

The Fear Of Truman DIXIECRATS FEAR LOSS OF SOUTHERN JIMCROW PATTERN

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (ANP) — The fear of a south where segregation and discrimination will not be tolerated if President Harry S. Truman is elected in November was expressed by Preston Parks here last week.

He spoke to a group of 30 persons at a backyard meeting of the newly formed States' Rights Democratic committee. He said:

"What will happen if Harry Truman enforces his social revolution?

"There'll be elimination of segregation in the public schools. Negroes will guide, teach and associate with your children. From elementary through college courses — even in private schools — the bi-racial ruling will be enforced.

"All segregation will be done away with in the armed forces. Men about to be inducted will eat together, sleep together. The result will be a sullen disorganized rabble, not a disciplined army.

"Negroes will build wherever they want to, live in any apartment they want to. There'll be no segregation in hospitals, either as patients or as staffs."

Parks urged the group to send delegates to the Dixiecrats state convention Sept. 16 and to support their program.

NEW YORK (ANP) — At a meeting held by the Mayor's committee on Monday, Aug. 30, Mrs. Madeline McCoy, deputy mayor was installed as the interim mayor of Harlem to succeed Sherman Hibbitt, who was elected to that office on March 16 of this year, exactly five months and 14 days ago.

"The change of office," according to Reuben J. Patton, executive director of the committee, "was due to the recent violation of an agreement between the committee and Mr. Hibbitt, when he endorsed the candidacy of President Truman a few weeks ago in Washington, D. C."

"While I am not opposed to the candidacy as president of the United States or any other candidate," the committee feels that no person in this office could really serve the people if he was placed in a position where to get things done he had to commit himself to obligations which would embarrass those that he represented," continued Mr. Patton.

The unofficial Mayor's Committee of Harlem, which is affiliated with the Negro Locality Mayor's committee of New York, Inc., was formed to give the people of Harlem an opportunity to make their voices heard in the government of this great city.

To make sure that the mayor of Harlem would truly represent all the people of this area, the committee had all candidates to sign an agreement, which among other conditions, restricted them from endorsing political candidates and partisan politics.

The committee's reason for this condition was that it felt and believed that if the mayor of Harlem could keep above politics he could be most effective in helping the people of this area.

Wake County Schools To Open On September 15th

The opening of all Wake County Schools has been postponed until September 15 as the State Board of Health reported 29 new cases of polio in North Carolina to bring the 1948 total up to 1,685. Randolph Benton, Wake County superintendent of schools, has announced:

He said the action regarding the county schools had been taken on recommendation of district committees and principals of Negro and white schools in the county, and that one reason for delay was the quarantine on all children under 16 which Dr. A. C. Bulla, Wake County Health Officer, has indicated will not be raised until after September 13.

Jessie O. Sanderson, City Schools superintendent, said city officials will be guided by advice of health authorities, but that as far as he knows now, Raleigh schools will open on September 13.

Dr. Bulla reported that unless something unusual happens in the polio situation, he will make no recommendations regarding further delay in school opening dates. He said that although there may be isolated cases as late as December "we can't keep on delaying the opening of schools if there is no large increase in the incidence."

St. Augustine's College and Shaw University will open on September 14 and 16 respectively.

All pre-school meetings throughout the Wake County school system have been moved up a week in line with the new September 15 opening date for Wake County schools, the only exception to this general postponement of preparatory meetings being the principals' meeting which will be held Monday as scheduled, according to Supt. Benton, and county school bus drivers will not pick up their vehicles until September 13 and 14.

The Man Who Died From Kindness By MARK HYMAN For ANP Sam Tinder was the roughest, crudest, cussingest longshoreman in Baltimore. He could break a man's arms and legs with his bare hands. Women? Bah! They just took your money and cried all the time. But when Sam bumped into petite Lulu Clarke on the bus one day, and she pushed him back into a seat and blessed him out, Sam went soft for her. He tipped his greasy cap when he saw her again. She smiled. It wasn't long before she invited him to her dainty home on McCulloch Street for dinner. Ahhhhhhh. "Twas wonderful. The house smelled sweet with fruits and flowers. The curtains were so clean and fresh, and they blew in and out of the windows with the lazy summer's breeze. The roast beef, creamy whipped potatoes and the ice cream with cherry pie spoiled him for the Greeks forever.

So Sam and Lulu married. She took over immediately. He could not smoke in the living room. She made a den of a spare bedroom for this purpose. He had to come in the back door from work. He had to wear his overshoes when it rained and kept his fiannels on until May. A slight sneeze brought a chest rub with muton. Visits to the taprooms to throw out the elements were forbidden.

Sam became a soft, pampered wreck. One day he fell from a ship into the bay. The boys howled when he ran home to "dearie" to change clothes. He didn't come back to work. The doctor, at Johns Hopkins said Sam had double pneumonia.

Sometimes now while the boys are playing cards and cussing in the shed to pass away time, they tell of the superhuman feats of Sam Tinder . . . and how he died from Kindness.
