

WALLACE TOBACCO MART OPENS TODAY

250,000 Pounds Of Weed On Warehouse Floors On Opening Eve

By JOHN SIKES WALLACE, Aug. 24. — The tobacco farmers in the Wallace area are coming to market early.

On the eve of the opening of the 1947 tobacco selling season here tomorrow there are around 250,000 pounds of tobacco on the floors of New Duplin Warehouse No. 1 and Hussey's No. 2.

The chart of the auctioneer will be heard hereabouts for the first time this season at the New Duplin warehouse, operated by A. H. Carter, A. E. Rackley, and John Chesnut.

Tobacco began streaming into town in large lots Saturday and prospects are that a full and good sale will come off tomorrow.

Warehousemen were careful to point out, however, that they could probably handle some additional weed for tomorrow's sale provided, of course, it gets to the floors early enough.

On this first sale eve there is nothing to dampen the hopes hereabouts that the 1947 season will be Wallace's best.

With two new houses and a third which space has been practically doubled since last season, the warehousemen are in the best shape to care for large offerings they've ever been.

The around a quarter of a million pounds that is now on the floor appears to be fairly good quality and, with what is placed on the floor between this and sale time tomorrow morning, the prospects are for a bright opening day.

Rangoon is the capital of Burma. Burma is 261,610 square miles in area (including the Shan States), and in 1931 the population was estimated as 14,667,146.

Ten of their members were arrested last year on intimidation charges in the latest outbreak of violence. The arrests followed a series of night raids by nude Freedomites who terrorized Orthodox Doukhobors in the Kootenay region and burned their homes.

The Orthodox Doukhobors rushed back from the rich timberlands of interior British Columbia, where they had been at work, to defend their homes, and fought a pitched battle with a marching band of Freedomites at a road barrier near Sheep Creek, B. C.

Police said the Doukhobors brandished guns in the Freedomites' faces and threatened stern reprisals if they continued their forays of destruction.

"We just don't know what will happen; it's pretty hard to tell," said Police Chief Harshaw.

"There are 10 of them in jail now and there will be a lot more of them in confinement if they come here in the nude."

The Los Angeles and Washington groups which gave birth to the plan, hope that civic organizations in the 5,000 cities enroute will establish the necessary markers in their areas. The markers will cost somewhere between $20 and $75 each.

The route, as specified by Civil Aeronautics Administrator T. P. Wright, will go Eastward from Los Angeles to Abilene, Tex. There it will divide into North and South segments, both terminating in Washington. The North branch will run via Oklahoma City, St. Louis, Indianapolis and Pittsburg; the South via Montgomery, Ala. and Atlanta, Ga.

McKENNEY ON BRIDGE

BY WILLIAM E. MCKENNEY America's Card Authority Written for NEA Service

Whether to play a contract at no trump or a suit is a matter of far more importance in tournament bridge than in rubber bridge. In rubber bridge you choose what you consider the safest contract, and you are not greatly interested in whether you make 100 or 120 points. But in tournament bridge, if you can make four hearts or four no trump, you had better play it at no trump because it counts ten points more. As a result the average player in tournaments tries to play too many hands at no trump, especially when the correct contract is a minor suit.

For some reason, the inexperienced tournament player seems to think that if he can make five clubs or five diamonds, he certainly can make three or four no trump.

At no trump, declarer at best can take only eight tricks with today's hand and he may take less if a heart is not opened. Nice play will produce game in club.

South's bid of one no trump was rather odd. He could have rebid clubs if for no other reasons than to tell his partner that he was not on a short club suit. However, he preferred to show more strength and to tell North that he thought he had the heart suit stopped.

With his singleton heart, North was correct in showing support in clubs. When South went to four clubs, right out of the three no trump zone, North was entitled to stretch his hand a little with the five club bid.

When the opening heart lead held, West shifted to the four of clubs. Dummy's jack won, a small spade was led and East was forced to go in with the king. Now East could lead a heart, hoping to make Declarer won with the ace, cashed my before the spade suit was established, or he could lead a diamond. With four trumps in dummy, the heart lead looked hopeless, so East led a diamond. Declarer won with the ace, cashed the queen of trumps and ruffed a heart in dummy. The losing heart was discarded on the ace of spades, and when the spade suit broke, South discarded his two losing diamonds on the nine and eight of spades.

MANCHENO SEIZES ECUADOR PALACE

Defense Minister Takes Over Government In Bloodless Revolution

QUITO, Ecuador, Aug. 24.—(AP)—Minister of Defense Col. Carlos Mancheno, with the support of the army and police force, seized control of the government from President Jose Maria Velasco Ibarra last night in a bloodless and almost noiseless revolution.

Tonight, Velasco Ibarra was reported packing for a journey into exile. It would be his second, because he was the victim of a coup d'etat on August 20, 1935, and had to leave the country. He returned from that first exile in June, 1944, after another revolt, and once again was installed in the presidency in August, 1944.

The new revolution was carried out with no violence, either here or in other parts of the country. A few shots were fired into the air by troops here to break up a crowd that gathered around the presidential palace when the news spread that Velasco Ibarra and Mancheno were conferring on "urgent affairs."

The upshot of the conference was that Velasco Ibarra resigned and turned the government over to Mancheno, who is now president. The situation that calmed in the revolution had been developing for several months.

Edison died in 1931 and in 1932 she turned her efforts to education for temperance, expressing the views that prohibition had been less successful than the campaign of education under way when the 18th amendment was adopted.

In her Edison Centennial article Mrs. Edison wrote that the inventor never gave a thought to whether his work would bring him fame.

After the inventor's death, Mrs. Edison renewed a lifetime friendship with Edward E. Hughes, Franklin, Pa., lawyer and steel manufacturer. They were married in 1935 and Hughes died five years later.

Later the inventor's widow dropped the name "Hughes."
