SEEK HEARING IN L. I. SCHOOL CASE

NEW YORK — An application for a hearing on the Hempstead L. I. segregated school appeal, presently pending before the Commission of Education of the State of New York, was filed this week by attorneys for the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

In the application, the NAACP charged that eight parents of 17 children signed letters and affidavits to the superintendent of schools, indicating that they wished their children to remain in the segregated Prospect School, although they live outside of that district.

The same parents were served with an affidavit filed by all five members of the local school board, stating that the parents voluntarily signed letters expressing the wish that their children remain in the Prospect School. The school board affidavit further asserted that the charge of the NAACP that Negro school children are segregated in Hempstead is approved by the fact that Negroes participate in all of the extra-curricular activities in the high school although they comprise only 11 per cent of the students in the school.

The facts concerning the high school, it charges, stated Mrs. Constantine Baker, NAACP attorney handling the case, are entirely irrelevant to the issue in this case but are typical of the conduct of the school board to N. A. A. C. P. charges that the local board deliberately reexamined the school district lines so as to continue the segregated status of Prospect.

TOWN FAMED FOR RACIAL HARMONY MARKS 150 YEARS

AARONSBURG, Pa. (AP) — Three noted Negro leaders participated Sunday in ceremonies marking the 150th anniversary of the Salem Lutheran church founded on and named by a Jewish immigrant, Dr. Ralph J. Bunche, U. N. ambassador, Dr. Channing H. Tobias, director Phelps-Stokes foundation, and Julius Thomas, secretary of the National Urban League, were among the notables who attended the sesquicentennial.

Because of its unique history, this little town of 400 persons is regarded as a symbol of good race relations.

On Nov. 16, 1789, Aaron Levy, a Jew, founded the Salem Evangelical Lutheran church, the event which was remembered by a Jewish immigrant who came to America from Amsterdam in 1760. Levy furnished supplies to the American Revolutionary army and loaned large sums of money to the Continental Congress, some of which was never repaid.

Although Levy dreamed of the central Pennsylvania town, he founded as a possible capital of the state. Aaronburg never grew beyond its present 400 population. Today, only one Jewish family lives there — and a few Catholics. But as one native puts it: "That doesn't mean we're not proud of our town's founder and the importance of what he did for the Lutheran church."

LONDON (AP) — A member of the House of Commons demanded last week he should see the British government to demand a U. N. probe of race policies in the United States.

Kenneth Robinson, an independent member of Parliament, said he would see the government to demand that the U. N. Human Rights Commission investigate the treatment of the Negro in America.

Robinson, who was elected from the Labour party several months ago because of his pro-Communist views, said he had been supported throughout his speech by workers who shouted and sang.

BALDWIN TO QUIT ACLU DIRECTORSHIP

NEW YORK (AP) — Roger N. Baldwin, director of the American Civil Liberties Union, since it was founded in 1920, will resign for a year to devote his time to specialized work in the field of international law.

According to John Hoyer Weingarten, chairman of the ACLU's board, Baldwin's resignation was attributed to the increasing concern of the ACLU with the reorganization of the United States to the promotion of international standards of civil liberties.

He will devote most of his time to the Institute for the Study of the History of the American People on the subject of international law, and the Executive Committee of the American People.

White and colored doctors were available on the subject of health in the association's sessions. Many pointed out that the Negro doctor is not only a professional man but also a social worker.

Other leading medical authorities, they said, make arrangements to accompany all their members at the same hotels.

Some 25 Negro delegates are expected at the Autumn Council which will vote a budget for the world-wide projects, including $30,000 for the faculty operated Okefenokee college and Riverside station.
