S.C. COURT HEARS PRIMARY CASE

COLUMBIA, S. C. — South Carolina "private club" white Democratic primary elections were under their first legal fire here June 3 and 4 when attorneys for George Elmore argued against the exclusion of Negroes in the U. S. court for the Eastern District of South Carolina before Judge J. Waites Waring.

In stipulations filed with the court it was agreed by attorneys for the Richland County Democratic executive committee, the defendants that the present primary elections determine the winner of the final election. They argued that since the state does not conduct the primary the Federal Constitution does not apply.

NAACP lawyers, representing Elmore, argued that under the U. S. Supreme Court's opinion in the Classic case, any election, primary or general, which determines the choice of the voters may not exclude citizens because of race or color.

The battery of lawyers for the defense argued so long on their point of a private club, private church, private association of members, that Judge Waring finally asked whether any instance could be cited where a church had elected a Congressman.

Judge Waring directed both sides to file briefs within ten days and stated he would render his decision after that time. Elmore's attorneys are Harold Boulware of this city, Thurgood Marshall and Robert L. Carter of the New York staff of the NAACP.
