Ellison, Walsh In 36-Hole Championship Clash Today

James Ellison, defending Municipal Golf club champion, is ready.

Today at 9:30 Ellison faces the biggest threat to his crown, when he lays it on the line for Lyn Walsh, Jr., to shoot at. The pair will swing through 18 holes in a morning round, and return for the finals at 2:30, with 18

Ellison said lost night he felt ready to fire some low scores in today's classic at Munf. He practiced most of the day yesterday, and sharpened up his iron shots. His score for nine practice holes was 37.

The Muni champ, who also won the Star-News tournament last Sunday with a blazing 75 in medal declared he lelt both he and Walsh would show up better in maten play, as today's tournament will be. Walsh made the same statement earlier this week. He was runner-up to Ellison last Sunday with 79.

Wilmington golf enthusiasts have predicted the pattle today will be extremely close with the need for extra holes to decide the outcome a possibility.

The two, as evenly matched as any two finalists can be, won the right to play off for the club crown earlier this spring. Ellison defeated Glenn Herring and Walsh downed R. C. Powell.

. A large gallery is expected to follow the contestants throughout the 36 hole match today.

CLEVELAND JOLTS RED SOX, 9-3

CLEVELAND, May 3 - (P) -The Cleveland Indians' new outfield fence paid off its initial dividends today as the Tribesmen smacked four home runs to smother the Boston Red Sox 9 to 3 and sweep the two-game series.

Three of the Tribe's four homers landed beyond the fence in the area known as the "Happy Hunting Grounds," while the other was a long drive into the left field stands by Pat Seery, his fourth of the year.

Joe Gordon accounted for five of the Indians' runs with a pair of round trippers. The former Yankee cleared the sacks with his fourth inning clout. The two smashes also brought Gordon's home run output for the season to

Tech Defeats Duke In Track Event

DURHAM, May 3—(P)—Leading by only one-point at the end of 10 events, Georgia Tech's great track team swept most of the points in four of the final five events to defeat Duke's Blue Devils, 76 3-4 to 54 1-4 in Duke stadium here this afternoon.

The Engineers had a 45 3-4 to 44 I-4 advantage going into the 220 in which they took eight points to Duke's one. They added eight more in the two mile, six against Duke's three in the discus and a slam in the low hurdles to clinch victory before the Blue Devils took the brilliantly run final mile relay out for their club title today at Municipal golf course (the Jess Ellison-Lyn Walsh, Jr. struggle) it's interesting to note that nine of Uncle Sam's crack amateur shotmakers will invade the British Isles two weeks hence, in the first effort to return the Walker Cup to its rightful place.

We say rightful place, because since 1922, American golfers have overwhelmed the best that John Bull could put up in nine out of 10 international clashes, and the upset in 1938 when Great Britain's team took the classic surprised even the usually calm English

Since that upset, the war dampened international athletic events, and on May 16-17, the U.S. will make its first real attempt to recapture the trophy at St. Andrews, Scot-

The Britishers, amazed that they actually eked out a victory after 10 long years, are supremely confident that the American Eagle will fly back across the Atlantic with its tail between its claws, or under

"Haw!" the cocky Britishers are hawing. "Haw! Don't think you can defeat the British lion, d'ya? There'll always be an England. God bless our Walker Cup team, and God save the king.'

The English have already won the first round in the forthcoming matches, by getting Frances Ouimet, captain of the team, to agree to play the 1947 games in the British Isles, instead of over here, as the rotation schedule calls for. It seems the English, due to their extremely difficult and expensive war effort don't feel they could afford to finance a trip to America, and it was too late to try for another loan from Con-

But, well may our English speaking brethren crow now, cause they'll probably be eating the stuff (crow, you see) come next May 18.

Ouimet has selected a team that for once was not chosen because the color of the player's blood was blue, but strictly on the ability he possesses on a golf course.

Ted Bishop leads off, and is clicking at this time better than ever. He won the National Amateur championship recently, and figures to be in top shape for the Walker Cup Smiley Quick, the clown prince of golf in the Americas, is Ouimet's second choice to break the British grip on the cup, and Bud Ward, out of the northwest, is our choice to pace the U.S. team in play. Ward held the U.S. Amateur crown in 1939 and 1941, and his strong point is iron work. No one in America plays his mid-field shots any better than Ward.

Skee Riegel, the rugged all-round athlete from Pennsylvania has promised to forget boxing and football achievements this year, and concentrate on golf. When Riegel B does that, he's tough. Number five is Willie Turnesa, D seventh brother of the great Turnesa golfing family. Nuff | Market Nuff said on Willie.

Some critics are calling Freddie Kammer, New Jersey socialite, the weak spot on the American team, because he hasn't played regularly enough, but when Cary Middlecoff turned pro, Ouimet didn't have a better choice than Kammer. He's a natural, and we can't see him a weak link in any chain.
