★ We, The Women

BY RUTH MILLETT
 It would be interesting to take a secret poll of the membership in every woman's club in a representative town and find out just how many women join clubs out of fear rather than choice. How many women have kept their names on a bridge club membership list through the years because they joined when they were strangers in the town and were afraid to offend by declining?

How many women fidget and squirm through the meetings of culture clubs because they are afraid they'll be marked as stay-at-homes?
 How many women are reluctant members of some auxiliary group of their husband's professional organization simply because they are afraid that if they refuse to join they will hurt their husbands?
 How many women are bullied into membership in some club because the boss' wife or the town's social leader says with sweet finality, "My dear, you simply MUST belong!"
 Because an overwhelming number of American women belong to an impressive number of women's clubs it is assumed that they are happy. If a woman belongs to half a dozen—then she is a fayed-in-the-wool club-woman who wouldn't know what to do if it weren't for her club memberships that make her feel important.

Circles Hold Joint Meeting

A joint meeting of the Women's Home and Foreign Missionary Circles, 1, 2, 3, of Sixth street Advent Christian church was held July 7 at 8 o'clock with Mrs. R. C. Grant presiding.

The meeting was opened with a devotional by Mrs. Sally Macomber of Jacksonville, Fla.
 "Love" was the chosen theme of the evening's program. Duets were rendered by Mrs. Ruby Braxton and Mrs. Christian Grant, and Mrs. George Saunders and Mrs. Robert Mills. Mrs. Rosa James sang a solo.
 A social was held following the business session in the assembly room at the paragon. Hostesses were Mrs. George Crandall, Mrs. Nita Mills, Mrs. Jacobs, Mrs. Edna Allen, Mrs. Charlotte Mills, and Mrs. Batson.

Durham Editor To Conduct Manteo Service

The Sunday religious services being held each week at historic Fort Raleigh, the scene of Paul Green's dramatic production, The Lost Colony, will be conducted by the Rev. Dr. C. Sylvester Green. Dr. Green is the editor of the Durham Morning Herald.

The Lost Colony Chorus will sing for the service, which is one of a series held on Sundays during the run of the play.
 Dr. Green has been a prominent Baptist leader for 25 years. Following his graduation at Wake Forest college in 1922 he taught in the Durham High School for four years and then became pastor of the Watts Street Baptist church of Durham. Six years later he went to Richmond, Va., to become pastor of the Grove Avenue Baptist church. In 1936 he became president of Coker college, Hartsville, S. C., and in 1943 returned to Durham on sabbatical leave and served as advisor in religious activities at Duke university for one season.

He has been editor of the Durham Morning Herald since December, 1943. The author of several published books and contributor to numerous religious and secular journals, he is also well known as a lecturer on international affairs. He is now chairman of the State Baptist convention's council on Christian education and represents the state on the education commission of the Southern Baptist convention. He holds graduate degrees from Duke University and honorary degrees from Washington and Lee and the University of South Carolina.

Couple Notes Golden Wedding Anniversary

CHADBOURN, July 10—Mr. and Mrs. B. J. Mincher of Chadbourne will observe their golden wedding anniversary at their home in this city on Sunday.

Friends of the family are invited to call between three and six o'clock in the afternoon.

Center Plans For Week-End

The Wilmington Community Center, Second and Orange streets, will be open this week-end to receive service men and their dates.
 An informal dance has been planned for this evening to begin at 8 o'clock. The junior hostesses will be in charge of the entertainment.
 A bon voyage vacation cruise has been scheduled for 8 o'clock Saturday evening. Rounding out the program of entertainment for this evening is an informal dance and bingo party.

Miss Fisher To Attend Norway Meet

Miss Virginia Fisher, 20-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Fisher of Whiteville, will attend the World Conference of Christian Youth at Oslo, Norway, next month, having sailed from New York June 30.

Miss Fisher is representing the Y. W. C. A., as one of a delegation of 26 from all parts of the country. She was chosen by a national Y. W. C. A. committee on the basis of leadership, interest and ability. For the past two years she has lived in Richmond, having been transferred there from the Blue-thermal Airbase in Wilmington in 1945.

Miss Fisher received her start in Y. W. C. A. activities while living at the Wilmington Young Women's Christian Association at Third and Grace streets, and transferred her membership to the Richmond Y. W. C. A., when she moved to that city.

The Youth Conference starts on July 22, and will end on July 31, leaving time for a tour of Norway before the opening, and a trip to Sweden following the conference, to attend another meeting, this time the World's Y. W. C. A. Conference which will run from August 1 to August 8, at Wendselsborg, Sweden.

Due back in the United States on September 5, Miss Fisher who is a civil service stenographer, expects to tour Denmark and England. This trip was made possible through the generosity of her grandfather, Mr. H. H. Britt of Whiteville, N. C.

Personals

Miss Bernadine Foyles has as her guest at her home, 212 South Third street, Miss Elizabeth Skeen of Greensboro.

TODAY'S GARDEN-GRAPH

CUT OFF TOPS OF LEAVES IF TRANS-PLANTING ON HOT DAY
 TO KEEP CABBAGE HEAD FROM BURSTING, BREAK SIDE ROOTS BY BENDING PLANT

First Aid for Late Cabbage

Late cabbage is an important vegetable for the home garden. It is high in Vitamin A, B and C. It can be used as cole-slaw for salad purposes, cooked as a vegetable with the rows about 30 inches apart.
 Late cabbages are usually set out between the 1st and 15th of July. They should be spaced 18 to 24 inches apart in the row, with the rows about 30 inches apart.
 When transplanting cabbage in warm weather set the plants a little deeper than they stood before. A good general rule is to set them so that the soil comes fairly close to the first leaf. The top of each leaf can be sheared off to check evaporation, as shown in the accompanying Garden-Graph.

Pretty Food Encourages Good Work

NEW YORK — Hearty, colorful and tasty meals served at moderate prices in industrial plants is a long step on the road toward perfect employer-employee relations, in the opinion of Mrs. Clare Guthrie.

Mrs. Guthrie, home economist and head dietitian for a firm of industrial cafeteria managers (Industrial Food-Crafts, Inc.), is responsible for about a million meals a day, served in plant cafeterias all over the United States. "Good food," she said, "will keep happy, enthusiastic workers toiling to work every day, cut down waste, accidents and absenteeism. It will also increase production."

Labor and management consult freely and frequently when her firm takes over the problem of feeding a new group of employees: the first to tell her what the men and women like to eat and the latter to cooperate in brightening up restaurant surroundings.
 Color on the walls or on the plate is one of her favorite themes. She likes to serve a green leafy vegetable or two, a yellow vegetable and a red vegetable, along with meat, Spanish rice, or macaroni and cheese. As much as she dislikes drab walls, Mrs. Guthrie is a greater enemy of the drab meal: white meat, white gravy, white potatoes, white rice, white bread—and all set on a white plate.

 She has studied regional food preferences closely, and is able to verify what casual observers have long suspected: New Englanders prefer clam chowder, baked beans and brown bread, like salt-water fish better than fresh water, like pie for breakfast and pour maple syrup with a heavy hand. Southerners want fresh breads thrice daily, like hot corn pone and corn muffins, dark cane syrup or molasses, strong coffee, pork frequently, hot grills, lots of rich gravy and salt pork seasoning with almost all vegetables. Midwesterners enjoy heavy substantial foods, heaps of butter, pastries and potatoes.
 Ham sandwiches, apple pie and ice cream go big in any section. "Furthermore," Mrs. Guthrie said, "there is nothing to the story that men are better cooks than women. Women have an instinctive something that enables them to add an indefinable touch to food. Men lack it."
