

Complete Integration Urged By Speaker At PTA Confab

SALISBURY, N.C.—The South is economically unable to provide equal education for both white and colored students; therefore all Americans should begin with the schools and work for complete integration in all phases of American life.

So said Attorney Harold T. Epps, speaking before the 8th District PTA Congress School of instruction held here Saturday at Monroe Street School.

The young Winston-Salem lawyer asserted that the first step toward complete integration is in education on all levels from the elementary schools through the universities.

Speaking on the legal aspects of the theme "Every Child and Equal Chance," he pointed out that our greatest enemy in the fight against communism is our own institution of segregation.

He said, "We are to win the cold war," he said, "we must work for the abolition of segregation.

He added, "It is the best and only solution to this racial problem in America."

In working for integration we are doing a service to our country, he said.

"To accomplish the task of integration we urged colored people to vote and to help organizations like the NAACP and Americans for Democratic Action, but we warned the race to be cautious and to analyze groups to which they contribute because 'Communists sometimes jump on the bandwagon.'

Mr. Epps' address came during the afternoon session of the Congress which convened Saturday morning at 10 o'clock when Dean J. H. Satterwhite, president of the local PTA Council, led devotions among participants from the 12 county area meeting to instruct, inform and inspire proper procedures in PTA work for benefit of youth. Delegates from Rowan, Iredell, Catawba, Stanley and Anson Counties, J. R. Henry of Bessie City, president of the 8th District PTA Congress, was a visitor.

Words of welcome came from Prof. C. A. Carson, principal of the host school, Dr. W. J. Tren, representative of the Salisbury City School Board of Trustees, and from City Superintendent J. H. Knox.

Mrs. E. Carter Smith, president of the district, gave the purpose of the school and brought greetings from Mrs. H. H. Davis, state PTA president.

Mrs. M. A. Holiday of Asheville and William Littlejohn of Statesville spoke on the roles of the community and church, respectively, in their responsibilities to the total education of youth.

The school was divided into four sections: "Policies," led by L. B. Hall of Salisbury and E. E. Waddell of Albemarle; "Adolescence," by Mrs. B. R. Hall of Salisbury; "Moral Development," Miss Annie R. Lowery of Salisbury; and "Sex," Mrs. Lois H. Hayes of Livingstone College.

Reporting on policies, Bowden Anderson of Albemarle and Jas. A. Clarke of Cleveland pointed out that the PTA should not be dictatorial; rather, it should cooperate with other agencies to creation and forcing and that the reported in moral development of school children a program of discipline and punishment. The group suggested educational meetings of the PTA and school administrators to discuss important administrative policies.

Mrs. Margaret S. Little, a group member, pointed out that parents should have attention for them, children and provide parties at home, that the church provide its own leadership, who come to the question.

When responsible for teaching sex to children? While admitting they could draw no conclusions, members said children should be given facts.

Music was furnished by local choral groups from Lincoln and Monroe St. Elementary Schools. The former group was directed by Miss Celeste Arington and the latter by T. M. Johnson with Mrs. N. J. Laish as assistant.

BARTENDER UNION HOLDS PARTY

The Newark (N.J.) Bartender's Union, Local 386, held its annual shindig at the Idlewild Hotel recently and leaders in the liquor industry turned out to honor John Williams, President (fourth from left). Others shown are William Bogner, N.J. State Manager of Calvert Distillers Corp. of New York; Herman Williams, Federal Wine & Liquor Corp. of Newark; Johnny Christian of Galsworthy Wine & Liquor, Newark; Mr. Williams and Charles Hagan, treasurer of the Union.

CHAMPS GET TOGETHER—When Sarah Vaughan had a gala birthday party on the closing night of her appearance at New York's Birdland, patrons were treated to a double treat. On hand to greet the five-in-a-row winner of "top vocalist" (in Downbeat and Metronome magazines) was the "old champ" himself, Joe Louis. A little older, and a little bolder, Joe was still the "celebrity" of old, signing scores of autographs for admirers. The lovely Sarah, who celebrated her (?) birthday, entertained scores of friends and presidents of her many fan clubs. Among the guests was Dinah ("queen of the juke boxes") Washington, who followed Sarah into the Broadway House of Bop. George Treadwell, Sarah's husband and manager played host.

Catholics Practice Democracy in Meet

BY T. C. JERVAY

WILMINGTON, N.C.—The spring meeting of the Wilming Dicastery, which comprises about one-sixth of the North Carolina Catholic Laymen's Association, was held at Saint Thomas church, here, Sunday, March 23, three o'clock, with approximately three hundred delegates and friends in attendance.

The meeting was interracial and there was no segregation. Fr. R. E. Beyer, chairman, Wilming Dicastery, presided. He said the Dicastery's membership had increased by sixty-nine since the last session in 1951. The Wilming Dicastery is made up of 24 parishes.

Father Beyer made a stirring appeal to help in spreading the work of the Church. The main vehicle urged by him was the Bible class. Catholics should not be behind in the Bible, he said, for after all, "our Mother" gave to the world the Bible. Every man is called upon to be a minister of Christ to his family.

The speaker urged Catholics to answer attacks made upon the church. Use your newspaper, he said, with the public, almost as much as you do. King was good.

Among those listed to make reports of their parish's work, which in all cases showed marked improvement, were Mrs. Margaret Glavin, chairman, St. Thomas unit; Mildred B. Endbury, chairman, St. Michael's unit; F. B. Green, chairman, Sacred Heart unit; John T. Kemp, chairman, St. Mary's unit; Philip Dow, St. Joseph's unit; New Bern; Gerard Verzel, FOREST HOUSE AWARDS—New York's interracial children's center, Forest House, played host to UN representatives and Judge and Mrs. J. Waties Waring at an impressive Waldorf-Astoria dinner last week. The Hon. Benjamin Cohen, Assistant Secretary General of the UN, accepted the 1951 Forest House award for the Secretariat of the UN. Federal Judge Waring, formerly of South Carolina, who'll make New York his home, also was a recipient of a Forest House award for his democratic principles. Shown here after dinner (l to r) are: Judge Waring, J. Clarence Davis, Jr., president of Forest House, Hon. Benjamin Cohen, Mrs. Bessie Buchanan, co-chairman, dinner committee, George Gregory, Jr., director of Forest House and Channing H. Tobias, director of Phelps-Stokes fund and UN delegate.

HYBRID CORN TESTED ON FARMS—Before new corn hybrids are recommended for use in North Carolina, they are carefully tested at research experiment stations and on individual farms throughout the state. The work is done by the North Carolina Crop Improvement Association, with headquarters at State College. As above, workers check yields of a high-yielding yellow corn adapt new hybrids on the S. C. Foster farm near Kinston. Among

Spring Forum Speakers For Colleges Are Listed

DURHAM, N.C.—A series of speakers on topics of interest and importance to Durham citizens and to the nation will be featured in a series of forums to be addressed at North Carolina College here last Monday, March 25.

Following Attorney Capers, an ex-Deacon Minister Jones, Harvard University scholar, will be the speaker. Others, in order of their appearance, are Dr. Robert A. Thornton, Dr. A. E. Manley, Rabbi Jerome F. Tolochko, Dr. Frederick E. Williamson, Senator Hubert Humphrey and Dr. Elder, Professor Jones, leading U.S. experts on English literature of the 19th century, is slated to speak on the April 1 forum program. Formerly a member of the University of North Carolina faculty, Dr. Jones has been a member of the Harvard faculty since 1938.

Dr. Thornton, lecturer in physics for the past year, a 1912 graduate of Princeton, will speak on April 15. He was formerly associate professor at Chicago University and chairman of Talladega

Physics Department.

On April 22 Dr. Marley, dean of North Carolina College's under graduate schools, will deliver his annual address.

Rabbi Tolochko, globe circling head of a Kinston, N.C. synagogue, will return to MCC for an address on May 1. The Rabbi who has recently returned from a visit to 30 countries spoke at MCC two years ago.

One of the most unusual personalities of our time will be the speaker at the May 12 forum. He is Dr. Williamson, a man of many colors. Dr. Williamson has crowded into one lifetime successful careers in medicine, science, art writing and acting. The Honorable Senator Humphrey, liberal Minnesota Democrat, will speak at the conference on May 19. Senator Humphrey is noted as perhaps the Senate's most outspoken champion for civil rights for America's minorities.

FOR A GOOD CAUSE—Students and faculty of New York University take part in campus pie-throwing by paying five dollars to toss pies in each other's faces. Proceeds went to erect a student union building.

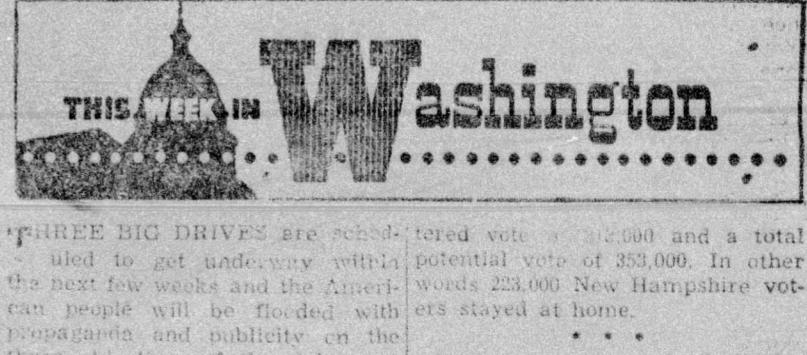

ARABS READ GOSPEL—American missionaries say the best way of reaching Moslems is through printed word. Here two Arabs read the gospel of St. John, printed in their tongue.

NCC Host to Marriage and Home Confab April 21-23

DURHAM, N.C.—North Carolina College will play host to the Association for a Therapeutic Disputation Conference on voice. It will be led at this meeting by Judge Paul Alexander of Toledo, Ohio's Domestic Relations Court, and Dr. Robert E. Lee, professor of Domestic Relations Law at Wake Forest College, Wake Forest, N.C.

Some of the country's leading authorities on marriage and family problems are expected to be consultants for the conference. Most of the sessions are scheduled for the James E. Shepard Memorial Library at NCC.

A feature of the annual conference is the Tuesday evening, April 22, session which will be open to the general public. A discussion

THREE BIG DRIVES are scheduled to get underway within the next few weeks and the American people will be flooded with propaganda and publicity on these objectives of the drives as follows:

First, the political organizations in both the Democratic and Republican national committees will start their campaigns to "register and vote." Second, certain segments of business and industry, spearheaded by the Livestock breeders association, the corn belt livestock feeders association and the American meat institute and other large food groups, will start an all-out campaign to kill price controls and the whole program of the office of price stabilization. Third, other large industrial groups headed by such organizations as the American medical association and the electric light and power industries will conduct a drive against the Truman administration on the theory that the welfare reforms of the past 20 years are "socialistic."

The first drive to "register and vote" grows out of a real concern for the lack of interest of the average American in his sovereign right of a free secret ballot, a right enjoyed nowhere else in the world. Both major parties are mapping plans to get a big turn-out of votes in the 1952 election from the nation's potential 27,000,000 voters. Yet in 1948 only approximately 63,000,000 of these voters were registered and in the last presidential campaign, 1950, only 32 percent of the then potential voters, or 48,000,000, went to the polls, less than in either 1944 or 1940.

One of the reasons given for the recent New Hampshire primary as being "ineffective" and why many politicians here declare that the outcome could be taken "with a grain of salt" was the small voter turnout. In spite of the fact that the national spotlight was turned on New Hampshire, that national figures stamped the state and that all sorts of efforts were made to beat the drums for favored candidates, a little more than a third of the voters turned out to vote. Republicans cast about 92,000 ballots and Democrats 36,000, a total of 128,000 against a regular large newspaper ads, TV and radio shows are to be used by the electric industry in a new drive against public power and "creeping socialism." Observers here point out that the dual role of the AMA and the electric industry which was evident in the fight against national health insurance will be maintained until the election in November.

President Truman won a surprising victory in his battle with the Senate for reorganization of the internal revenue bureau after two days of heated debate.
