PERSONALITY OF THE WEEK

MISS DORA STROUD

PHOTO-STORY BY SHIRLEY An unusual personality known for her many attributes is Miss Dora D. Stroud. Well loved, respected, and admired by those who know her, she has endeared herself to many families throughout the various communities in which she has resided and worked.

Reared in Cary and Durham, N. C., Miss Stroud presently resides in Method, N. C. One of six children, she received her elementary schooling in Cary, and later attended Franklinton College. Although her earlier ambition was to be a nurse, this was never realized professionally; for after graduating from college, she accepted a position teaching school. Over a period of time she taught primary grades in Meredith Township, Edgecombe County, Cary and Method, as her greatest love has always been with small children.

Because of her health, she was compelled to give up teaching after twenty-two years. However, not being a person to idle away her still numerous active years, Miss Stroud worked to over twenty more years in the local post office and general store in Method.

Comfortable in her neat, white cottage-type home, "Cousin Dora" as she is admiringly known by her more intimate friends, enjoys her talented hobbies of cake making and quilting, when she's not occupied with church affairs or some of her various other activities. Her delicious cakes have made her unusually popular with the pastry loving set. Hardly a day passes that she doesn't make some kind of cake for one of her numerous friends; and many a youngster would be sorely disappointed if that annual birthday cake from "Cousin Dora" didn't make its usual appearance on that celebrated day.

Her patience and talent are reflected in the beautiful quilts she has made on different occasions. Most of these have been given to friends or donated to church bazaars for money raising purposes; few have been kept by Miss Dora herself. Her unselfish generous heart has been evident in many other ways.

Knowing no barriers of race or creed, Miss Stroud has offered her services when needed whether to white or colored, Methodist or Baptist. On one occasion when a white friend was in need of someone to give assistance to his ill wife, Miss Stroud, in spite of her full schedule of work graciously extended all the help she could in the same manner as she did for her other friends. By the same token, she makes her services available to any and all churches whenever she can. A member of St. James A.M.E. Church, her activities include being a class leader in the Sunday School, Treasurer of the Missionary Society, and treasurer of the Stewardess Board. She was also very active with the Cary Congregational Church while a member there.

Famous for her weddings and other church programs, Miss Stroud does her own script writing and composing in making the plans. She handles a group of newboys and turns the money over from the sales of the papers in different churches.

Her wonderful influence on and love for children has been all too apparent in the leading hand she has given in the rearing of any number of youngsters; each and every one with whom she keeps in constant contact throughout the years—and they all love her for it. During the war years, not a day passed but that she didn't write "night" letters to her "boys" who were in the service. To many of these soldiers, she would compose and send poetry, which is another of her many talents.

Miss Stroud mentioned that she doesn't feel satisfied unless she has something to give or render someone; and feels that a full, wholesome, active life makes for more happiness. "I don't ever want to hear anything ugly or mean about anyone," she said, "and then I won't think that way. I always put the Lord first in everything." Asked to appear on an "Ushers Day" program at one of the churches, and unable to find any material appropriate for the occasion, Miss Stroud dreamed up some verses that night and wrote the following poem:

DEDICATED TO ALL CHURCH USHERS We speak of the angels of mercy in white, And very rightly it is said too if their praises are sung from morning till night Not anything too much has been

TB Educational Survey Covering Raleigh City

JAMES A. SHEPARD

Monday, July 14, marked the beginning of the city wide Tuberculosis Educational Institute, sponsored by the Wake County Tuberculosis Association and set to continue until the last of July. Mr. Edward Ellis, public health specialist and instructor in the School of Public Health, North Carolina College is director of the Institute.

Tuberculosis authorities feel that despite the tremendous gains made in recent years in the cure and prevention of this disease, it is still far too prevalent and that the need exists for a wide-spread campaign of education to alert the public to that fact and stimulate interest in a campaign of eradication of this menace.

Much good has been accomplished by the response of the public to the appeal of health authorities in availing itself of the opportunity of obtaining chest X-rays by visiting the mobile X-ray units, but it was felt that because of fear, ignorance and timidity, many persons, needing this examination were failing to do so. In order to remedy this situation, it was decided that an educational institute, conducted on a neighborhood basis and carried out in strategically located homes in the various areas of the city, would in all probability, reach many of the self-conscious, timid people because of their willingness to respond to the appeal of their own friends and neighbors.

The plan, outlined above was presenting to a committee of representative Negro citizens and was enthusiastically received and adopted by them. This committee composed of Mrs. C. M. Praeger, Dr. T. P. Duhart, Dr. O. S. Bullock, Mrs. Sarah Rogers Speed, Mrs. Pattie L. Higgs, Mrs. O. H. Roberts, Mrs. B. M. Edwards, Mrs. C. L. Johnson, Mrs. E. J. Larkins, Mrs. A. B. Fincher, Mrs. C. J. Hardie, Mrs. M. D. Hamilton, Mr. A. E. Brown, Mr. Leonidas Frazier, Mr. D. H. Reid, Mr. A. A. Vance, Miss Mae E. Ligon, Miss Vivian E. Irving, Mrs. Laura Simpson and Dr. W. P. Pettiford, met June 21 in the auditorium of the Wake County office building, in its capacity as the sponsoring committee for the project, it set up an operating committee to select speakers by establishing a speakers bureau and to make arrangements for conducting the institute. The following persons were chosen for this committee, Miss Vivian E. Irving, Mrs. Pattie L. Higgs, Dr. T. P. Duhart, Dr. O. S. Bullock and Mr. Leonidas Frazier.

The sponsoring committee decided that the best way to fully develop the plan would be to divide the city into sections and appoint a chairman for each section. It would be the duty of the chairmen to divide their sections into areas, and appoint a hostess for each area, who would be given the task of visiting all the homes in her area, explain the plan and the purpose and extend an invitation to all persons visited to come to her home on a designated evening to receive further information. This information, furnished by a speaker would consist of facts and figures dealing with the tuberculosis situation outlining reasons why every person should have a chest X-ray and stimulate interest in the promotion and success of the program.

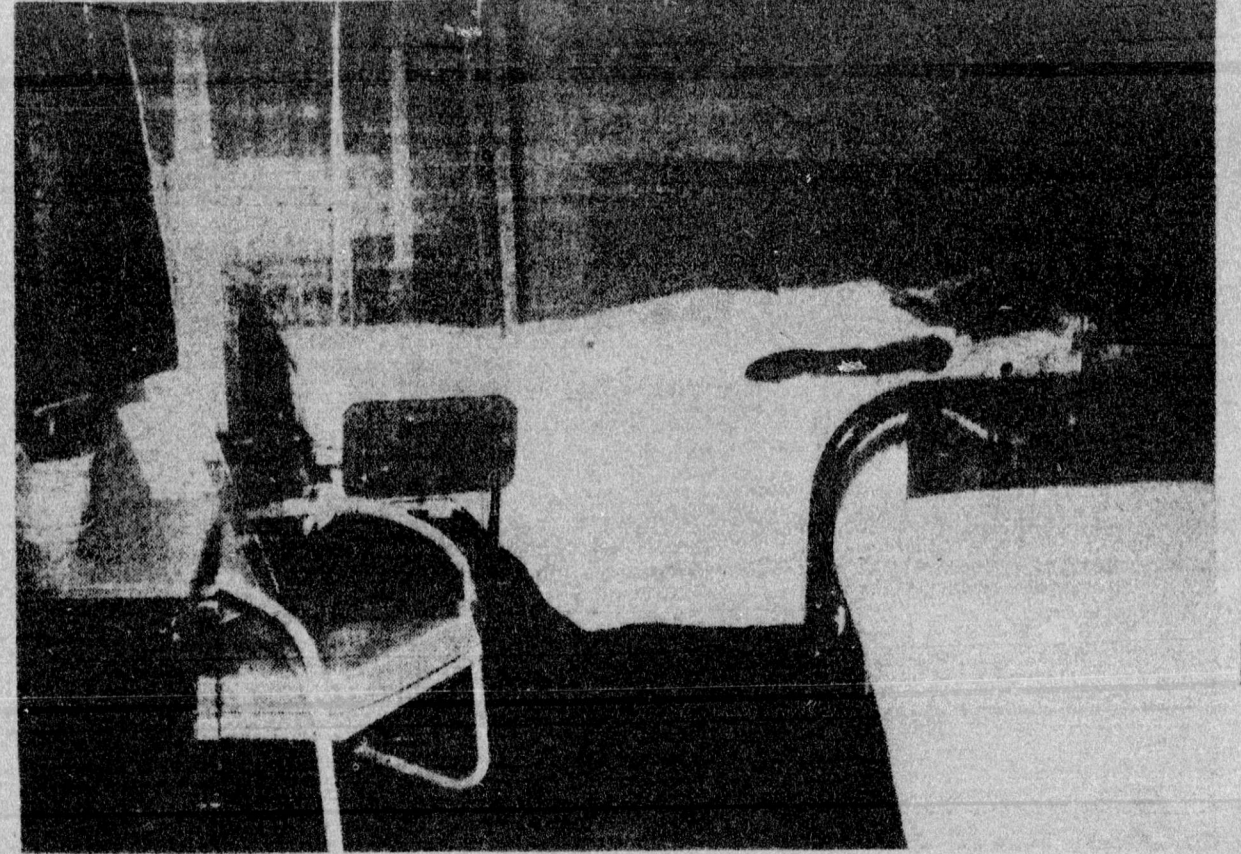

The speakers, who were selected because of their known ability and interest, were all given special training to better equip them for the important role there was to play in the development of the plan. A training institute was held July 8 and July 10 at the Wake County office building under the leadership of qualified health authorities. The speakers bureau is made up of the following persons: Mr. H. W. Pope, Mrs. L. Ellis, Mrs. W. S. Lockhart, Mrs. A. G. Logan, Miss Dorothy Lane, Mrs. Sarah Marks, Mrs. Paul Smith, Mrs. Hattie Mitchell, Mrs. B. Williams, Mr. Leonidas Haywood, Mr. W. M. McGrath, Mrs. Margaret Capehart, Mrs. Mary Kaywood, Mrs. F. P. Maye, Mrs. K. D. Curbo and the Rev. Mr. J. A. Hunter.

Sections of Raleigh in which institute meetings are being held and section chairmen are as follows: East Raleigh, Mrs. A. B. Fincher, 4th Ward, Mrs. C. M. Praeger, Oberlin, Mrs. Sarah Rogers Speed, South Park, Mrs. Johnnie Sherman, Crosby - Garfield District, Miss M. E. Ligon, Hunter Park, Mrs. Gladys Johnson, Lincoln Court, Mr. L. H. Goodson, College Park, Mrs. Laura
