thing," and added, "Wilmington needs something. I don't know what it is, but I sure needs some thing."

Ed Ward, 161 Pinecrest Parkway, said that Blumenthal should "continue to be a city-county airport," but that "some changes should be made in the method of operation."

Hits Attitude An unidentified traveling salesman from Greensboro said that he knew nothing about the airport situation, but halted the reporter with "but I'll tell you something else about Wilmington."

He said that it had been his observation, and that he had heard numerous Wilmingtonians expound the same theory that this city is self-satisfied, that the people, the governmental officials, and the big business interests in town were not interested in the establishment of new industries here.

Meanwhile, Horace Barnes, Lumberton airport operator, said last night that he is "definitely interested in leasing Blumenthal airport," and that at present he is waiting to hear something from the New Hanover county commissioners as to their inclinations toward his proposal.

Operates Two Fields He met informally with a group here about two months ago, he said, and at that time, he discussed the possibility of his leasing the field and taking over the operations and development. At present, Barnes very successfully operates the airport at Lumberton, and another at Greenville.

His plans for Blumenthal, provided the commissioners grant him the lease, have not yet been developed. He said he was "waiting to hear from them."

sion, the final plans of what was to have been a perfect murder were worked out and discussed by the young Negro Saturday night, a few hours before the shooting took place Sunday morning, shortly after six o'clock.

Sheriff Britt said Mrs. Miller admitted she called Wiggins at 6 o'clock Sunday morning and told him that "Everything is ready."

Wiggins told the sheriff in his confession, that he crept into the home of the Millers, which is located on the farm of Mrs. Miller's father, Allen Curran, shortly after he had been advised by the young woman that everything was ready.

Dan Miller was asleep in his bed, the Negro told officers, and he stood there a minute or two watching his victim. Then he carefully aimed Miller's own .38 calibre at the sleeping man and fired.

The Negro said after he had shot, the wounded man groaned, turned over and looked up at him. Miller then raised up off the bed and chased him to the door of the house before he collapsed, the Negro told officers in his confession.

Mrs. Miller admitted she furnished gloves for the Negro to wear and even gave the Negro her husband's gun, with which he was shot. The final plans for the killing were made Saturday night, when Mrs. Miller, Wiggins and the Miller's family cook and one of the young children of the Miller couple went to a movie in Lumberton, according to Sheriff Britt.

The sheriff said the crime was planned to appear as though the young husband had killed himself. "When Miller got off the bed and chased the Negro, the plans of the couple were ruined," Britt said. "It probably would have looked like suicide if Dan Miller had died instantly," the sheriff stated.

The man, with whom Mrs. Miller is supposed to be in love with, has not been named by the Robeson sheriff.

"Nice Folks" Residents of the community, about four miles from Rowland, on the Belt line highway, said they were unaware of any love affair between Mrs. Miller and the unnamed man. "The Miller's were nice folks," they said.

Mrs. Miller and Wiggins are both being held without bond in the Robeson county jail. Sheriff Britt said he would not place any definite charges, pending the outcome of Dan Miller's condition. The woman is the daughter of one of the most prominent families in Robeson county.

with a pistol last Christmas in an argument over a woman.

A $25 fine for trespassing was placed against Carl Lee Joyner when he agreed to plead guilty to the charge after the original indictment charging assault upon Mrs. Alice Lamb, a mother of two children, was dropped and after the state had completed its case.

Mrs. Lamb, 23, who said she was separated from her husband, related that Joyner came to the rooming house at 601 Wrightsville avenue, where she lived, offered her money and made indecent remarks. J. A. Crocker, another roomer, declared he obtained the number of the taxicab in which Joyner left the place and it was through the number that the man later was arrested by W. C. Jordan, patrol car policeman.

Convicted of Assault Two years on the road was passed out to Lee Dixon, Negro found guilty by a jury of assaulting Roy Green, another Negro, last February 22, with a knife with the intent to kill. Green said he was cut so severely about the throat that 34 stitches were taken in his neck and he was kept in the hospital for 11 days.

Green testified that Dixon came to his home on North Ninth street, became involved in an argument with a girl residing there and when ordered to leave, attacked Green with a knife slashing his throat and puncturing his stomach.

Dixon, acting as his own attorney, asserted he attempted to collect $4.50 which Green owed him and refused to pay, that Green struck him, then advanced upon him with a knife which accidentally cut the complaining witness.

The story of the shooting in which shots were fired by both the defendant and one of the complaining witnesses was related in the case of Joe Bellamy, Negro, who a jury found guilty on two counts of assault with a pistol.

Bellamy was sent to work on the road for 90 days on one count and was given an 18-months suspended sentence on the other.

Harris Sneed and his wife, a Negro couple, told the jury that last November 23 Bellamy came to their home at 623 South Eighth street about 1 a. m., and challenged Sneed to come outside and talk matters over and that when the latter refused, threatened to shoot through the window.

The couple testified that Bellamy fired a pistol shot off on their porch twice. They admitted that the woman, in retaliation, returned the fire with another pistol from the couple's front window. Bellamy offered no defense.

In a trial commenced Tuesday noon, J. L. Bankhead, Kure Beach cafe operator, was found guilty by a jury on two counts—resisting arrest and assault with a deadly weapon. He was fined $200 and costs.

The case was the outgrowth of an altercation between the defendant and Lawrence Kure and the intervention and arrest by Constable K. R. Pinkston.

secured from the general assembly a grant of $50,000 a year for two years for administrative expenses and which he said, was the first such grant ever made in the history of North Carolina for ports purposes.

Paying tribute to Jack T. Hiers, executive secretary of the Wilmington Port Traffic Association as the best posted man on freight rates in the state and a man who has been of great help to the Ports Authority, the speaker caught the rapt attention of his audience when he said that although efforts of the Ports Authority to purchase the North Carolina Shipbuilding company properties from the Maritime Commission have proved futile, was the opinion that in the not-distant future, arrangements will be made to lease from the federal government, a considerable portion of the yard and which will enable the State's Ports Authority to attract needed industries to locate on sites along the Wilmington waterfront.

Reminiscing momentarily, Broughton said that on his visits no wto Wilmington, he misses greatly the smile and cheer and then recalled a visit to Airlee which resulted in the gift to the state of a very famous portrait of Sir Walter Raleigh, the portrait now hangs in the Hall of History at Raleigh where it is viewed annually by thousands of people.

Hard Workers Regarding the future of North Carolina, the speaker pointed out that the state is founded on a type of independence philosophy and has made it a self-reliant state—a state populated by men and women who know how to work and are not afraid of it.

The future of the state, he said, is linked unquestionably with its ports development and called attention to the fact that from Maine to California, every state along the Atlantic seaboard, the Gulf coast and the shores of the Pacific, all have great ports with the exception of North Carolina. But that handicap to future development of North Carolina soon will be overcome, Broughton predicted.

Referring then to the decision of the United States Supreme court this week in granting lower freight rates to the south and ordering an increase in northern rates, he said that this decision, equalizing freight rates between the North and South, was the greatest thing that has happened to the South in 100 years.

Describing the decision of the court as a great emancipation for southern shippers, Broughton called attention to the fact that C. McD. Davis, president of the Atlantic Coast Line railroad, had seen fit as a loyal North Carolinian, to point to the decision as of great future benefit to the South.

Progress made in North Carolina over the years, he said, has been made possible through the rugged determination of our people plus a stability of government—the kind of government that business has come to know with pride and the kind of government business can trust.

Referring briefly to industrial achievements during World War II in North Carolina, he pointed out that our workers can now do just as highly skilled work as any men in the nation—that the workers of the North Carolina Shipbuilding company during the war years proved to one and all that North Carolinians could and did build better ships at lower cost than were turned out elsewhere in the nation.

Know How Now Training secured during the war years has made precision workmen out of many who were unskilled before and the records established by North Carolinians in the war, he said, has exploded once and for all, the false notion that we don't know how to do things.

Today, he continued, we have an abundance of skilled workers, plenty of available local capital, ample power and other resources and nothing can stand in the way of North Carolina progress if our people make up their minds to utilize what they have.

That they are already doing so, is manifested by the fact that before the war, Broughton pointed out, North Carolina had only five freezer locker plants. Today there are eighty.

And if the citizens of the state, exemplifying that spirit of rugged determination of our fore-fathers, will display the courage to undertake the task, North Carolina can and will take its rightful place among the industrial states of the nation.

400,000 (Continued From Page One) winter and internal conditions it... Patterson outlined the pressure applied to American supplies by worldwide needs, and commented that others 'are threatened with a break in delivery of their rationing which has already occurred in parts of Germany.'"

Then he added: "This is the first time that I know of in history in which conquerors have made an effort on any such scale to feed their defeated enemy and the fact that there is no actual starvation in Germany is due only to the tremendous productivity of the United States and the willingness and efforts of our government and the British to help."

Celebrities Tee Off For 'Kids' Saturday By ARTHUR EDSON WASHINGTON, May 14—(P)—It probably will be the most unusual four-some in golf history. For, come Saturday, Bing Crosby, Senator Taft (R-Ohio), Hildegarde and Baseball Commissioner A. B. Chandler will tee off together.

How come such a queer assortment of golfers? Well, they're playing in the National Celebrities Golf tournament.

And so are two Supreme court justices, three cabinet members, Bobby Jones, Gen. Dwight Eisenhower, Walter Hagan, Gene Tunney, Carl Hubbell, Jack Dempsey and—if he can make it—Babe Ruth.

The plan for this tournament grew out of an idea of Attorney General Tom Clark's.

Clark, along with FBI Chief J. Edgar Hoover, was worried about the rapid rise in juvenile delinquency. How could it be stopped?

The best way, he figured, was to get the kids interested in something else—like sports—before they got interested in crime.

The tournament, sponsored by the Washington Post and managed by sports editor Bus Ham, will serve to:

1. Attract nationwide attention to the campaign to get more youngsters interested in sports.

2. Raise money for kids' sports. It will be a two-day medal play meet, and Ham today announced this lineup for the first day: Clark, Eisenhower, Supreme Court Justice Reed, Admiral Chester Nimitz, scorer.

Secretary of the Navy Forrestal, Clark Griffith (owner of the Washington Senators), Gen. Omar Bradley, Supreme Court Justice Douglas, Secretary of the Treasury John Snyder either will play or keep score.

Gene Tunney, Jack Dempsey, Sports Writer Bob Considine, footballer Bill Dudley and Babe Ruth, if he's recovered sufficiently from his recent illness.

Senator Fulbright (D-Ark), Rep. Arends (R-Ill), Senator Lucas (D-Ill), Rep. Smathers (D-Fla), Rep. Rayburn (D-Texas), scorer.

Tennis player Fred Perry, Carl Hubbell, cartoonist Ham Fisher, Babe Didrikson Zaharias, Glenn Collett Vare.

Chick Evans, Fred McLeod, race horse owner Harry Parr, 3rd, Del Webb, co-owner of the New York Yankees.

Rep. Halleck (R-Ind), Maj. Gen. Leslie Groves, band leader Fred Waring, sports announcer Harry Wismer.

Bobby Jones, Walter Hagen, Gene Sarazen, Bobby Cruikshank (This is thrown in for the old fogies who want a little pure golf in their golf tournaments).

The Crosby-Taft-Chandler-Hildegarde foursome will have Arthur Godfrey along as scorer. He was one of the first radio announcers to make a living heckling his sponsors.

some sections of organized labor, the President went to great lengths to stress his conviction that it would not jeopardize the rights won by labor during the New Deal regime of the late President Roosevelt.

Will Urge Change He said he did not believe Congress intended by this law to destroy labor's gains. But if the act should work in that direction, he promised, "I shall request the Congress to take prompt remedial action."

He also suggested tacitly that labor itself might clarify the effect of the legislation on the wage-hour law and other labor reform statutes by testing in the courts its "new and possibly ambiguous" provisions.

But Mr. Truman was emphatic in his belief that the good effects of the law would outweigh its potentially bad ones. Specifically, he said, it should speed a satisfactory settlement of current wage negotiations, and enable business to "plan with assurance for full production and price reductions."

"This will be of real value to labor and management in the maintenance of a continued high level of employment," he said.

Crosses Secretary In that, he differed sharply with Secretary of Labor Lewis B. Schwellenbach, who has fought the bill on the grounds that it would undermine the whole framework of New Deal labor legislation built up during the past 15 years.

The politically-potent CIO unions, which instituted most of the portal suits, also were bitterly critical of the bill as a blow at labor.
