

Writer Is Delving Into 'Lost Colony' Legends

Says Virginia Dare Born On Cedar Island And Not Roanoke

BY GERTRUDE CARAWAY NEW BERN, Sept. 7.—Virginia Dare, first white child of English parentage born in the New World was born on Cedar Island in Carteret county, North Carolina, rather than on Roanoke Island in Dare county, according to Melvin Robinson, a native teacher, historian and writer of Atlantic in Carteret county.

By Lane than he was in the folks of the "Lost Colony." As a matter of fact, Robinson contends, the Virginia Dare colony was never "lost," except in the sense that they were not contacted by White and his fellow countrymen, who did not seek them in their home base on Cedar Island, for various reasons which Robinson sets forth in detail in his book.

Not only did the so-called Lost Colonists survive, the modern author maintains, but some of their descendants are still living today in eastern Carteret county as well as other parts of the region. Names of the original colonists are reported by him to be still common among pure-bred whites in eastern North Carolina.

Southern Passenger Train Is Derailed

MACON, Ga., Sept. 7.—Six cars of the Kansas City special fast Southern Railway passenger train en route from Atlanta to Jacksonville, Fla., were derailed early today to Bullards Station, 18 miles east of here.

A broken rail was blamed. Several pullman cars were scattered across the track but did not overturn. Passengers were thrown from their berths but none were seriously injured.

SCHOOL'S FLOODED CONDITION FLAYED

Winter Park Man With-draws Child From School; Basement Flooded

Declaring that the drainage situation at Winter Park "is a crying shame" and reporting that there were three inches of water in the basement of the Winter Park school W. B. Klander, Sr., of the Winter Park Metal Works, yesterday afternoon said he had withdrawn his daughter from the school and thought the parents of other children should withdraw them until the basement of the school is free of water.

Klander asserted that he thought the school should be closed unless the water is removed from the basement. He said he saw tadpoles floating around on the surface of the water in the school.

He said that there is eight inches of water under his home, which is located at 411 Strawberry avenue on the Wrightsville Beach highway, and he added that he had done all that he could do in the way of draining his property.

Klander expressed the opinion that expert engineering advice should be obtained before any further drainage work is done on a large scale, saying he thought "they are trying to make the water drain uphill."

"I have been residing at Winter Park for 30 years, and the last three years the drainage situation has been worse than ever before," Klander said.

H. M. Roland, superintendent of public instruction, yesterday afternoon reported that the decrease in the enrollment at the Winter Park school would do away with the necessity of using the two rooms in the basement for class rooms.

He said that the crack in the basement, which caused the water to seep therein, would be repaired by the contractor, who had given a guarantee to the county that the basement would not leak. This work, Roland said, would be done without any expense to the county.

When the basement of the school is repaired, this part of the building will be used as general utility rooms.

Plans are being formulated for the organization of the Wilmington Hairdressers and Cosmetologists' association, which will be affiliated with the state association, Relius Peter Julian, instructor at DeLaney's Beauty college, 28 North Second street, reported yesterday after his return to the city from Charlotte where he attended the twelfth annual convention of the North Carolina Hairdressers and Cosmetologist association.

The organization of the Wilmington association of hairdressers and cosmetologists is associated with Julian and W. P. Troutman, of Troutman's Beauty Salon, and it is planned to hold an organizational meeting in the near future, it was announced.

The convention at Charlotte, Julian reported, was highlighted by interesting lectures and demonstration by world famous hair stylists. Representatives of the nation's leading beauty supply houses attended the two-day meeting in Charlotte.
