Here Is How Veterans Of Korean War May Secure Bill Of Rights Benefits

WINSTON-SALEM — Six steps to a GI loan for a home, farm, or business were outlined by the Veterans Administration for the benefit of more than a million veterans who have been discharged from the armed services since the start of the Korean conflict. The new Korean GI Bill, signed into law by the President on July 16, 1952, amends the loan guaranty section of the World War II GI Bill to include eligible veterans with service anywhere in the world since June 27, 1950.

- 1—Find the property or business venture you want to buy.
 - 2—Go to a bank, building and loan association, or other institution.
 - 3—Present your plan and your original discharge or separation papers.
 - 4—Property is appraised by VA-approved appraisers.
 - 5—Certificate of reasonable value goes to the lender.
 - 6—If application is approved, the loan is made.
- In step No. 3, the original discharge or separation papers is needed to apply for a certificate of eligibility. Veterans Administration said that veterans need not rush to apply for these certificates since there is usually time to do so when the loan application is submitted.
- Local Veterans Administration regional offices, however, will issue certificates of eligibility at any time upon the request of an eligible veteran.
- To be eligible, veterans must have been discharged or released under conditions other than dishonorable; they must have had active military or naval service in the U. S. forces anywhere in the world at any time after June 27, 1950 and before the current emergency is declared ended, and they must have served at least 90 days unless they were discharged sooner for a service-connected disability.
