When he left to call a doctor to the scene, Stedman said, Smith seemed to be moving the girl's body to the side of the road.

After racing up Washington street to the residence of Mrs. Mamie McDonald in his try to secure medical attention for the wounded girl, Stedman reported that he returned to the scene of the shooting only to find Frank Smith lying dead by the road, a gaping bullet hole ripped through his chest. The body of Miss Ferguson lay in a roadside ditch a few yards away. The pistol which had caused the two deaths lay by the road from Smith's body where it had obviously fallen after the shot which claimed his life was fired.

Police investigation revealed that the gun was in no condition to be toyed with. Sorews were missing from its body and the weapon showed evidence of having been hammered in an attempt to remove a shell.

Persons who live in the area reported having heard the two fatal shots fired. The first one, which entered Miss Ferguson's head beneath the right eye and scoured upward finally exiting through the forehead was fired about 10 seconds before the second one which coursed through Smith's chest was fired.

Betty Jean Ferguson, 18, was a "big girl" for her age, investigation revealed, and was well thought of in the Boykins Avenue, Chesterfield St. community in which she lived. She had attended school at the Lee County Training School here where W. B. Wicker is principal, but dropped school before graduating.

She was not employed at the time of her death, but had on occasion worked in service and an "office" during the "green season."

Frank Smith, who lived at 24 Seymour Street here, was deemed a likeable fellow by the younger men of the community. Though not a "jitterbug," townspeople noted, Smith adopted the wearing of a "conk" and had a special liking for "draped" clothes.

Both Miss Ferguson and Smith were members of local churches. Funeral services for Smith were conducted at Union Baptist church here last Sunday afternoon at 4:30 with Rev. M. Tuck, the pastor, officiating. Anders Funeral Home was in charge of arrangements.

Final rites for Miss Ferguson were also held Sunday afternoon, but from the Wall Street Baptist church, with the Rev. A. F. McLean officiating. The Horton Funeral Home was in charge of arrangements.

Miss Ferguson, who lived with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Clifford (and Celeste) Ferguson at 1043 Boykin, leaves her parents and five brothers and sisters as survivors. Smith is survived by his father, Walter Smith and mother, Mrs. Rosa Smith, who have three other children.

of trustees to have their way. Prof. Devans explained it was far more important from our standpoint, for Negroes to work to eliminate discrimination and segregation rather than try to save a few token jobs and that the time had come for an attack to be made on these evils were ever they were found to exist.

It was then that Mr. Rainford expressed his appreciation and pleasure for the St. Agnes plan attempted to show that segregation and discrimination should not be attacked in the hospital situation, and he claimed the church for the existence of these evils and then, to the utter amazement of all present, said the whole matter was unthinkably that a white woman would allow a Negro inmate to attend her in child birth, the extreme type of state used frequently by southern demagogues lying to hold up the senseless bogaboo of social equality before the ignorant rabble in order to inflame their hatred and so keep them (the demagogues) in power.

"We feel that Mr. Rainford's attention should be directed to the fact that the war upon discrimination and segregation is now a world issue and that Negroes as well as whites who condone these evils are traitors to their country. The white man has allowed his thinking to become so warped and his vision so blurred, that if democracy is to be saved the Negro must save it. Knowing this, it is not likely that such attitudes will long hinder or forever defeat the Negro in his fight for freedom, freedom not only for all the world.

The CAROLINIAN has not and will not fight St. Agnes Hospital, believing it has served in a creditable and most useful manner. The CAROLINIAN also believes there can be a bright future for this institution as a private hospital, catering to those desiring such facilities. On the other hand, the CAROLINIAN believes it is the duty and the responsibility of the County to provide hospital facilities for its citizens and that duty and responsibility can not be delegated to a private group, responsible only to themselves. This newspaper has enlisted on the side of equality, justice, freedom and liberty as outlined in the Constitution of this County and will fight on that side until the battle is won.

On September 18, Dr. C. H. Hamilton, hospital expert and professor of Rural Sociology at N. C. State College here, will present to the Raleigh Citizens Association the plan for a county general hospital. You are urged to attend this meeting in order that you may be intelligently informed about the developments of this plan.

woman, on Aug. 13, was freed when the case was tried in Recorder's Court. No probable cause was found in the case.

Terry, a local resident, had been held in jail here without privilege of bond. Mrs. Gordon, 28 mother of five small children, swore out a warrant charging him with criminal assault.

The white woman claimed that Terry forced her out of a tobacco barn and assaulted her in a corn field near her home about 12 or 12:30 p.m. while her husband was away from home.

Judge William I. Godwin asserted that a "lot of inconsistent testimony was aired" in the case. He said: "I find no probable cause."

The warrant was not sworn out until about 8 p.m. that night, but testimony tended to show that Mr. and Mrs. Gordon had been in town since afternoon.

WAKE FOREST COPS

For the sake of our imaginary foreign visitors here is a brief background of what had gone on before. According to well authenticated reports, for the past several months, the Negro section of Wake Forest has been terrorized by the police, who, under the slightest pretext would intimidate and beat up fellow Negroes. Eye witness reports concerning the latest incident is as, on the night of the happening that resulted in assault charges being brought against the two policemen, two Negro girls Lorraine Mitchell and Miss Arlene Lucas were peacefully sitting on a box, outside an amusement place in Wake Forest. The two officers drove up and ordered the girls to come to them. When they did not respond fast enough to suit the policemen, they began assaulting the girls with their hands, fists and feet. The Negro man, Johnny Hayes was struck down from the rear by one of the officers, Ball, after he had kicked Knuckles why Ball was kicking one of the girls. After suffering these indignities, the three Negroes were later tried and convicted in the same court that last Saturday freed the two police officers after two of the Negroes had brought assault charges against the officers.

So much for the trial, a travesty upon justice, let us consider what must be going on in the minds of our imaginary visitors. Before their own eyes and with their own ears they have seen to extort the praises of the spiritual leader who reportedly controls millions of dollars worth of real estate secured by his church affiliation after its founding some 20 years ago.

PARADE HELD

The foreign born cultist developed in thousands of dollars worth of jewelry given to him by the "faithful" rode like a king in a chariot in a jeep which was the official car in a mile-long parade staged by House of Prayer for All People parishioners as the highlight of the convocation following Sunday's record "saving" event.

BANDS HAVE "BEAT"

The entire Brooklyn sector of Charlotte turned out to view the parade which featured bands coming from most of the House of Prayer in the Charlotte area. These bands, sounding for all the world like the Griffin Brothers orchestra playing their "Jump" which was composed while the brothers were members of a House of Prayer band in Norfolk, Va., supplied music for the long lines of gaily clad "faithful" boys, girls, women and men, who took part.

Trucks, buses and other conveyances carried the "faithful" who numbered an estimated 3,000.

The local "soul saving" stop by Bishop Grace was but one of many planned in the South during the current season. From Charlotte, the Bishop was expected to go southward into Georgia before he gain heading north and homeward to Massachusetts.

Despite the vastness of the crowds watching Bishop Grace's "soul saving" techniques and the subsequent parade, no violence was noted.

"This 'saving' story may really help to better the crime situation in Charlotte," a local official surmised.

ever they rear their ugly heads. Because of this alertness, there were those at this meeting who challenged the righteousness of public funds, money they would have to help pay, being used to sustain and widen the pattern now used against them. The Reverend George Fisher, pastor of St. Ambrose Church, Prof. Carl Devans, social science instructor at Shaw University and Mr. A. C. Parrish, well known Baptist layman, were among those who saw danger in the St. Agnes proposal and expressed themselves as against it.

Superintendent Poole seemingly unmindful of the fact that he holds a position, which by any decent concept of right should be held by a Negro, expressed himself as being fearful lest the "many fine positions now held by Negroes at St. Agnes be lost to them" unless the Negroes of Wake County allow the St. Agnes board

The present term of Wake Superior Court is carrying an unusually heavy docket, but Wake Solicitor W. J. Bickett has assured Defense Attorney Herman Taylor that every effort will be made to try this case before court adjourns this week.

It is significant that one of the defendants, Johnny Hays, in addition to being struck down by officer Ball because Hayes asked officer Knuckles why Ball was striking and kicking one of the Negro girls, suffered the added
