

NAGGING WIFE AND HOT WEATHER EQUAL SUICIDE ATTEMPT

BY ALVIN E. WHITE

NEW YORK (AP) — It was too darn hot for any foolishness, but one can never tell what a woman will make a man do.

Take David Donohue for instance. Dave is just 27 and married. Late should hold a bright future for him, but Monday afternoon he just decided it wasn't worth it — what with the thermometer soaring up towards the bustling mark and his wife's nagging tongue just a few degrees hotter.

They were walking across the Harlem River bridge, just back of the swank Riverfront Apts. and Mrs. Donohue was going to it all she was worth and 10 cents more.

Nearing the center of the span, David felt he was really between the devil and the deep blue sea — so the dirty water of the Harlem looked more inviting than the long stretch of hot concrete ahead, and the swish of the water against the bridge piers sounded more musical than the yakkety yakkety yakkety of Mrs. Dave.

Fifty feet separated him from his double barreled dose and the cool dirty water — so it was not a hesitant Dave who sprang in action. And that spring landed him right in the swirling wash.

That water was moving faster than you could imagine and before Dave knew it, he was floating, swimming and fighting to keep his head up as he was rushed on off to sea. He had gotten only 10 blocks to 125th street, however, when he was spotted floundering around in the not-too-cool, and swirling stream by two off-duty police who were returning from taking a promotional exam. They leaped in (after stripping off their duds) and swam about 50 yards to rescue the now thoroughly disgusted and disillusioned Donohue. When they pulled him out of the water, all three were taken to Harlem hospital for treatment and sent home.

There is no record of what Mrs. Dave said when her spouse was returned safely, but past performances indicate that even jumping off a bridge won't stop a nagging woman's tongue — and it surely won't lower the temperature.

COTTON PICKING MACHINE USE NOT YET AT CAPACITY

Although harvesting of cotton by mechanical pickers has increased rapidly in the Mississippi Delta in the last few years, machines in use in the area generally harvest only a small part of the total production.

According to a report based on a study made by the Mississippi Agricultural Experiment Station cooperating with the Bureau of Agricultural Economics, U. S. Department of Agriculture, up to now mechanical pickers have been used only to supplement the hand labor force.

The report, "Mechanical Cotton Picker Operation in the Yazoo-Mississippi Delta" covers a survey financed in part with funds from the Research and Marketing Act. Described as "preliminary," the report is part of a larger study dealing with all aspects of cotton mechanization.

Mechanically picked cotton in the Delta cost farmers, for harvesting, the equivalent of $2.42 a hundred pounds of seed cotton in 1947 when rates for hand picking ranged from $2.50 to $4.50. Costs included wastage and grade losses, as well as operating costs. The later includes out-of-pocket expenses and depreciation and interest on the actual cost of the machine. If based on the higher 1948 price of the machine, the cost to pick one hundred pounds would have averaged $2.65.

North Carolina growers this year are expecting to produce about 475,000 turkeys or 35 to 40 per cent more than in 1948.

Peak movement of the 1949 cantaloup crop in North Carolina is expected about the second week in July.

HEADS SCHOOL NAMED IN HIS HONOR

COLUMBIA, S. C. (AP) — Supervisor C. A. Johnson will become one of the few persons ever to supervise a project built in his honor when he takes over the new C. A. Johnson High School now being constructed.

Johnson will become principal of the new school after 25 years experience with the Columbia education system. During that time he rose from the teacher of a one-room 12 grade school to the supervisor of Negro schools for the city.

The Johnson school will be a modern three-story building able to accommodate 1,100 students. The plant will feature terrazzo floors, fluorescent lights, and pastel plaster walls.

Roomy metal lockers will line the corridors. The new blackboards will be of the green no glare color. Another feature will be a large library. A combination auditorium-gymnasium will seat 2,000 persons.

The basement will house a modern cafeteria, kitchen, and storage room. Class rooms on this floor will be home economics and science laboratories. It will also have staff and student conference rooms.

Johnson will have a faculty of 37 teachers under him at the new high school when it opens about a month or so from now.

In an annex building, the band, industrial arts, and choral groups will practice.

A 17-acre campus adjoins the fireproof building. Plans are being made for the development of this land area.

Johnson is a native of Columbia. He is a graduate of Johnson C. Smith university, and has done graduate work at Harvard and Columbia universities.

Speaking of his appointment as principal of Johnson high he said:

"My immediate responsibility will be to set this new school up and direct its organization."

CRISIS CARRIES STORY OF HAITI

NEW YORK — "Haiti is at the present moment an immense workshop," states Joseph D. Charles, Haitian Ambassador to the United States, in his article, "Haiti On the Wings of Progress," featured in the July issue of The Crisis, official organ of the NAACP.

The things closest to the heart of President Estime upon his advent to power was to raise the Haitian standard of living," writes Ambassador Charles.

The article describes the subsequent intensification of the production of food products by irrigation and drainage, plans being made for new sugar factories, efforts toward the improvement of livestock, plans for the construction of interregional highways to facilitate internal commerce, and the erection of new schools and hospitals.

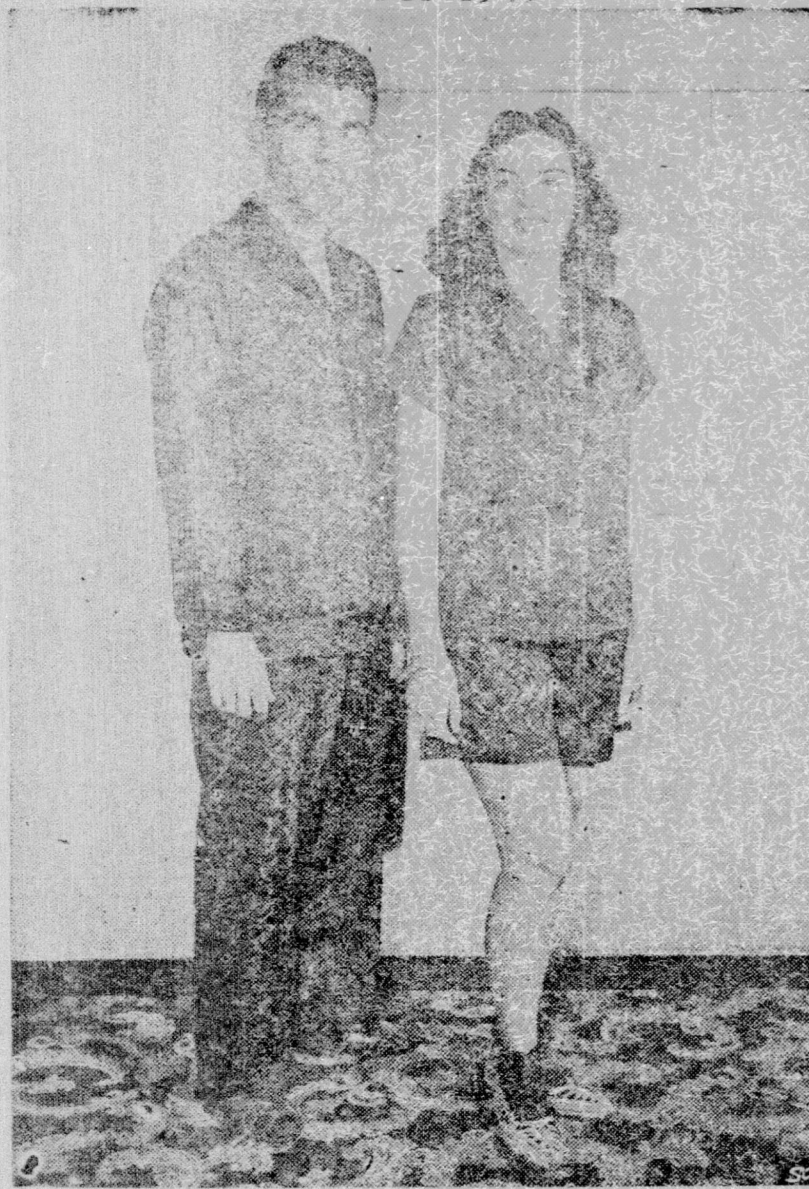

The Department of Urban Works, Mr. Charles reveals, is now in the process of improving the environs of Haiti's capital, Port-au-Prince, which will be the scene of the Grand International Exposition of December, 1949.

FUNERAL DIRECTORS TO HOLD CLINIC

TALLAHASSEE — The Florida Negro Funeral Directors and Embalmers Association in session at Ft. Lauderdale made plans to hold a clinic at the Florida A. and M. College July 19, 20, 21. Dr. William H. Gray, Jr., President, invited the morticians to the college, and is preparing to make the clinic an annual affair.

New For 1949

It's 1949's newest design for men's sleeping tops — but women can wear 'em, too! Made of green rayon, these jacquard pajamas are styled in quarter sleeve, knee length, as worn by girl and called "demi-jamas." Coat style worn by boy has the convertible collar, and standard length sleeves and trousers. Previewed in New York City by Wilson Brothers, Chicago, latest manufacturer of men's furnishings of its kind in the country, such toney apparel predicts an era of male "peacock" elegance for next Spring. Brilliant colors and bold, new styles — from dazzling ties and sport shirts to vivid unmentionables — will be in every man's wardrobe next year... providing women don't raid them!

B. T. Harvey, President of the Atlanta College of Mortuary Science, will be principal consultant on public relations and professional standards and Barrington McCarter, outstanding embalmer and restorative artist, will be the consultant in that field. G. P. Coleman, prominent and successful mortician of West Palm Beach, Florida, is to be the consultant on funeral management.

The Education Committee of the State Association under the leadership of Mrs. F. E. Stone of Tampa is cooperating with the college in planning the program for the clinic.
