College Teachers Write On Postwar Library And Business Survey

Durham — Demoria Lightner, cataloguer in the North Carolina College library and C. Tinsley Willis, acting head of the college's Department of Commerce, have written articles relating to their respective fields in the current issues of "Library Journal" and "The Quarterly Review of Higher Education Among Negroes."

Miss Lightner's article, "The Negro College Library in Postwar Planning, emphasizes libraries responsibilities in developing educational statements. Willis' treatise, "The Need for Business Training in the Public Schools" advocates the introduction of a special course in business principles and practices in the schools.

In her articles, Miss Lightner asserts the college library has a definite responsibility in the development of a new feeling of social responsibility among people everywhere in the post war period. Libraries are also obligated to assist returning veterans in the adjustment to civilian life.

Willis, an experienced teacher of college business courses, asserts that the high school curriculum should be revamped to include courses in college business courses, asserts that will enable students to become more efficient in everyday business matters.

Some of the results that could be expected from a well planned high school survey course in practical business, Willis asserts, would be improvement of consumers' purchasing habits, practical lessons in vocational guidance, needed pre-employment education, and assistance to individuals in their everyday business affairs.

SUIT HELPS REOPEN FLORIDA SCHOOLS

Fort Lauderdale, Fla. — (WDL) — Though they denied that there was discrimination against Negro schools, which had been shut down in order to force the children to work in the fields while white schools were open, authorities in Broward County, of which this town is the seat, have nevertheless opened nine of the schools. It is believed by Workers Defense League attorneys that pressure of the suit filed in federal court in Miami by the Clarence B. Walker Circle resulted in the decision to reopen the Negro children's schools before the time previously set. The Workers Defense League has been active in the case.

Rev. G. W. Larkin Holds Capital Conference

SANFORD — On Wednesday, March 28, at two o'clock in the afternoon, Dr. G. W. Larkin opened the Raleigh District Conference. His message to the members of the District was: Do not concern yourself with the world, for whatever a man soweth that shall he also reap. The Conference was organized. According to program, everything was wisely done. Welcome was extended by the ministers, business and professional men of the city. The Conference was welcomed with physical and spiritual food. At the physical table were the delicious foods provided by Wall Street Baptist Church, Blandonia Freyberg Church, Poplar Springs and St. James AME Churches. Wine was provided by the cool veins that run through Lee county where is situated Sanford, N.C. At the spiritual table were the prepared dishes, such as a hungry soul can appreciate. These were messages from God. They were delivered by men of God who well know the service of the soul: Reverends Robert LaSane, R. L. Lowe, G. R. Perry, A. W. Shirfield (Bro.), James Lassiter (Bro.), and on Friday night by Dr. E. P. G. Dent, president of Kittrell College, served the masters choice dish. This was a divine message of prophetic character from the subject: The Persistence of Personality. Everybody was well fed. Along with these inspiring messages came the sweet harmony from the following choirs: Lincolnville AME, Pittsboro AME, Twilight Music Clubs Male Chorus, and Poplar Springs AME Church. The Doctrine, Polity, History, Missionary, Rules and other phases of church necessities were ably discussed and defended by Dr. C. C. Scott, Rev. J. D. Davis, Rev. R. L. Lowe, Miss Mae N. Hopston, and Rev. G. R. Perry. During the proceedings of the conference Dr. C. A. Stroud was introduced and presented as a representative for Rev. Dr. J. D. Cowan, P. E. of the Morganton District, who was not able to attend the Raleigh District Conference because of his being confined to the bed under the care of his medical doctor. Dr. Stroud also reported that Mrs. Cowan was also confined to her bed. The Conference offered prayer for Dr. Cowan and his family. C. C. Garrison of Allen University, Columbia, S. C. was introduced and presented to the Conference. He gave best of advice and very timely remarks concerning the Negro, His Education and Religion. University, Columbia, S. C., was introduced. Mr. Tommie Stone, Mr. C. C. Jones, Mrs. Gaudie Hargett, Mrs. Vera L. Holt, Mrs. L. Heuden, Mr. L. W. Williams, Rev. J. A. Bridges, Mrs. C. S. Steele, Miss Susie Stone, Mrs. C. N. Farrar, Rev. C. W. Harrell, Capt. G. M. Larkin, Rev. W. A. Bradshaw, Prof. W. B. Wicker, Rev. J. E. McMillan, Rev. I. A. Rutledge, and others. After the spiritual shower on Friday night the Conference closed when all arose to sing God Be With You Till We Meet.
