Inspiring Addresses Mark Butner Commencement

By ALICE A. DUNNIGAN
BUTNER, N. C.—(AP)—"There is only one way to go if you are to live successfully, that is 'forward'" declared Dr. Joseph S. Hines, professor of sociology, North Carolina college.

Speaking at the commencement exercise at the North Carolina Rehabilitation center for the Blind in Butner, last Friday, Dr. Hines advised the graduates to, first of all, decide upon their destination. "Make up your minds what you want to do, what you want to be, and what you want to make of your lives," he said. "Then equip yourselves with the right tools for living."

The right tools, he explained, consist of the development of certain skills and crafts. "Use whatever skills and techniques you have and whatever learning you receive to make others a successful life," continued Dr. Hines.

"You must use imagination to cook up new, better and more efficient aids for successful living. Impaired vision does not hinder creative imagination," declared the blinded college professor.

No DETOUR ON THE ROAD OF SUCCESS. Speaking on the subject "One Way Only," the sociology instructor encouraged the 12 blinded graduates to keep moving forward, because there are no detours on the road of successful living.

"If you eternally and everlastingly push forward, making the best use of your time, resources, experiences and opportunities, you cannot fail," concluded Dr. Hines.

John R. Smith, consultant in vocational services for the blind at Federal Security agency in Washington outlined to the blind students job opportunities which are now available for the handicapped.

Pointing out that four-million people will be needed for defense work by April 1, next year, the blind consultant advised the trainees to make the best use of their training so that they might be prepared to fill some of the job openings which will be made available to them.

Smith said he had recommended that Negro specialist be placed in the various regional offices throughout the United States to help find job opportunities for the blind persons in those regions and to help establish better training opportunities for Negro people.

In the concluding address, H. A. Wood of Raleigh, executive secretary of the state Commission for the Blind, reminded the graduates that they have an "obligation to fulfill." He encouraged them by saying that "no night can last forever and there is no darkness that can blind out the spirit."

KEEP FAITH IN GOD. He advised them to "keep alive an abiding faith in God, in man and in yourselves, because faith will bring victory over wrong," he said.
