COLLEGE PRESIDENT PRAISED BY DAILY

SALISBURY, N. C. — The Salisbury Evening Post, local daily newspaper, in an unprecedented editorial Monday's edition, paid glowing tribute to the founder of Livingstone College, the late Dr. Joseph Charles Price, but took special notice of the fact that Dr. Price, president, was buried in the 27 years of service that he had rendered the college and the community.

The editorial closed with the following: "Let us keep it simple. There are things in the air, in the air so disturbed these days by the conflict that exists between international, ecclesiastical, or many- versus children, all appears to be part and parcel of a single social phantasmagoria. But in confidence of essential validity when the clouds have fallen, we take pleasure in saluting Dr. Price as a man of measure in an extraordinary capacity, and constructively as a man of few but our citizens may equal and none surpass."
