School Bus Crushes Girl

MAN FINDS OUT ABOUT IT; KILLS WIFE, SLUGS MAN

Wife, 29, Lover, 45 Victims When Hubby Analyzes Situation

LOUISBURG — A 29-year-old wife is dead and her Evans / "lover" is in critical condition in a nearby hospital just because the woman's husband "found it out."

The husband is in jail pending the outcome of the condition of the wounded suitor.

According to local police officers and county officials, Clyde Thomas Wilson, 31, a tenant farmer of Route 3, Louisburg, shot and killed his wife, Virginia, and then seriously wounded 45-year-old James Daniel when he became aware that there was "something more than natural" in the friendship of the wife and the man.

Wilson allegedly shot his wife through the chest with a 22 calibre rifle and then turned the weapon on Daniel, inflicting a wound in the left side, when the situation became "clear" to him.

The shooting occurred at the Wilson home about noon Saturday.

Daniel, reportedly was a visitor at the Wilson home when Wilson returned and started shooting.

Even though Daniel was a neighbor of the Wilsons, rumors abounding note, he was never much of a friend to the husband, while he was a constant companion of the wife. Despite this condition, it was further rumored last Saturday's killing shooting was the first indication that Wilson had given cause for displeasure with the existing state of affairs.

Final rites for Mrs. Wilson were held Tuesday in the path of the bus held early this week.

Back Wheels Of Bus Roll Over Victim

BURLINGTON — A 17-year-old girl was killed Monday morning when she was struck by a school bus loaded with white students on Boyce Bridge Road.

The girl, Miss Essie Mae Roberts of Route 4, Burlington, was pronounced dead on arrival at Alamance County Hospital. Coroner J. B. Walker ordered an immediate autopsy to determine the cause of death.

Highway Patrolman O. M. Hicks, who investigated the accident, said the bus, driving the girl home from school, was traveling in a southerly direction when the accident occurred. The driver, Hicks said, had a brief attention and might be charged.

'SNEAKY PETE' KILLS MAN; ESCAPES LAW

TWO-DAY-LONG DRINKING PARTY ENDS IN DEATH

Sneaky Pete Johnson Evades Pursuers In Halifax County Case

HALIFAX — No indication was given here this week that a 30-year-old man who killed another during a two-day-long "Sneaky Pete" party here last weekend has been apprehended.

A spirited search had been underway since last Saturday night for Gus (Sneaky Pete) Johnson, who allegedly shot and killed 27-year-old Vernon (Josh) Boyd after an argument arose in a "wine-bending" party in which the two men and several more were engaged.

Johnson, a native of Georgia, is accused of shooting Boyd with a shotgun during the argument at the home of Randolph Smith, some few miles from here near Roanoke Rapids.

According to reports, Boyd and Johnson had been drinking wine and quarreling for two days, and were still imbibing and fussing when they came to the Smith home.

Johnson is said to have gotten possession of a 12 gauge shotgun while at the Smith home and blasted away at Boyd. The younger man fell mortally wounded with a gaping hole torn thru his back in the vicinity of the left shoulder blade.

Following the shooting, Johnson took to his heels.

RECORD LOW IN HOLIDAY DEATHS NOTED IN STATE

Three Violent Deaths Recorded During Yule Day Weekend Period

By Carolinian News Network

RALEIGH — For the first time in a decade, post-Christmas Day weekend violence among North Carolina residents of nearly every county failed to reach at least one fatality mark last weekend. Only three persons died that day.

Congratulations are in order as weekly reports from the state's 100 counties and Lynching Records Bureau of Tuskegee Institute, Alabama, show that nowhere were more than two persons killed in violent deaths.

Only Guilford, Forsyth and Mecklenburg counties, the three most populous in the state, recorded two violent deaths each.

Guilford's victims were a 19-year-old Negro girl who was shot to death by a boy friend, and a 60-year-old white man who died of a heart attack after a fight with his wife.

Forsyth's two violent deaths were a Negro man who was shot to death by a Negro woman, and a white man who died of a heart attack after a fight with his wife.

Mecklenburg's two violent deaths were a Negro man who was shot to death by a Negro woman, and a white man who died of a heart attack after a fight with his wife.

Only 21 persons died violently in North Carolina during the Christmas holiday period, 1952, as compared with 33 in 1951, 31 in 1950, 27 in 1949, 29 in 1948, 31 in 1947, 29 in 1946, 21 in 1945, 23 in 1944, 23 in 1943, 23 in 1942, 23 in 1941, 23 in 1940, 23 in 1939, 23 in 1938, 23 in 1937, 23 in 1936, 23 in 1935, 23 in 1934, 23 in 1933, 23 in
