Hampton Institute In 85th Founders Day

HAMPTON, Va. — The eighty-fifth annual Founders Day at Hampton Institute featured an address by the Rev. Phillip Widehouse, a veteran by President Alvin G. Mason, and the induction of members into the Quarter-Century Club of the college. During his address, the Rev. Widehouse touched upon the part the American Missionary Association played in the founding of Hampton. The general secretary of the association, Rev. Widehouse, referred in his speech to General Samuel Chapman Armstrong, who founded Hampton in 1838.

Mr. Widehouse in his address, "Crossed for Brotherhood," reminded the students afternoon audience that General Armstrong found a 100-acre tract on the Point Comfort peninsula in 1837. The Hampton founder graded the site was good for the second he planned. It is his recommendation, the American Missionary Association furnished the money to purchase the site, then known as "Little Scotland."

General Armstrong succeeded in beginning his school in 1838. Negroes so each could demonstrate to the world that he is a man that he has the highest elements of manhood, courage, perseverance and honor, that he is not only worthy of freedom but able to win it so he has a chance.

When Hampton first opened its doors in April 1838, General Armstrong welcomed 13 students and was aided in his program by two teachers.

President Alvin G. Mason, head of the college, gave the traditional Founders Day sermon. His topic was "The Measure of a Man."

Also, President Mason inducted the new members into the Quarter-Century Club during the afternoon worship service at A. and T. College last Sunday.

Speaking from the text in the cad chapter of Isaiah which reads in part, "The hand is full of idols which they worship," Dr. Nash said, too many of us have chosen to lead our lives that even to idols which consist solely of those of selfish interests.

The speaker, a native of England, was introduced by Rev. Cleo M. McCoy, director of Religious Education at the college. The college choir, under the direction of Howard T. Pearsall, sang.

It is estimated that 6 per cent more vegetables are available this winter than last.

Three other Hampton staff and faculty members received their Quarter-Century Club awards from President Mason. Roscoe F. Lewis, chairman of the Department of Social Sciences, was knighted at the college for 25 years. He was granted degrees from Virginia University and Howard University and has done more work at the American University.

Miss Helen M. Schmitter, a native of Virginia, has been secretary of the Superintendent of Buildings and Grounds. Mrs. Anna Eliza, a member of the First Baptist Church of Hampton and of the Order of Tents, has served in the laundry.

The Hampton Institute Chorus directed by Dr. Henry N. Switzer sang "Rejoice in the Lord, Always" by Perrell and "Sinner Please Don't Let This Harvest Pass" by William H. Robinson, president of the Hampton Armstrong League, delivered the welcoming address. Donald H. Bishop, chaplain of the college, brought the invocation and the benediction.
