deep pointed V's are emphasized with stitching or embroidery. Collars offer a point of interest, with the large wrappy square collar a favorite.

Ashy beiges and browns have first consideration in the neutral group. Blues and navy are well represented as is white for the short topper or full-legath coat. The textured look in fabrics both in worsted surlings as well as spongy and airy poodles and hopsacking is favored too. Pretty feminine touches are added by many designers with the addition of pearl embrodiery on collar and pockets, graduated button effects or odd shaped buttons shaped like Easter Eggs, crescents hearts and evals, arrow embroidery trimming tab button closing, plaque button closings and the like.

Stitched panels, rows of stitching marking back yokes, circular back yokes circular stitching near hemlines flange rudder-like backs framed with stitching represent some of the favored dress-up treatments for a group of coats. Large patch pockets frame several of these. Both the slim and easy silhouette as well as the spacious coat are recommended for Easter relling. National Canned Salmon Wee.

For many years families all over the United States have enjoyed salmon taken from the cold waters off Western Alaska down to the mouth of the Columbia River, With the advent of salmon canning, this food from the sea which was once available to a fortunate few, then became a staple food to be enjoyed by millions. Now the spotlight will be focused on canned salmon, for February 17 to 25 has been designated as National Canned Salmon Week and homemakers from Seattle to Boston will be taking cans of salmon from the grocers shelves for a special treat for their families.

Canned salmon has long been a family favorite with the numerous ways it can be prepared - hot, cold, baked, creamed, in salads, in sandwiches and main dishes. A supply of canned salmon on the storage shelf is a decided con-venience, for a meal may be in the making at a moment's notice.

Salmon is packed with food value, bringing with its flavor from the sea its health giving qualities. It is rich in Vitamin D, the "swighing vitamin" and it is rich in iodine, found in few foods Due to its keeping qualities when canned as well as the case of transportation, it is a good source of iodine in inland regions.
