"EASY DOES IT"
BY HELEN HALE

A METHOD which is generally safe as well as successful for removing oil and grease spots from the basement floor, especially when they're fresh, uses dry Portland cement for covering. Let remain for several hours and the cement will absorb the oil.

Knotty pine, when finished properly, improves with age. A tawny finish is achieved by applying a light oak stain, followed with a thin coat of beige paint while it's still wet. When the wood is dry, finish in the usual way with wax, rubbed well.

Use soap and water to clean the garden hose as dirt will deteriorate the rubber. If stubborn spots remain, sponge with dry cleaning fluid and wipe dry.

White lead paint is good for coating top and bottom edges of storm doors. If left unprotected by paint, moisture will rot the wood. Make certain the paint is dry before hanging the doors.

RECIPE OF THE WEEK
Cheese Meringue Potatoes
(Serves 6)

- 4 tablespoons butter or substitute
- 3 cups mashed potatoes
- 2 eggs, separated
- 1 1/2 teaspoons salt
- 1/2 teaspoon pepper
- Paprika
- 1/2 cup hot milk
- 1/2 cup grated processed cheese

Add butter, egg yolks, salt and pepper to potatoes. Add milk and beat well. Pipe into buttered baking dish and cover with meringue made by beating egg whites stiff and folding in cheese. Sprinkle with paprika. Bake in a moderately hot (375° F.) oven for about 10 minutes.

Adhesive paste is used for gluing plastic base floor tiles. Have all surplus paste work out after laying and wipe off paste as it's more difficult to remove once it dries. If it has dried, use alcohol or some floor cleaner.

If you have copper accessories, make them shine and gleam with the following treatment: dissolve ordinary table salt in vinegar, letting the fluid take as much salt as possible. Rub copper pieces with this mixture and buff with a dry cloth.

If garden furnishings have rust spots on them, rub with oil and let stand overnight. Wipe off oil, then rub down the spots with sandpaper, emery cloth or steel wool.

Fashion Trends

by Freddy S. Henderson

If you have been shopping around in the fur coat salons of the nation's stores, you might have noticed that the selection seems a bit limited this year.

Not that there is an actual shortage of coats and other fur items, but many familiar names have disappeared from the labels. Gone are such familiar names as Hudson seal, Mendoza beaver, Gailand squirrel, and even the popular lapin and cone.

If in your shopping around, you see such names on the labels then you better grab your pocketbook and start running for cover. The fashion jargon is no longer acceptable according to the recent Federal Trade Commission's fur labeling act. Such furs will have to be called what they are: just plain rabbit.

This law says that all fur coats and other fur garments must be advertised and sold under the true English name of the animal from which the fur was taken. And the Federal Trade Commission has prepared a list of upwards of 100 "true English names."

Invited to a formal affair, or an informal one for that matter, you should not be surprised when a hostess asks your name as you enter the hall or ballroom. Accept the question in a gracious manner, realizing that a guest list is important. It is a protection for you, because it assures you that no one is present who has not been invited. Therefore, you should feel happy to present your card, invitation or give your name to the hostess or page. This should not be looked upon as a nuisance, but as a privilege.

Knowing that a guest list is necessary, accept the custom and help expedite matters at the door by having your identification ready for inspection. No charming person would ever attempt to gain entrance without conforming to the rules, so don't let your bad manners show by questioning the hostess' right to ask your name.

Knowing the right way to put on your makeup, it's knowing the right thing to do and the right time to do it. It is knowing the right thing to say, and observing and having respect for conventions and customs.

This brings us to a matter that never is changed, but with rouge seems to be a source of irritation to many people: that of the guest list. Remember that when you are

Feminine Fashion & Flair

Hello again ladies! Since my previous articles have been concentrated on our fundamental fall attire, what say we discuss accessories today? I'm sure you've noticed the new trends with them, too, especially in your jewelry.

A trend to the larger earrings and smaller necklaces is definitely noted. In pins, the favor is veering away from large spray designs which have always been a strong point. The mode now is a smaller and more compact mound pin.

Hoop and drop earrings are proving highly attractive, especially rhinestone ring hoops that are as large as three-quarters of an inch in diameter. Some, even larger than this, are showing promise, too. A partial explanation might be found in the theory that larger earrings are a pleasant choice with the new snug deep hats.

You know girls, the hat you wear has a strong influence on what type earrings to wear. And believe me, this season, more than ever, we must watch our step there. Then, too, with the passing of the short poodle cut and slighter longer "bobs," the earrings comes more into the spotlight. Large pieces are also in demand in bracelets. Big snap or clip cuffs in rhinestones or in ornate gold metal are pointed to as a marked trend. In everything except earrings and some bracelets the trend is toward smaller pieces it is said.

GO TO CHURCH SUNDAY

In necklaces, some of the best received pieces involve a simple round-cut rhinestone circle with front interest in one that I saw a large pear shaped pendant was suspended in the center of a pear shaped circle. It was lovely, too. Color is another important trend.

but not the definite shades which characterized the past season. Instead, subtle gray or tan rhinestones have a great deal of appeal.

Some French beads, shown in the spring and summer collection are proving important for fall in different colors. These opaque beads, strung together by gold chain and hardware brackets are seen frequently now in mahogany walnut, and black against white, aqua and coral, which ranked high last season.

Few women can resist buying a new pair of earrings or a set of
