TROPHY — The other day we were informed of a project that we think will prove an inspiring thing to local high school athletics. The coach at Wm. Penn. Jonathan Campbell, has placed boxes about town to receive funds from the public to buy a trophy for the most valuable player at the school this year.

We have noted this method at other places and schools and have been of the opinion that it works well for the boys, as well as the team morale. Sometimes clubs interested in boys offer such trophies and even though the coach and the boys initiated the present project here it might welcome some interested organizations to get behind it and help put it over.

Trophies have their place in the life of youth as well as adults and to be VALUABLE is double worth. Have you not seen in homes of old friends moth eaten banners they will go back and bring out when referring to some school experience or maybe keep in sight a trophy they got for this or that.

We believe the real worth of an individual comes out when there is some incentive. It also teaches a much needed lesson in the presentation of the trophy. The lesson — Those who do not win learn to appreciate success of their fellowman and to know that the most valuable man in one endeavor is not necessarily the most valuable man in all endeavors.

One trophy for achievement may lead to others and the true value of each man can be appreciated at the proper time and place.

School in High Point. She did her work for the M. A. in the fields of curriculum and instruction on the elementary level. Her bachelor of arts degree was received from Winston-Salem Teachers College.

TUITION — Over in this area of the Carolinas collegiate circles show signs of building programs. The young man or woman attending a North Carolina College is certainly getting more modern campus buildings. Other than tuition campus life looms large on the college student's calendar.

At Bennett the young ladies will soon enter the Student Union Building which is something of the "new look" for the young women there.

A. and T. College has one of the most extensive building programs in the state. Winston-Salem Teachers College women will see new dormitory conveniences and the new campus gymnasium strikes quite a figure in the plans released by the architect. Livingstone has already begun to use its new buildings.

Joe College and Betty Coed need only tuition and brain dust now to get the culture and contact becoming more and more available in all North Carolina Institutions of higher learning. Much of the fundamental features of education on the college level has always been available to those who willed to drink deep enough into the Promethean springs of learning in our institutions. With coming equipment, education should be more potent and maybe not such a dangerous thing after all.

TO STUDY — James A. Rowe, executive secretary of the Carl Chavis YMCA here, has resigned his job pending acceptance of the resignation by the board. Mr. Rowe stated that he has a fellowship to study in the North Carolina College school of Public Health in Durham. This situation might handicap the YMCA for a while unless a good person can be secured to replace the present executive. We hope that the board of directors will be able to fill this position with little difficulty. At the time we were informed Mr. Rowe knew of no one that had been named to succeed him.

MEN'S fashion PARADE by the EAGLE STYLE REPORTER

MUSIC Under the Stars—From coast to coast, at the Hollywood Bowl, in the Colorado Mountains, in the Berkshires, on the Central Park Mall and at Lewisohn Stadium, millions of people gather each year to enjoy "Music under the Stars." Being very fond of long-hair music we climbed under the stars at Lewisohn stadium one sultry summer night, where people have been hearing the classics since 1917.

Accompanied by singer Tony Martin and stage and screen star Rex Harrison, we lost ourselves in a piano concert by nimble-fingered Oscar Levant. Picture this scene — there you are, high up under a star-studded moonlit sky. The lovely tunes of a Bach fugue, a Brahms concerto or a Beethoven symphony floating heavenward into your ears. It's so romantic and beautiful, that music from the piano, or from the voice of Jan Peerce or the baton of a talented conductor. It's one of the closest approaches to heaven that a poor mortal can ever get.

AND it's the same in any open air stadium, and there are hundreds all across the nation.

where beautiful music is played under the stars. We had that confirmed by handsome Tony Martin, who looked particularly good in an Eagle double-breasted, one-button, blue unfinished worsted suit, while languishing on the bench next to Rex Harrison expertly dressed in a 2-button single-breasted brown sharkskin suit. Rex, incidentally will shortly resume his role of Henry VIII in the Broadway play "Anne of the Thousand Days."

When we whisperingly inquired how they enjoyed this "Music Under The Stars," both of them merely lifted sturdy digits to tightly closed lips and replied: "Sssssshhhhhhhhhhh"
