MAMIE'S GUEST - Campfire Girl Jean Andre Jones, 11 (center), proudly showed fellow Campfire Girls Emily Harshorne and Gretel Broadwood the letter she received from Mamie Eisenhower, inviting her to the inauguration as her guest. During the campaign, the Chicago girl wrote Mamie telling her that 51 other pupils in her class were all wearing Stevenson buttons, while she alone wore an Ike badge. Jean's letter was so dated at Ike's victory that Mamie extended the invitation. P.S. - Of course Ike was there. (Newspress Photo.)

Safety Records Of NC Cities and Towns Noted

RALEIGH - The Motor Vehicles Department's Highway Safety Division said last week that 316 Tar Heel communities, under 5,000 population, had been awarded certificates in recognition of their "outstanding" traffic safety record during 1952.

Each community honored completed 51 without a single traffic fatality within their corporate limits. The certificates were distributed by Safety Division personnel, under the direction of H. D. Jones of Raleigh.

The Division also announced awards for ten cities in excess of 5,000 population which had a fatality free 1951. Those cities were: Morehead City, Asheville, Mooresville, Morgan-

Chapel Hill, Graham, Dunn and Thomasville.

Jones had a special word of praise for Henderson, N. C.

"If more cities would go all out for safety like Henderson did last year, our yearly death toll would be cut in half," he said. "For the period ending June 30, 1951 Henderson and Vance County had lost 18 lives in traffic accidents. By thanks to local clubs, citizens became safety conscious and safety minded. The payoff came June 30, 1952 when only three fatalities were reported, and none of those were residents of Vance County."

Winners for 1952, Jones said, will probably be announced in June, 1953.

Elk's Exalted Ruler Is Married To Pa. Matron

BY ORA LEE BRINKLEY
PHILADELPHIA, Pa. (ANP) - In a solemn but impressive ceremony performed recently at the home of (and by) Magistrate Dawson Martin Yorkes (white) in Millbourne, Pa., Robert H. Johnson, Philadelphia, the Grand Exalted Ruler of the Elks, was married to Mrs. Mary M. Scroggs, also of Philadelphia.

The ceremony was witnessed only by nearby officers of the Grand Lodge and the bride's daughter, Mrs. Ernestine Jamison, and her groom.

The bride was attired in a light grey checked woolen suit and black accessories. She wore an exquisite white orchid, tipped in deep purple, and a full and lustrous raven's hair. Her only attendant was Mrs. John P. Freeman, whose husband is a grand trustee and chairman of the board of trustees of the Grand Lodge served as best man.

Following the brief ceremony, the bridal party was entertained at cocktails, followed by dinner, by Mr. and Mrs. Holson R. Reynolds, at their beautiful home in North Philadelphia. Mr. Reynolds is grand commissioner of civil liberties of the Grand Lodge. Those attending the ceremony and subsequent festivities were J. B. Yearwood of New York City, grand auditor of the Grand Lodge and exalted ruler of the Henry Lincoln, No. 619 in New York; Albert A. Reading of Chester, Pa., and grand commissioner of transportation; Herbert E. Jones of Washington, D. C., grand organizer, and his wife.

Mr. and Mrs. Harvey L. Harris (state president of New York, Grand Exalted Lower Knight and wife) number 2 in the nation of Vernon, N. Y.; Dr. W. V. Chalmers, assistant grand exalted ruler, Ernest N. Copeland, grand auditor, George Walker, grand organizer of the Junior Elks, and Charles P. McClane, grand director of public relations.

At the dinner given by Reynolds and his popular wife, Evelyn, well known society leader and newspaper columnist, the bride wore a fashionable full skirted navy and white print set off by her selection of navy accessories and a white felt hat, featuring clusters of orange blossoms over the ears. She also wore her white orchids.

Those attending the dinner were the newlyweds, Mr. and Mrs. Reynolds, the bride's daughter, Mrs. Jamison, her close friend, Mrs. Gerilla G. Jones, Mr. Reading, Mr. McClane.

The couple will reside at the Johnson home on So. 15th street in Philadelphia.

NCC Professor Is History Week Speaker For Lincoln (Mo.) Univ.

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. - February 4-13 will mark the celebration of the 27th anniversary of Negro History week, a projection of the Association for the Study of Negro Life and History, and designed to help arouse people to a keener appreciation of the Negro's contribution to civilization.

On Lincoln's campus, the Department of History, directed by W. Spelman Savage, will sponsor activities during the observance, presenting a special convocation on Thursday, Feb. 19. Dr. Heien G. Edmonds, graduate professor of history, North Carolina College, will deliver the address. In addition to her other accomplishments, the speaker was director of research of the Life and Times of Dr. Joseph E. Shepard.

"Every effort is being made," said Dr. Savage, "to perpetuate the association to the memory of its founder, the late Dr. Carter G. Woodson, who had made so many notable contributions to its establishment and life."

Hertford County won out in the statewide eliminations after the field had been reduced to five counties which included, in addition: Rockingham, Edgecombe, Orange and Duplin. The winning county was named on the basis of achievement in the following areas: Desirable adjustment in Agriculture; Living; General community improvement; Homemaking and Family improvement; Opportunities for rural youth and cooperation of all agencies, groups and individuals.

The prize must be used to further a project in the winning county which will be of lasting benefit to the rural people of that county, according to the rules of the cash award.

Bishop Shaw Loses Post With Board

MOBILE, Ala. (ANP) - Bishop Stephen G. Spottwood of Washington succeeded Bishop Herbert B. Shaw, Wilmington, N. C. as chairman of the board of bishops of the A.M.E. Zion Church and presided over a meeting of that body held here recently. The occasion was the January meeting of the board and the semi-annual meeting of the Ministers and Laymen's Association.

Over all theme of the conference attended by some 300 clergymen and one of the 12 bishops was "God is Our Refuge and Strength." Bishop Shaw delivered the keynote address.

During sessions members elected officers, heard reports on all phases of the denomination, and plans for an educational fund-raising program to finance the four church-sponsored secondary institutions. The four schools are: Clinton College, Rock Hill, S. C.; Lomax-Hannan College, Greenville, Ala.; Walters Institute, Lexington, Ark.; and Johnson Memorial Institute, Batesville, Miss.

Dr. James W. Echeberger, Chicago, secretary of Christian education, said the drive for financing the schools would exceed $700,000. He added that the Christian education department had spent some $40,000 during the six month period ending Nov. 30.

Other persons who made reports included:

The Rev. J. C. Hozaard, Washington, secretary of foreign missions; Dr. Solomon S. Seay, Montgomery, Ala., secretary of relief, home mission and ministerial pension; Daniel W. Andrews, church extension; the Rev. W. S. Durson, evangelist.

Miss Mrs. Julia Shaw, treasurer; Miss Emma B. Watson, women's home and family missionary society; Dr. B. F. Fisher, general secretary; Richard Sherrill, financial secretary; the Rev. L. I. Boyd, manager of the publishing house; Dr. W. J. Lovell, editor of the Star of Zion; the Rev. D. H. Bradley, editor of the Quarterly Review; Dr. J. Van Cullledge, Jr., editor of church school literature; and Dr. W. J. Teart, president of Livingston College.

Besides Bishop Spottwood, new (Continued on page 8)

OOPS, WHAT HE SAID - Charles E. Wilson (center), ex-president of General Motors and not-yet-confirmed Secretary of Defense, tells a "good one" while Mrs. Wilson appears disconcerted and Jackie Robinson is amused. Wilson was receiving the 1952 George Washington Carver Memorial Institute award in New York at the Theresa Hotel for his outstanding contributions to human welfare. His confirmation as Defense Secretary was not approved at the time. (Newspress Photo.)

Crisis Engulfs Hospital

$'s Crisis Hits Hospital

WILMINGTON, N. C. - Community hospital is in dire straits.

And if the City and County don't let loose with some cash in regular intervals as in past years, the 70-bed, which has become the pride of Newberry in Southeastern North Carolina, might well have to close its doors.

And even if the two governments were to let the bill, it seems that a good case might have to be decided by the people in order for the City and County to support their child. (The hospital is owned jointly by the two bodies.)

such money out since July, 1951. But it has paid its share of other property which it and the City formerly paid. The County argued that such withholding was necessary in order not to prejudice its stand in the James Walker Memorial hospital (white) case now being decided in the State Supreme Court.

Chairman Latta pointed out that the hospital was $35,000 in the red when the agreement being made by the board, some of whom have refused further credit to the hospital.

Dr. John C. Woodard, white board member and life-long friend of the Community, reviewed the recent history of the facility and said that the hospital had no right to operate the hospital at all. Bellamy said only a vote of the people could straighten it out. He said the situation was serious.

W. Albert Brown, white, another board member, resigned, leaving two vacancies. Julius Council, white, was present for his first board meeting. There only two Negro board members on the nine-man board.

Dr. Hubert A. Eason, prominent physician and surgeon, warned that the hospital's progress, made under trying conditions, was threatened and could be wiped out in a few bad months.

County Attorney Marston E. Bellamy said if City Attorney W. E. Campbells' agreement to the Supreme Court in the James Walker case stood up, it meant that the City and County had no right to operate the hospital at all. Bellamy said only a vote of the people could straighten it out. He said the situation was serious.

... AND A NOSE FOR BOUQUET - An eye for color, and a nose for bouquet are the latest assets of West Indian sprinter E. Macdonald Bailey, now improving his knowledge of rum in the London sampling room of the United Rum Merchant, Ltd. Bailey has been appointed the firm's first public relations officer, a "natural," as he describes "for a West Indian." He'll combine his promotions with his track activities when he comes to the United States in the near future. (Newspress Photo.)
