STENNIS HAS

Todd read the incomplete unofficial tally as showing the state had gone Democratic by 40,000 votes. Before the election he had predicted the GOP would swing the state by 20,000 to 50,000.

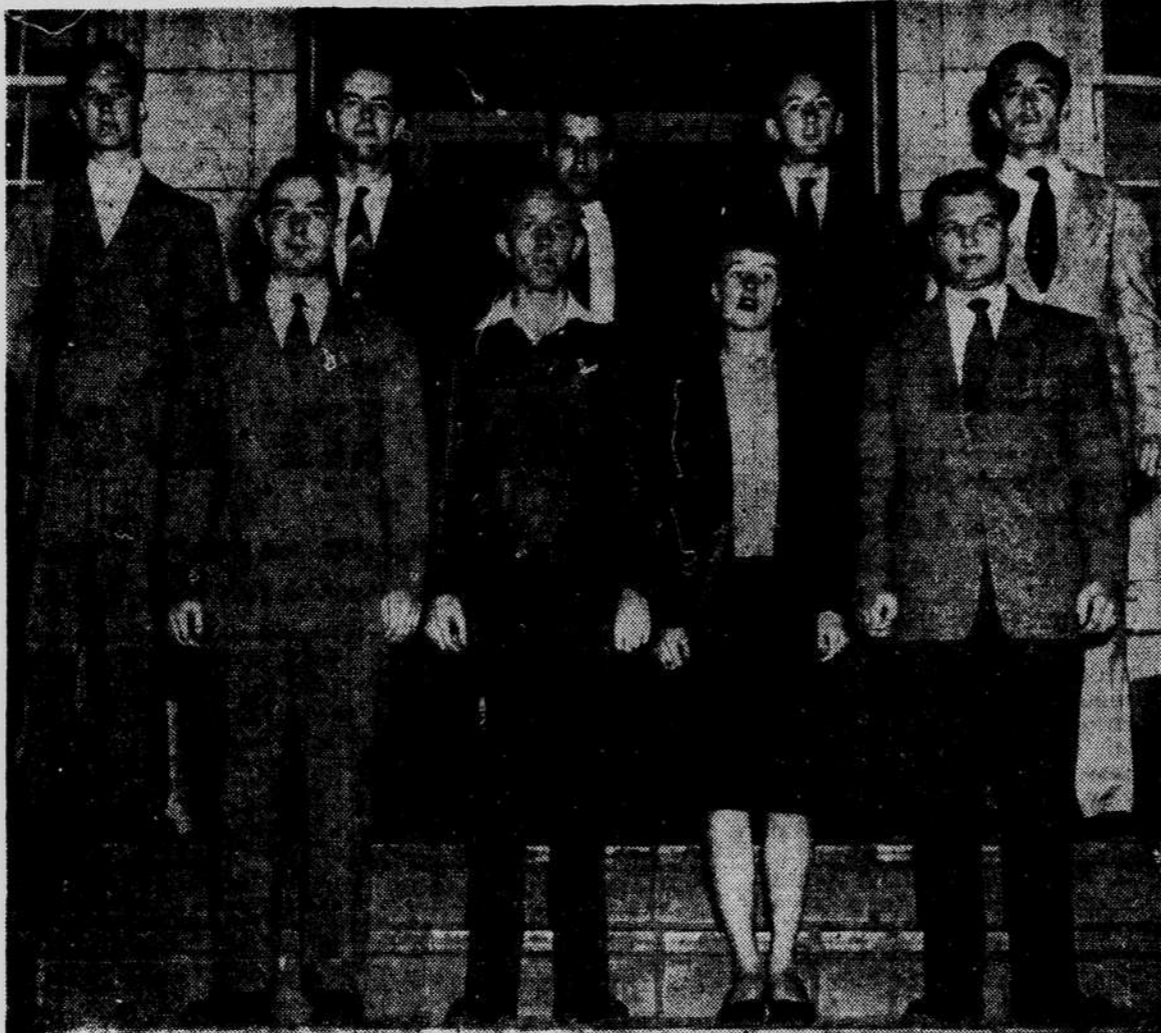

The Democrats apparently took over all 12 Republican places on the Louisville school board. Up in Indiana, Indianapolis voters gave an upset victory to Democrat Al Feeney for mayor. Complete unofficial returns showed the former Notre Dame football player ended a five-year Republican regime by whipping William M. Wemmer.

The chief victory for the "Progressives," candidates supported by Scotland's Unionist party which is the North British branch of the Conservatives, was in the industrial port of Dundee — the constituency of Laborite Food Minister John Strachey — where six Labor councilmen were defeated and control passed to the Progressives.

SALES TAX

Treasurer Johnson's opinion on the sales tax was evoked by a question from a listener during a forum session following his speech, in which the questioner asked what could be done about hiked profits being made by retail establishments on the sales tax collections.

"There isn't anything you can do about it," Johnson declared. "Very frankly, I don't think it will ever be repealed."

He explained the need for the sales tax saying that it brings in a revenue of $30,000,000 annually and adding, "They're calling for more money in schools and in everything."

In discussing the State's financial structure, the treasurer explained that North Carolina is now on a "pay as you go" basis and declared, "We won't ever have to issue any more bonds in North Carolina."

Pointing out that North Carolina's general fund depends on fluctuating sources for revenue, he said that in 1940 some $41,000,000 was collected, as compared with an income of $117,000,000 in the last fiscal year. "Sooner or later it's going to turn back the other way," he said, "but I think it will settle down at around $75,000,000 or $80,000,000."

Members of the last legislature set aside $51,500,000 in a sinking fund to liquidate the North Carolina general fund debt, he explained, adding that "now for all practical purposes — for the first time in 100 years — we have no general fund debt."

Another $50,000,000 was set aside for a building fund, "for which there was a very, very great need in North Carolina," he stated. "We have had people who were insane in jail for two months because there was no room in the State hospital," he added as one point in explanation of the building need for State institutions.

The $30,000,000 set aside by the General Assembly as a post-war reserve fund serves to protect the increases in salaries granted State employees and teachers when schools budget for the current year and next year were set at $64,000,000 Johnson explained. The previous year's schools budget was $47,100,000.

"North Carolina is the only state maintaining nine months school in a 12-year program solely from State funds," Johnson said, adding that some municipalities may go beyond that with local funds. He stressed the fact that a child in the poorer sections is given the same educational facilities as one in the richer cities. In other states, he said, city schools are the finest, but rural and poorer areas must look out for themselves. Discussing the State Highway fund, which is separate from the general fund, Johnson said that there is now $25,000,000 in the fund, more than is necessary to liquidate the highway debt. Although under normal conditions there would be no surplus in this fund, a $50,000,000 surplus was piled up during the war years when new construction was impossible, he said. "The remaining $25,000,000 is now being spent as fast as possible," Johnson said. "In 1951 all highway debt principals will be paid and a sinking fund sufficient to retire those coming due after that will be maintained." According to its treasurer, "North Carolina is the only state in the union which maintains and constructs all roads."

R. Mich., of the Senate War Investigating subcommittee, told a press conference that his first witness tomorrow will be Charles E. Wilson, president of General Electrical company, who was vice-chairman of the War Production Board when the flying boat contract was awarded over the objections of high-ranking Air Force officers in 1942.

Hughes To testify Wilson will be testified by Ralph A. Gachen, chief of research and engineering for the Air Forces' general staff. Hughes and his free-spending press agent, John Meyer, will testify later in the hearing, which Ferguson said probably will last for a full week, but he refused to say when they would be called.

The first round of the hearing was interrupted abruptly on Aug. 11, when Ferguson called a recess because, he said, Meyer had left Washington and could not be located.

Arthur H. Vandenberg, R. Mich., chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations committee, on plans to start committee work Monday on the administration's program for stop-gap aid for Europe.

Lovett said that the administration would not be ready by that time to give specific details of the stop gap program, but would merely disclose the general outline. He said that the Monday meeting would be merely preliminary.

Barring last minute changes, here are the details of the overall Marshall plan as now drafted:

- 1. The "Marshall Plan" will include grants and loans in money and also commodities. 2. More than 75 per cent of the total requirements for the four-year plan will be for food, fuel, fibers and other raw materials. The bulk of this would be made in the form of outright grants.
