

Elaborate Plans In Order for Shaw University's Founder's Day

LAW STUDENTS FORM LAW SOCIETY

DURHAM—Students of the North Carolina College of Law School organized last week the Phi Delta Phi Law Society which was organized for the purpose of encouraging and assisting serious scholarship among the law students and to provide wider opportunity for individual initiative and development on the part of the students through self-organized research and study.

Faculty advisor for the group is Prof. Herman L. Taylor and the officers are:

John Longford, president; L. Johnson, vice president; Max An Abbrutt, secretary; John Rennie, treasurer; Martha McDonald, assistant secretary; and Frank Brown is in charge of publicity.

A program of projects and activities will be worked out by a committee on projects of which T. C. Parham, senior law student, is chairman. This committee will be aided by the committee on rules and regulations headed by I. E. Whitaker.

SOME TECHNICALS IN BUILDING PEOPLE

The best and most fruitful discussions are very often not the formal ones but those in which individuals or a group of individuals are like they are, largely because they have learned to talk together, think together, plan together, and act together.

Negro Business Men Invited To Fly To Haiti

WASHINGTON, D.C. (AP)—The Republic of Haiti through Emmer Martin Lancaster, special advisor to the Secretary of Commerce on Negro affairs, has invited a group of fifty colored business men to fly to Haiti at that government's expense and discuss the development of business opportunities open to them there, it was learned last Tuesday.

The invitation is a result of the second annual conference on the Negro in business sponsored here by the Commerce Department October 17-19, and was extended to Mr. Lancaster by Denis Frelon, commercial administrator of the Haitian Republic, who addressed the conference.

Mr. Lancaster indicated that the invitation would be accepted but said certain details would have to be arranged before formal acceptance could be announced.
