HARLEM LAD HAS LEAD FILM ROLE

New York (ANP) — A 10-year-old Harlem boy is cast in the lead role of a documentary drama which is currently being shown at the Little Carnegie theatre here. The boy, untrained in the art of acting, is Donald Thompson; the picture is entitled "The Quiet One."

The story concerns a boy whose childhood has suffered from brutal indifference of his parents and disgust of his grandmother with whom he lives. The rejected wail seeks solace within himself but is rescued from his loneliness by the staff and pupils of the Willwyck school.

The picture was filmed entirely in New York, at the Willwyck School for Boys, Etopus, N. Y. in Harlem apartments and on the city streets.

STAGES BENEFIT — Louis Jordan, who created a real stir with the benefit premier of his "Look Out Sister," staged at a coast theater to raise funds for an interracial, non-denominational playground. Louis is also planning a March theater tour with Paula "Little Birdie" Watson.
