Knoxville Appointments Include Ex-NC Teacher

ANTICIPATION—Though the date was the Fourth of July, it was deadly serious business which this heavy mortar crew of the Seventh Infantry Regiment, Third U. S. Infantry Division, were about as they fired a 4.2 mortar during a phase of "Operation Chief" in the Korean Hills. Foreground: Cpl. Herbert H. Carter, Mullins, S. C.; and Pfc. Roy T. Holloway, Richmond, Va. Rear: Howard Perkins and Charles Gandy, Ohio. (News Press Photo)

STORY-TELLING SESSION—For the first time in history, Fala, beloved black scottie of the late President Roosevelt was missing from the familiar setting above. The Roosevelt pet died in April. Mrs. Roosevelt reads Kipling aloud to children of the Wiltwyck School, seated on a log before her. Val-Kill cottage, as she has done for many years. The ex-First Lady read Kipling's "Jungle Book," "How The Elephant Got His Trunk" and "Rikki-Tikki-Tavi" to the 75 Wiltwyck School boys, then played hostess, serving food and drink. By J.B. HARREN Dial 21913

PRESBYTERIANS IN SUMMER CAMP — ROCKY MOUNT, N. C. — The Catawba Synod of the Presbyterian Church in the U.S.A. in cooperation with the Southern Virginia and Cape Fear Presbyteries has just concluded a summer camp for Presbyterian youth at the Brick Rural Life School, Bricks, N. C. Reverend Frank C. Shirley, Charlotte, Mrs. A. B. Lewis, Lumberton and Mrs. N. E. Bailey, Rocky Mount, were among the instructors.

July 7th Mrs. Bailey left to join the Synod staff in conducting a similar camp at Lincoln Academy, King's Mountain, N. C. for the Catawba and Yadkin Presbyteries. This marks the second year of Synod-wide camp activity in the state.

BARNETTE ATTENDS INTER-RACE MEET — The Reverend James W. Barnette of Mt. Pisgah Presbyterian Church is attending the interracial Presbyterian summer school at Maryville College (white), Maryville, Tenn., where the Reverend A. Eugene Adair and wife (native Carolinians) of Mt. Morris Park Presbyterian Church in New York City are serving on the faculty of the summer session.

Mesdames Marie Higgins and Juanita Barnette are among those attending classes at Shaw University this summer.

Eastern Carolina farmers and business interests which have been looking "down-in-the-mouth" for weeks because of the extreme drought, had their hopes revived when rain worth a million dollars fell on crops during the past week. An example of the seriousness of the situation is indicated by the report that one big planter who operates a 100-horse farming operation covering several farms, is said to have served notice on his tenants, before the rains that they need not look to him for more food until the crops improved.

PRESBYTERIANS END INTER-RACE INSTITUTE — The Reverend J. W. Barnette, pastor, Mt. Pisgah Presbyterian Church has just returned from attending the Presbyterian Summer School of the South at Maryville College, Tennessee and reports the fellowship was exceedingly good, not only on the college campus but in the town of Maryville as well, where colored and whites were shown every courtesy by everyone.

CORNER THE POET'S

THE WAYS OF WOLVES

BY WM. HENRY HUFF FOR ANP
Debating homes and wrecking lives
And spreading grief and sorrow,
Seducing girls and foolish wives
Creating dread and sorrow,
This is the way of wolves!
Along their low degrading trail
Are aching hearts and weeping,
But there's one thing that will not fail,
(This is the way of wolves),
The fruit of sorrow they have sown
And in the fullest measure;
The bomb they plant will be their own
To blast their baneful pleasure,
This is the way of wolves.

CONFIDENTIALLY AMERICA BY ANDY RAZAF FOR ANP
Two writers deserve lots of credit;
With nothing to say, and they said it.
Their book, full of trash brought them plenty of cash
For thousands have bought it and read it.
Their work is great education
In how to spread hate through the nation,
It's most CONFIDENTIAL and very essential
To all who love mis-information.

Bourbon Is Now Six Years Old

JAMES E. PEPPER — 1-18 NEW YORK CITY — James E. Pepper, the bottled-in-bond bourbon that was "born with the Republic," has been increased to six years of age at no extra cost to consumers.

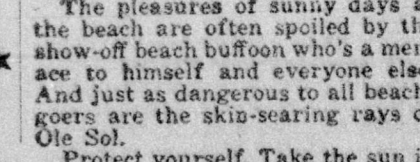

Known as one of Kentucky's leading bourbons, James E. Pepper, Inc., and today ranks as the best in quality brands among "age-increase" whiskies.

B. B. Haas, advertising manager for the product says, "The new six-year-old Pepper contains all the goodness and technical know-how that is maintained at every quality control level in production, and added to this is an additional two years of aging at no extra cost to consumers."

GOING STRONG — One of the very earliest Kentucky hillside distilleries was founded by Elijah Pepper in 1780. The brand is marketed today under the name of the founder's grandson, James E. Pepper. —BFC—

Say You Saw It In The CAROLINIAN!!!

Our Pet Peeve Beach Buffoons

The pleasures of sunny days at the beach are often spoiled by the show-off beach buffoon who's a menace to himself and everyone else. And just as dangerous to all beachgoers are the skin-searing rays of Ole Sol.

Protect yourself. Take the sun in small doses and baby your skin with a generous coat of baby lotion. It now comes in a convenient white plastic bottle that is completely unbreakable, handy to carry and easy to use because it is the squeeze type.
