

BOMB-SLINGERS INVADE N. C.

North Carolina's
Leading Weekly

THE CAROLINIAN

10c PER COPY
Worth More!

VOLUME XI

RALEIGH, NORTH CAROLINA

WEEK ENDING SATURDAY JANUARY 19, 1951

NUMBER 10

G.I. 'Raffles' Admits $10,000 Jewel Robbery

Citizens Lose Valued Property As N. C. Animal Mutilations Continue

TRIAL SET FOR MAN LYNCH MOB FORMED FOR

LEXINGTON — Hiram Price of Winston-Salem, top-notch civil rights lawyer will defend John Roman, who will be tried for his life here Jan. 28 on a murder charge which followed the robbery-death of Mrs. Herbert Hinshaw a white widow here last August.

Solicitor Charles T. Hagen Jr. of Greensboro has said he will ask the death penalty.

Hagen said that a special venire of jurymen is to be summoned to hear the case, but it has not been decided from which county the jury will be drawn.

John C. Bower and Wade H. Phillips of Lexington have been retained by relatives and friends of Mrs. Hinshaw to assist in the prosecution.

The Hinshaw death attracted considerable attention here last August. Mrs. Hinshaw, widowed for many years, had lived alone in her home.

Her body was discovered by neighbors when she failed to keep a weekly appointment with relatives.

Lexington police, who said they (Continued on page 9)

N.C. EDITORS LOOK AT FREEDOM WITH TIME EDITOR

—These three student editors at North Carolina College, Durham, are shown here examining a copy of "Paravada", official Russian government newspaper. Pictured above are left to right, Miss Margaret F. Morgan, editor of the Campus Echo, N. C.

week Scott, expelled from Russia for allegedly violating Soviet censorship regulations, spoke at N. C. C. on the responsibility of readers to safeguard the freedom of American newspapers. Pictured above are left to right, Miss Margaret F. Morgan, editor of the Campus Echo, N. C.

C. undergraduate newspaper; Mr. Scott, M. D. Thorpe, Echo managing editor; and Miss Lorraine James, Echo business manager. Miss Morgan is from Boston, Miss Thorpe comes from Durham, and Miss James is from Aboskie, N. C.

SURVEY REVEALS THAT SADISTS ARE UNBIASED

Residents Report Many Prized Pets, Live-stock Harmed

By Carolinian News Network
RALEIGH — The sadists who continue to mutilate animals throughout the state for no apparent reason are not biased about whose animals they mutilate, a Carolinian News Network survey reveals this week.

In fact, in a majority of cases, the dogs, cats, pigs and even cows subjected to inhuman treatment by persons now being hunted by a group headed by Governor Kerr Scott are the properties of Negro citizens.

Only this week, Mrs. Viola Bostic of High Point reported that a dog belonging to her had been mutilated. During the past three weeks, Network reporters note, other cases of animal mutilations have been noted in Negro residential areas.

Despite the incidence of these occurrences in Negro areas, however, the general trend of thinking is that the person or persons guilty are of another race.

MRS. BOSTIC'S HOUND

In her report to High Point officials this week, Mrs. Bostic, who lives at 408 Leonard Street in the furniture-manufacturing city, revealed that her dog's head was cut off.

She said she found the dog, a hound, with the head severed, lying on a railway embankment. Its hind legs tied together with a window sash cord.

The head could not be found in the Charlotte area, two cows (Continued on page 8)

WHERE BOMB WENT OFF

Sanford Holden, prosperous Granville County farmer, center points to the place where one of two charges of dynamite went off under a recently-completed dwelling he owns and caused considerable damage last weekend. Also visible in the picture are frames of windows which were splintered when the blast occurred. Mr. Holden had been "warned" that something would happen to his property if he persisted in making much needed improvements in the neighborhood near the house of Grissom where his extensive holdings are located — CAROLINIAN photo by Shirley.

TRIES AT ARSON PROVE FUTILE AT BURLINGTON

BURLINGTON — At least two attempts were made at arson here shortly after midnight last Saturday when persons or persons as yet unknown threw flaming bottles of gasoline against the side of a home and a storehouse.

The buildings are within a short distance of each other on Rowdy Street in a predominantly Negro section.

The corner of a small frame house belonging to Steadman Isley was slightly burned when it was ignited by one of the fire bombs and a hole was burned in the wall of a small storehouse located to the side and rear of Pete's Place, a cafe owned and operated by Pete Hall. Isley deals in clothing at his home.

W. F. Baker of Pleasant Grove said that he noticed the storehouse at Pete's Place was on fire when he came into the city to visit Isley shortly after 1 a.m. He and Isley went to help extinguish the blaze and when they returned to Isley's house they found the rear corner ablaze, he reported.

Isley said he thought he heard a noise at the rear of his home when Baker came and they left to go to the cafe but that he did not stop to investigate.

(Continued on page 8)

Go To Classes And Games With 'Em, But Dance--Never

UNC School Dance Causes Racial Tiff

CHAPEL HILL — Go to class with them, O. K., go to football and basketball games with them, O. K. — but dance with them? Never! is the way the University of North Carolina evidently feels about its Negro law school students.

Even though the five Negro students now studying at the Chapel Hill institution have announced that they are "too busy studying" to attend a dance projected by the law school for the benefit of its students, University officials have seen fit to make an issue of the proposed affair.

STUDENT FAVOR ATTENDANCE

An appreciable majority of the students of the University's Law School favor the attendance of the five Negro students at their traditional dance. The administration of the university, however, took a different viewpoint in the matter. University Chancellor Robert F. House voiced the stand of the institution in a letter to Law School. (Continued on page 8)

MAN SENTENCED IN CAIN-ABEL MURDER CASE

WINSTON-SALEM — In a "Cain and Abel" killing here recently, a five to seven year sentence was handed down in Forsyth County Superior Court this week.

The prison term was handed Woodrow T. Martin, 28, who admitted engaging in a fight with his brother, Leroy, on October 25. The outcome of the fight was the fatal shooting of Leroy.

Woodrow Martin says that his (Continued on page 8)

Youth, 19 Kills The Wrong Man

By Carolinian News Network
NEW BERN — A 19-year-old youth has been charged with murder in a case growing out of the shooting of "the wrong man," James Bryant has been held in jail here this week on charges of firing a .45 calibre slug into the stomach of John Clark, also 19, on last Saturday night.

Clark died of the wound a few minutes after he was admitted to the local Good Shepherd Hospital.

According to local police officials, Bryant has admitted the shooting. He claims, however, that he was gunning for another man and mistook Clark for his intended victim.

Just whom Bryant would have shot had not Clark been the victim was not revealed.

Bomb Planted Under Home Dwelling In Granville

AIR FORCE PRIVATE NABBED IN CONNECTION WITH GEM ROBBERY

Raleigh Youth Faces Federal Rap; Arrested At Wyoming Air Corps Base

RALEIGH — Local police officers this week revealed that a 22-year-old G.I. "Raffles" has confessed engineering a jewelry store robbery here recently which netted an estimated $10,000 in loot.

Officers say that Air Force Private Donnell Patterson, whose home address is listed as 224 E. Davis Street here, has admitted entering the Land's Jewelers store here during a recent burglary from a Wyoming air base and taking commodities for which value has been placed at the $10,000 mark.

FBI IN ON CASE

Because of his military status and because he allegedly admitted disposing of goods taken from the store over a number of states, Patterson is being interrogated by Federal Bureau of Investigation attaches, the local police reveal.

TRACED BY KEY

The robbery, committed two days before Patterson returned to the Wyoming camp, was traced to the young GI through a check-up on keys to the store.

Patterson, a former employee of the Land's firm was found to have never returned the key he once had to the building.

Investigation of the robbery (Continued on page 8)

Unoccupied Structure Bomb Encountered

By A Staff Writer
OXFORD — House bombing headlines last week moved their headquarters from Mims, Florida into Granville County, North Carolina when they plotted two charges of dynamite under the corner of a prosperous Negro farmer's newly-constructed rental house dwelling.

According to Granville County sheriff's department officials, the house being built by Sanford Holding, 55, was bombed after the noted Granville farmer carpenter had been told that "some-

(Continued on page 8)

GIVE Voluntarily 10c MARCH OF DIMES JANUARY 2-31

MARCH OF DIMES SUPPORTERS

Left to right: J. E. Dirksen, Columbia, S.C., Grand Secretary Prince Hall Masons of South Carolina; Lawrence A. Oxley, Washington, D.C., Industry Relations Representative, U.S. Department of Labor; J. E. Drake, Normal, Ala., President Alabama Agricultural and Mechanical College; Kelly M. Alexander, Charlotte, N.C., National Board N.A.A.C.P.

NO CAUSE FOR ALARM SEEN IN MAN'S DEATH

WINSTON-SALEM (CNN) — Investigators here have ruled that there was no cause for alarm in the death of a 75-year-old man whose body was discovered sprawled on the kitchen floor of his home with a deep gash cut. (Continued on page 8)

BRITAIN'S FIRST

Grantley Herbert Adams, well-known British barrister, was recently honored by the English government by being named the first Negro member to a British United Nations delegation. Barrister Adams was also recently honored by citations from King George, England's monarch.

The State-In Brief

School Opening Date Set

LEXINGTON — A new school for Negro use will be ready for occupancy here next September, a representative of contractors for the edifice announced this week.

The school, one of two being built here, is part of a $2 million project. Contracts for both buildings were let last May, but delay in securing allocations for building materials held up construction.

A new white senior high school, also part of the project, will not be ready for occupancy until December, 1952.

8 Saved, 1 Dead In Fire

WILMINGTON — Police officers on the prowl for persons believed involved in an assault on military policemen here last Monday night were "Johnny on the Spot" when a fire broke out. They managed to save eight persons from a fiery death, but failed to rescue a ninth.

Miss Margaret Johnson, 25, lost her life when she failed to reach helping hands tendered her by officers E. Priest and W. L. Godley, who succeeded in pulling everyone to safety but the victim when they rushed toward an air pump a position says.

The officers report that they came within six inches of grasping Miss Johnson's fingertips despite their urging, she turned her back to them and walked back into the flames.

Religious Week Observed

GREENSBORO — A & T College here is now in the midst of observance of an annual Religious Week event.

The observance was opened Sunday when the Rev. W. E. Carrington of New Rochelle, N. Y., delivered the first in a series of messages.

Rev. Mr. Carrington was scheduled to deliver messages of religious import Sunday through Wednesday.

STILL SWINGS WEIGHT

Former heavyweight boxing champion Joe Louis this week proved that he still swings a lot of weight when he was granted permission to become the first Negro golfer to participate in the San Diego (California) Open tournament which gets underway Thursday. The meet, under Professional Golfers Association auspices, was formerly fly-white. Louis, though successful in his attempt to enter the meet, failed in his attempt to compel the PGA to recognize other Negro linksmen.