees of the town, which has a population of 7,000. In discussing the woes of the city, Sheriff Henry said ex-service men who took over county affairs have all we want at this time. We do not stand for removing officials by force and we used force after we were denied an honest and free election.

Large Expansion Program Is Started By Star-News

(Continued From Page One) linotypes, at a cost of $15,000, to bring the total number to nine. They have been on order for the past several months and delivery is anticipated within the near future. New type will also be obtained as soon as the manufacturers can promise delivery.

Included in the long-range program is construction of a mezzanine on the second floor of the building. According to present plans, this will extend from the elevators in the Murchison building to the entrance to the present News and Advertising departments. Estimated to cost $15,000, work on this section of the general project will be undertaken as soon as building priorities and materials can be obtained. Leslie N. Boney, Jr., of the firm of Leslie N. Boney and Sons, architects, is architect for this project. He also prepared the plans for the pressroom addition to the annex.

The costs of new building, together with the value of the equipment and expenses of installation brings the total for the program to $285,185.

Page pointed out that the expansion and improvement is but the beginning of greater growth of the newspapers within the coming years. The mezzanine will be occupied by the Business and Advertising departments and will permit needed expansion of the composing room. This re-arrangement in space will, in turn, provide a greater area for the News department.

As an example of the papers' growth, the publisher cited the large increase in employment, exclusive of carriers, effected since 1941. In that year, the maximum number of employees was 66, on Friday, Aug. 30, the number was 110. As the staffs of the various departments have been enlarged, their functions have also been increased. The five-year period has seen the re-opening of the Engraving department to provide larger and faster pictorial service.

The microfilming of the files of the News and Star, the latter North Carolina's oldest newspaper, was a modernization project carried out earlier this year and provides the most modern method of maintaining these files, not only for the benefit of the newspaper but the interested public.

Mrs. Ganey said the transfusion must be given by Monday morning, according to her son's attending physician. A check with the hospital disclosed that the blood requested is of an ordinary type but that no plasma is available in the institution's blood bank.

A dance, with music furnished by Bill Grassick and his Orchestra will conclude the second day's activities.

The final day of the convention will be called to order at 10:30 o'clock Tuesday morning with the president presiding.

The session will be highlighted by a talk to be given by Mrs. R. M. Kiefer, secretary of the National Association of Retail Grocers.

Her subject will be "What About Tomorrow?" In her talk she will outline the need for greater salesmanship and greater efficiency of operation and the problems and changes which the food retailer must now consider if he is to be successful in the future.

Mrs. Kiefer, whose work keeps her constantly in close touch with more than 60,000 independent retail food merchants as well as government agencies and officials, will point out that opportunity in the United States today and in the future, is unlimited for those with imagination and the willingness to work.

An address by George W. King will precede the election of officers and reports of committees. The 1947 convention site will also be chosen during the morning session.

The afternoon will be turned over to pleasure with the delegates enjoying the water facilities of the resort. State officers and directors will meet in the convention hall at 2:30 o'clock.
