SENCBA PROGRAM TERMED SOUND

State News Bureau Chief Says It Will Return Dividends

Bill Sharpe, director of the North Carolina State News Bureau, believes that the effort of the Southeastern North Carolina Beach association to put on a $15,000 fishing rodeo and advertising campaign is one of the soundest investments that this region can make to insure good tourist business during summer and fall.

According to Sharpe, people from all over the country are looking for fishing areas where they may spend their vacations. Letters are pouring into his office at the rate of 400 to 500 per day, he said, from persons who are asking for information regarding North Carolina. Forty percent of the letters, he said, specifically ask for information on fishing in this state.

As a further indication of the interest in the sport, Sharpe said that a recent survey conducted by a large publishing company in New York revealed that fishing areas and facilities rank third with tourists of the country who are planning vacations.

The SENCBA program is to sponsor the fishing rodeo this fall and other tourist-attraction events in this area, and carry on a national advertising program. The latest reports on the membership drive, which is now underway, were not available last night, but drive officials seem very optimistic over the progress of the campaign and said that they have had only two refusals to invitations to join the cooperative promotional effort.

FIRST FULL-TIME FIRE CHIEF NAMED

The election of W. M. Farrar as chief of the Wrightsville Beach volunteer fire department, marks the first time that the resort town has named a man to operate the department as a separate function.

The chief of the police department, W. R. Wiggs, Jr., has headed the fire-fighting units as part of his assigned duties. In addition to Farrar, the volunteer staff of the department are Ennis T. Robinson, assistant chief; Cecil Paine, treasurer; Ed Hawkins, secretary; Marion Vestal, captain; and Frank V. Conde, lieutenant in charge of pumps.
