A TWIN VICTORY FOR HOMECOMING

The rain began falling around 5 p. m. that Friday evening. Although not late, the mist and clouds were not so thick as to offer too much inspiration for the scores of people who were waiting out to see a Saturday Afternoon Day for the parade and football game. Hopes were very high that the weather might be pleasant on the day, but there was disappointment.

Saturday morning, no sun, no signs of sun for the day. Rain, wind, cold, and beating rain — and groups of it. Soon time arrows converged along the sidewalks.

12:30 — they still waited... the rains continued to fall — 1 p. m. A motorcycle policeman wearing a rain beaten cap and raincoat camouflaged the streets clearing traffic for Shaw University parade to show its colors. Seemingly, the sun only came down harder as the light-spirited marching students marched down the streets by the rhythm of the drum and bugle corps. But that did not mean a thing as far as they were concerned. The weather may have been inhuman, but the sun was shining in the hearts of everyone of them who braved and triumphantly marched.

There were comments — some — and some had. But the spectators must have appreciated the parade. Had they not, why would they watch?

The student's spirits were at peak. There was something about the day HOMECOMING that meant something extraordinary. As one participant in the parade shouted: "WE HAVE LOST, BUT WE WILL WIN" — the Shaw Bears proved to Raleigh Shaw Alumni and visiting friends from other cities that they would win.

Saturday afternoon — 2 p. m. Chavis field was muddy. The rain continued to pour. Fans thronged with raincoats and umbrellas and the Bears corralled out on the field with the determination to challenge the visiting Salem team to a victory. The harder the rain, the more power the Bears had. What happened? Well, if you did not go, you missed a good game. Shaw came through with flying colors.

Saturday night — 8 p. m. Chavis field was still muddy. Ole "haws" actually "showed off." And in this regard, it chilled the fans, making spectators huddle and clothe in order to stay warm. Now and then the rain stopped, but the "haws" just kept on blowing, and every one moved about, wringing hands and rubbing ears to keep circulation in progress.

The St. Augustine's "Mighty Falcons" and the Bluefield "Big Blues" lined up despite the bleak cold rain and slippery field for the clash. It was a great game, and the two great teams gave the fans something to talk about. The pigskin was as slick as glass, but the Falcons came through with the victory. It was a great day in Raleigh. A twin victory was made in extremely unfavorable weather.

THE NURSE PLANS BIG HOLIDAY

Thanksgiving is definitely going to be a big day for Miss Naomi Evans, student nurse at Saint Agnes Hospital. She plans to get her share of turkey, cranberry sauce, and all the other Thanksgiving trimmings when she goes home November 23. Miss Evans resides in Burlington, North Carolina.

WHAT A FLOAT!

It would have been a treat for spectators to see how the weather been fair last Saturday. The floats designed by the various schools, and businesses were very picturesque.

The Saint Agnes Hospital float, although not used, featured a huge caduceus that was attractively decorated.

LITTLE NANCY WILL HAVE BIRTHDAY

There is going to be cake, ice cream, nuts and candy. But wait, that cake is going to be decorated, and inscribed "Happy Birthday," with two big candles on it.

Yes, little Nancy Carolyn Smith of 1020 Holman Street is going to be a happy baby Sunday, November 19. The little lady, who always has a smile, is going to have an extraordinary smile, because she will be royally honored next Sunday. Let's wish her a very happy birthday, with many, many more to come.

ST. AGNES QUEEN

Representing Saint Agnes Hospital last week, as queen for the Homecoming was Miss Vandell Jones, of Apex, N. C.

Her first and second attendants were Misses Marie Russell and Ruby Weaver. Others included Misses Naomi Bethel, Janet Fuller, and Elaine Little. All students possess. The queen is a junior student major at the hospital.

NEW REC ROOM AT SAINT AGNES

Believe me, it is a dandy! And the students appreciate it very much. The new recreation room in the St. Agnes Nurses Home features everything from ping pong tables to a checker board. Watch this room closely from now on. You'll probably be reading about accounts of who's the best table tennis player or checker board king among the nurses over there.

I know that it is difficult get the heat out of a nice warm bed to get the breeze. But, try to mix around swiftly to avoid getting cold, get dressed, and attend some Church next Sunday. You know, it is very warm in Church.
