Use More Eggs

Now that eggs are becoming more and more plentiful, why not use more eggs in preparing meals for your family? Eggs are one of our most nutritious foods, says Jewell Fessenden, State College Extension Nutritionist, because they contain complete protein and are high in the B complex vitamins and iron.

Eggs can be used in preparing various salads, in making croquettes, and in deep fat frying. Devilled eggs, of course, are a good time and should be considered just "good food."

"When you hard boil eggs, it's hard to prevent the formation of that dark green layer between the yolk and the white. Actually this delvesing is completely harmless, but it is unattractive and not particularly appetizing."

Maybe you've wondered just what causes this dark ring to form and what you can do to prevent it. Actually it's a deposit of ferrous sulphide that forms as the sulfur in the egg white and the iron in the yolk unite during the cooking process.

There are a number of ways that you can prevent the formation of this dark green ring:

1. Use fresh eggs. In the fresh egg the sulfur in the white is not soluble and will stay in the outer portion of the egg.
2. Cook the egg at a low temperature. If the egg is cooked slowly on top, there will be less time to drive the sulfur in toward the yolk.
3. Cook the egg for the shortest length of time — just until the yolk and white are firm. Prolonged heat will drive the sulfur of the white toward the center of the egg.

Deb Doings

WILMINGTON, N. C. — Monday, January 19, was the final activity in the busy three month schedule of the debutantes to be presented by the Alpha Sigma Alpha Society here. These meetings of The Charn School will give way to actual social affairs and the strenuousness of rehearsals for the presentation figure.

The Charn School which opened with a Mother's Daughter Tea, had included interesting and varied activities for these young ladies. During November they were privileged to have a session of the school conducted by the dynamic and well-informed Mrs. Hannah Block. Mrs. Block talked with the girls, demonstrated certain techniques for them, and generally made the evening one long to be remembered. It was difficult to encourage the young ladies to go home but the interest of the hour made this necessary.

The next meeting of the Charn School was devoted to the subject of Dating. Mrs. Nicholson of the high school faculty and Mrs. Corbin spoke to the young ladies and their escorts and the discussions were followed with question periods in each group. Following the discussions, an informal party of the egg.
